Prince Braves Rebuffs

CARDIFF (AP) — Nationalist placards and the tossing of certain missiles—a firecracker, an orange and an egg—showed Prince Charles on Friday that not all Welshmen are happy he is to become the Prince of Wales.

Heavily guarded, the 19-year-old heir to the British throne paid his first major visit to Wales. He toured four cities as part of a summer program to learn the workings of British government offices. Accompanied by his father, Prince Philip, he got a mixed reception.

The minor bombardment of the royal party came as Charles was visiting the government's Welsh office, the scene of a recent time-bomb explosion.

The firecracker, thrown by a girl, exploded several yards from the prince. The orange, tossed by a boy, burst on a police car. The egg missed. The throwers were arrested.

A similar theme was followed in an orderly demonstration by a half-dozen youths at the Llanelli town hall. They displayed placards including the declaration: "revolution yes, prince no."

Charles is due to be invested as Prince of Wales in July, 1969. Dissidents consider he is being used to keep Wales tied to the central government in London.

TEA TALKS MAY END U.K. STRIKE

LONDON (Reuters) — Nine ladies had tea together Friday and the result was an agreement by strike leaders to work for an end to one of the walkouts disrupting British industry.

The three-week strike by 187 women operators forced the Ford Motor Co. to lay off 9,000 men and has cost £8,000,000 (about $20,800,000).

The strike leaders are to ask the other women Sunday for agreement to call off the strike.

WIRE BRIEFS

Patient Excellent

MONTREAL (CP) — The progress of Gaetan Paris, 49, Canada's second heart transplant patient, continues to be excellent, doctors at the Montreal Heart Institute reported today.

Asks Majority

PARIS (CP) — President Charles de Gaulle made an appeal today for a solid Gaullist majority in Sunday's parliamentary elections and called on his countrymen for a great effort to compensate for the crisis that shook France in May and early June.

Vietnam 'Atrocity'

SAIGON (AP) — Viet Cong troops throwing explosives into huts blasted apart a small fishing village today and killed 88 persons in what a U.S. spokesman said "may be one of the worst atrocities of the war."

Hundred Ships Idle

NEW YORK (AP)—The National Maritime Union went on strike against 73 ship companies today and said it has already made idle about 100 ships. The strike over wages could eventually tie up 70 per cent of the American merchant fleet.

Hold Applications

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain and Denmark agreed Friday not to press their applications for European Common Market membership until the situation in France becomes more settled, informed sources said here.

Penitentiary Riot

SAN JUAN (Reuters) — Two prisoners were shot and wounded and one guard was stabbed during a riot at the penitentiary in this Puerto Rican capital early today.

GIRL, 8, WINS $130,000

Times News Services

An eight-year-old Ontario girl was one of four Canadians to win $130,000 today with an Irish Sweepstake ticket on Ribero, winner of the derby run at the Curragh track near Dublin.

Her mother didn't know she had it.

Mrs. K. M. Wakefield told a reporter her daughter was "jumping up and down she's so excited."

Disposition of the $130,000 would involve a family council, "but we will probably invest it for her . . . and then we have to decide what shall be done for the relative who bought it for her."

The relative was not identified.

THREE IN QUEBEC

Three other Canadians to win $130,000 are Roland Lefebvre of Pointe Gatineau, Quebec, Jean Racicot of Gatineau, Quebec and William Coleman, a 77-year-old retired Montreal man.

Mr. Coleman is in hospital.

His daughter Eleanor, 41, said she is "stunned" by the win and she immediately went up to the hospital to see her father.

Six Canadians who won prizes of $52,000 each with tickets on Sir Ivor, the pre-race favorite who finished second, were identified as S. Chrabasz of Saskatoon, Mrs. Jennie Wolowich of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Don Lirondelle of Edmonton, Vern Schrank of Maidstone, Sask., Jack Whiting of Port Coquitlam, B.C., and R. L. Clarkson of Fort St. John, B.C.

SEVEN WON $26,000

Seven Canadians who won $26,000 each with tickets on third-placed Val d'Aoste were identified as Yvon VanAl, Rosemount, Que.; Elsie Cruickshanks, Collingwood, Ont.; J. Cunningham, Scarborough, Ont.; John Namara, Hamilton; Denyse Brisebois, LaSalle, Que., and Art Coghlan, Ottawa.

Mr. Coghlan's ticket previously had been listed as from Oshawa, Ont.

One B.C. winner, Mr. Clarkson of Fort St. John, likely hasn't yet heard he is $52,000 richer.

When he learned he had drawn a ticket on the Irish Sweepstake earlier this week, he announced he did not intend to change his plans for a

SERVICE VOTE

Riding Switches To Grits

OTTAWA (CP)—The Liberals increased their Commons strength by one seat today to 154 on the basis of returns from the armed forces vote.

The Liberals won Sherbrooke from the Creditistes, reducing the party's standing to 14.

The first check of service vote figures indicated they took Comox-Alberni from the NDP but this proved erroneous and that party's strength remains at 23 seats.

In Sherbrooke, Liberal Paul Gervais got 169 service votes to boost his total to 15,301. Creditiste Adelard Larose got only nine service votes to make his civilian-service total 15,173.

Mr. Larose had led by 32 votes on the strength of Tuesday's civilian returns.

The Creditistes have requested a recount.

NDP Leader Douglas was not helped by the service vote. A loser by 93 civilian votes in Burnaby-Seymour Tuesday, Mr. Douglas got 48 service votes to 110 for Liberal winner Ray Perrault. Mr. Douglas now trails by 155 votes.

Standings now are:

Lib	154	129	100	100	49
PC	72	97	95	116	208

Total	264	265	265	265	265

In 1965, the Liberals raised their Commons total by two seats on the strength of the service vote.

FAVOR LIBERALS

As usual, the service vote was heavily pro-Liberal, though not to the same extent as in former years.

The Liberals got 59.4 per cent of the armed forces vote, compared with 63.3 per cent in 1965, and 70.5 per cent in 1963.

Armed forces unification has been put into effect since the 1965 vote.

A total of 63,401 cast ballots in the armed forces vote, or 53.5 per cent of the 118,384 who were eligible. The turnout was 64.5 per cent in 1965. This year's service turnout compares with a civilian percentage of about 75.

The Conservatives won 30.6 per cent of the service vote, compared with 23.5 in 1965. The NDP got 7.7 per cent, against 8.8 last time. There were five votes for the Communist party this year.

In recent years, only the Liberal Richard Durante, who lost the Comox-Alberni federal seat to New Democrat Tom Barnett by 42 votes, is expected to ask for a recount.

The Barnett margin was reduced by the result of the service vote announced today.

Mr. Durante's campaign manager Ronald Hess said if the margin of victory remains the same, the Liberals will definitely ask for a recount.

Nicholson Moving Into Mansion Tuesday

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

British Columbia's new lieutenant-governor — Hon. John Robert Nicholson, OBE, QC, LLB — said today he is eagerly looking forward to living in Victoria.

The 66-year-old minister will be sworn in as B.C.'s 21st lieutenant-governor by Chief Justice J. O. Wilson at Government House Tuesday at 11 a.m.

"Mrs. Nicholson and I have always liked Victoria," he told The Times from his temporary residence in Vancouver, "and we have some very good friends there.

"We are certainly looking forward to our residence at Government House, with its splendid view of the Strait."

Mr. Nicholson said he is going into the new job with "a completely open mind" and has no plans as yet.

"I shall discuss various matters with Mr. Pearkes and try to learn something from his very broad and valuable experience.

"We shall do our best to follow the example of our distinguished predecessors, particularly Mr. and Mrs. Pearkes.

"I'm very happy to be back in British Columbia and I think this will be a post which my wife and I will find very interesting."

Mr. Nicholson's appointment was announced in Ottawa Friday night by Prime Minister Trudeau following the first cabinet meeting since Tuesday's federal election.

Mr. Nicholson said he is glad to be out of active politics, although he enjoyed the experience.

"I found it challenging and stimulating; sometimes frustrating and sometimes wholly rewarding — But the time comes when a man who has had a busy life looks forward to getting out of the political field.

"It puts a great strain on his energies."

A silver-haired six-footer, Mr. Nicholson is embarking on his sixth major career. He has been lawyer, business-

VANCOUVER SUPPLY PICKED UP

Poisonous Salts Recalled by Firm

MONTREAL (CP)—A Montreal patent drug company said today it has found from a check of invoices that distribution of bottles of health salts in which a poisonous substance had been mixed was more widespread than at first believed.

James McCoubrey, vice-president and general manager of the Dr. A. W. Chase Co. Ltd. of Montreal, said it was only found after a full check of the records that the salts had been widely distributed in Ontario communities southwest of Toronto.

It was not immediately known how much of the preparation had been distributed in the Ontario communities.

Mr. McCoubrey said those responsible for the mistake in preparation of the salts had been "relieved of their responsibilities" and the procedure which had caused the mixture "has been isolated. It was an abrogation of plant rules."

More than 2,870 bottles of the 16-ounce size "Improved English Style Effervescent Salt" have been recalled after the fedral food and drug directorate issued the order Friday.

The directorate said that tarter emetic was included in batches of the product made in May and June. The salts are designed to relieve upset stomach conditions but the additive can cause severe vomiting and death.

Previously, a company spokesman had said only 123 bottles remain unaccounted for. One hundred bottles were in the Toronto-Ottawa area, 14 in the Maritimes and nine in Vancouver.

Mr. McCoubrey said he understood the Vancouver bottles were "being picked up today."

At least 12 persons have been stricken in Toronto with severe cramp pains after taking the salts, two Metropolitan Toronto hospitals reported Friday.

"If swallowed, severe vomiting may occur and the compound could cause death," the directorate said in a special public bulletin.

"All dealers and stores are warned to stop sales of this product immediately," the bulletin said. The salts are sold in drug, grocery and other stores.

One drug wholesale company in Victoria had not heard of the product and doubted anyone here would be carrying it.

"I don't think there is any likelihood of any in Victoria," he said.

Four large drug stores contacted by The Times said they have not carried the health salts.

. . . VOTE

Liberals have gained seats on service-vote turnovers. There have not been more than two changes in any one election.

73 VOTE FOR PM

Prime Minister Trudeau received 73 service votes in Montreal Mount Royal, compared with 10 for Conservative Huguette Marleau. Independent Walter Gallagher received four, the NDP's Jussy Brainin two, and Creditiste Michel Lamonde one.

Conservative leader Stanfield received 679 service votes in Halifax, compared with 410 for Liberal Gregory Tompkins and 30 for Gus Wedderburn of the NDP.

In Temiscamingue, Creditiste leader Real Caouette got 35 service votes. The liberal, Come Lapierre, got 80; Conservative Aurore Charron-Labrie seven, and the NDP's George Wormsley six.

In Burnaby-Seymour, Mr. Douglas' 48 votes were not enough to overcome Mr. Perrault's lead in the civilian voting, to which 110 service votes were added.

Conservative Charles MacLean got 31, and Social Credit candidate Ron Price five in Burnaby-Seymour.

Acting Social Credit Leader Alex Patterson ran last among four candidates in Fraser Valley East on the service vote. Liberal Gerry Pringle, the winner, received 236 service votes to 51 for Conservative Oscar Dayton, 47 for the NDP's Glen Haddress, and 38 for Mr. Patterson.

Former defence minister Paul Hellyer, now transport minister, received 63 service votes in Toronto-Trinity, compared with 30 for Conservative Ed Robertson, and 12 for Jim de Candole of the NDP.

In 1965, Mr. Hellyer received 80 service votes, compared with 26 for his Conservative opponent and six for the NDP.

Defence Minister Cadieux got 67 service votes in Labelle riding. Conservative Fernand Sarrazin received 11, Creditiste Clement Grondin five, and Andre Peclet of the NDP two.

STARR EDGED OUT

Former Conservative labor minister Michael Starr almost overtook the NDP winner, Edward Broadbent, in Oshawa-Whitby. Mr. Starr received 51 service votes to nine for Mr. Broadbent, cutting the latter's lead to 20 votes.

In Comox-Alberni, NDP member Tom Barnett was ahead by 42 votes after addition of the service vote, but with one civilian poll still missing. He had a total of 11,954 to Liberal Richard Durante's 11,912.

The service vote was taken between June 17 and 23. Servicemen voted for candidates in ridings where their home towns are located, and their ballots are added to the civilian count by ridings.

Also eligible to participate in the armed forces vote are the wives of servicemen overseas and veterans in hospitals.

The most famous turnover caused by the service vote occurred in 1945 when Mackenzie King, then Liberal prime minister, was defeated in Prince Albert, Sask. He entered the Commons later through a byelection in Glengarry, Ont.

The official count in all ridings begins next week. Any candidate can request a judicial recount within four days after the offical count is announced, but he must make a deposit of $250.

He succeeds Maj.-Gen. George Randolph Pearkes, 80, who won the Victoria Cross in the First World War and was defence minister in the Diefenbaker government from 1957 until his appointment as lieutenant-governor on Oct. 12, 1960.

Mr. Nicholson is spending the weekend in Vancouver with his wife, the former Jean Annand of Halifax. They have one son, Dr. John Robert Nicholson, and three grandchildren.

The minister said he is looking forward to meeting Premier Bennett and members of his cabinet, but on a non-political basis.

"I'm out of politics now," he laughed, "I can't even vote."

Like the premier, Mr. Nicholson was born in New Brunswick at Newcastle. He entered Dalhousie University, Halifax, at the age of 15 and graduated in law six years later as a gold medallist.

He came to Vancouver in 1924 and was admitted to the B.C. bar, specializing in civil and corporate law.

In 1941 he left Vancouver for Ottawa, where he became deputy controller of supplies in the department of munitions and supply during the Second World War.

IMPORTANT WAR JOB

Later he was given the job of organizing Canada's synthetic rubber industry. This led to establishment of the Crown-owned Polymer Corporation at Sarnia, Ont., one of the largest synthetic rubber firms in the world.

Mr. Nicholson was successively general manager, managing director and executive vice-president with Polymer.

He received the Order of the British Empire for his services and for five years headed the Canadian-controlled Brazilian Light and Power in Brazil.

Mr. Nicholson was named president of the B.C. Council of Forest Industries in 1960. He resigned a year later for "personal reasons," not stated.

He entered politics on the Liberal ticket in 1961 when he became B.C. campaign manager for Prime Minister Pearson. A year later he won election to the Commons in Vancouver Centre and was returned in two more federal elections.

Subsequently, he served as forestry minister; postmaster-general; minister responsible for administration of the Central mortgage and Housing Corp.; minister of citizenship and immigration and labor minister.

Mr. Nicholson's appointment as lieutenant-governor came as no surprise.

NDP CONGRATULATES

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan said:

"The appointment has been rumored for some time. I want to congratulate Mr. Nicholson. He has a big job to fill as the successor to General Pearkes."

There had been speculation for months that the tall, distinguished minister would be named to the $18,000-a-year post as the Queen's official representative in B.C.

It was heightened when he resigned the labor portfolio April 10 and announced he would not seek re-election in Vancouver Centre.

Mr. Nicholson was for many years honorary solicitor to the Children's Aid Society of Vancouver and an active member of the Vancouver Board of Trade.

He is connected with several other community and charitable organizations. He is a Freemason and his chief recreations are riding, fishing and reading.

weekend fishing trip — and his wife confirmed today Mr. Clarkson was off in the woods and would not be back until after the holiday.

He held a ticket on the second-place horse Sir Ivor.

"He's got no radio with him, but I told him I'd leave a message with my parents in Dawson Creek and if he was near a phone he could phone there and find out," she said.

Mr. Clarkson, an electrical contractor, said before going off on his trip into the Peace River country in northeastern B.C. that if he won he would invest the money in his business. Otherwise, life would be unchanged.

He takes one week off a year and his absense from civilization would make no difference to the horses, he said.

The only other B.C. winner, Mr. Whiting of Port Coquitlam, held a ticket on the same horse and also collects $52,000.

Mr. Whiting said in an interview he now will quit his job with a delivery company, because he does not like shift work. Instead he will devote more time to a variety store run by the family.

Exotic Recipe Collector, Move Delights First Lady

VANCOUVER (CP) — For Mrs. Jean Nicholson it wasn't a rags-to-riches story, but the new First Lady of British Columbia was orphaned in her early years.

She was born Jean Annand in Halifax, youngest of five children. When she was seven her mother died and four years later her father, head of the immigration department in Halifax, also died.

After private school in the Annapolis Valley, Jean Annand went to Dalhousie University, and there met her future husband, becoming engaged at 18.

When Mr. Nicholson had set up a law practice in Vancouver, she married him and they settled on the West Coast where their son Bob, a pediatrician in London, Ont., was born. The couple returned east and after spells in Ottawa, Toronto and Sarnia, they went to Brazil while Mr. Nicholson worked for Brazilian Traction Co.

Since then the couple have spent 10 years in Ottawa.

Mrs. Nicholson said she is happy to be moving back west following her husband's appointment as British Columbia lieutenant-governor.

"I'm delighted to be going back to B.C., particularly Victoria, and to such a beautifully-run house," she says.

Much of the fine furniture and decorations in their comfortable double apartment in Ottawa will be moved into Government House, among them some fine examples of Meissen china and some Queen Anne antiques.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Medicare Venture Starts; Full Participation Seen

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — Medical care insurance as a co-operative federal-provincial venture starts Monday with only Saskatchewan and British Columbia participating. But by early 1969 five more provinces are expected to join. They are Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Newfoundland, Manitoba and Alberta.

The remaining three—Prince Edward Island, Quebec and Ontario—should follow closely on their heels.

Federal and provincial authorities are confident all provinces will be participating in the program by 1970.

Some doctor opposition to the program has been toned down by general provincial acceptance of the principle that doctors may practise inside or outside the plans without their patients losing insurance benefits.

Main area of doctor concern now centres on periodic negotiation of schedules of fees and on recognition that doctors may bill for that part of their fee not covered by insurance benefits.

The two starting provinces—Saskatchewan and British Columbia—are poles apart in their approach to medical care insurance while still qualifying for the federal money involved.

LIST FOUR ESSENTIALS

Federal payments are made to provincial plans which meet four basic requirements. A provincial plan must cover 90 per cent of the population at the start, rising to 95 per cent in three years.

It must cover all needed medical services by physicians on equal terms and conditions. Benefits must be portable from one province to another. And the program must be non-profit with the province having the final word on benefit payments which involve large sums of public money.

Saskatchewan's pioneer government-sponsored plan covered these conditions for some time before former prime minister Pearson offered in July, 1966, to pay half the average per-capita costs of acceptable provincial programs.

Ninety-eight per cent of Saskatchewan residents are covered, 92 per cent of British Columbia's.

DISCUSS FEE SCALE

A current question is negotiation of a new fee schedule between the Saskatchewan College of Physicians and Surgeons and the provincial medical care insurance commission.

The new schedule may increase costs of the Saskatchewan program by between 20 and 30 per cent, an additional $3,000,000 to $3,600,00 for the rest of this year.

Exclusive of the effect of a new fee schedule, the Saskatchewan plan is expected to cost between $467,600 and $584,600 more this year than the $23,384,271 bill for 1967. The usual pattern is four to five-per-cent cost increases.

Not all the provincial costs can be shared under the federal program. Ottawa's contribution to Saskatchewan, without taking into account any fee schedule increase, will be around $14,500,000 to March 31, 1969, end of the current fiscal year. That represents 51 per cent of an estimated total cost of $28,529,000 in that period.

The remaining problem in Saskatchewan is the imposition by the province earlier this year of deterrent fees aimed at preventing unnecessary visits to doctors.

FEWER USE PLA

By charging the patient a basic $1.50 for each visit to a doctor, the province says use of the insurance plan is already slackening.

But Ottawa is keeping a close eye on this development. The federal law requires that federal payments to the provinces be stopped if a province takes action that interferes with "access" to needed medical service by the public.

After some months of experience with the deterrent fees, federal authorities will decide whether such fees interfered with access to needed care. If they have, the province could be disqualifed from federal contributions.

In British Columbia, the government adopted a different approach to medical care insurance. Instead of a government-sponsored plan, B.C. put several existing, private, non-profit plans under the umbrella of a provincial commission, which will keep final control over claims payments.

DOCTORS KEEP RIGHTS

As in Saskatchewan, doctors may practise inside or outside the program without loss of insurance benefits by their patients. And, where the participating plans pay less than the full fee schedule, doctors have retained the right to bill their patients for the additional money.

In practice, the plans in both provinces will pay between 90 and 95 per cent of the fee schedule. Extra billing by the doctor to the 100 per cent level has been done only rarely in Saskatchewan.

Federal Health Minister MacEachen estimated early this year that the cost for a full year would be $82,300,000 of which Ottawa would be paying $42,700,000.

A later estimate, by a Canadian Tax Foundation researcher, placed the cost to March 31, 1969, at $67,288,000 of which Ottawa would pay $31,064,000 or 46.2 per cent.

Bennett Medicare 'Savior' For All Other Provinces

British Columbia enters the national medicare scheme Monday with no estimate yet of the cost of what will be for most people a broader range of prepaid medical coverage.

"We'se not going to be like the foolish Coalition government which gave out figures for B.C. Hospital Insurance Service when it started," Premier Bennett told reporters Friday.

* * *

"What followed was six months of chaos because they gave out their figures too soon.

"We'll give out the figures as soon as we have some experience to go by but we're not going to guess."

He also said B.C. "saved medicare for all the provinces" because of the B.C. agreement with Ottawa that voluntary plans would qualify.

"All the other provinces said B.C. would never be able to get its plan accepted by Ottawa," he said.

"But we did and that shows what good co-operation there is between the federal and provincial governments. During the federal-provincial conferences strong pressure was brought upon us to oppose medicare.

* * *

"But we proved that under the federal act there could be genuine medicare without interfering with the sound business practices of existing non-profit, prepaid medical plans or with the doctors.

"We've saved medicare so that all provinces can have it without crippling their finances."

Plane Door Open; Passenger Falls Out

VICHY, Mo. (AP) — A passenger transport plane carrying 23 passengers and a crew of four on a charter flight to Texas had a door fly open over south-central Missouri Friday and one man fell out.

The plane landed at Springfield, Mo., where it was impounded by the National Transportation Safety Board.

In Springfield the missing passenger was identified as Gerald Potter of Pontiac, Ill., husband of a woman who also was on the flight.

The plane was identified by the Federal Aviation Administration as belonging to Purdue Airlines Inc. of Lafayette, Ind., which is partly owned by Purdue University.

Passengers told reporters the missing man had been talking with others, then had risen to go to the lavatory. Three men sitting near the rear said they heard a "swoosh" and thought something must be wrong but didn't see anything.

Jaycees Take $2,400 Worth Of Awards

First and second prizes worth $500 and $300 went to cities in three categories, 20,000 and under, 20,001 to 75,000 and over 75,000.

The awards are made on the basis of all traffic safety projects sponsored in the community throughout the year, road-e-o and safety weeks.

Winning cities were Wallaceburg, Ont., Port Arthur and Calgary.

Second-place finishers in each category were units from Taber, Alta., Fort William and St. John's, Nfld.

THE HUGGER'S GOT THE BITE ON CORNERS AND THE CORNER ON DEALS

Corner a Hugger and it bites ... bites in and holds on. Like a sporting machine should. So you corner level. And corner smooth. One look at this traction-packed bundle of muscle in motion tells the story. No corner-cutting on basics here! For starters, take the widest wheelbase in Camaro's league. A steady, road-gripping 59 inches. Add computer-tuned suspension, special cushioned body mountings, and low profile tires. Harness that to one of Camaro's 25 different power teams—from 140-hp Six with 3-speed manual transmission all the way up to 375-hp Turbo-Jet V8 with Turbo Hydra-Matic Transmission. Then unleash the Hugger on the highway or in a bend ... and you'll know what it's like to command a real thoroughbred. One that moves. And handles. And looks. And goes.

Decidedly go car or distinctively show car, Camaro's got a model made for you ... at made-to-order prices. And right now, while your Chevrolet dealer's offering the highest trade-in prices of the year, you can get in on the excitement at the biggest savings ever.

Camaro. The corner-hugging sport that has the sports market cornered!

Checks and Balances

AFTER THE JUBILATION OF returning a Liberal government, and particularly one with a solid majority of about 40 seats, some thought must be given to the calibre of the opposition. It is essential to the proper functioning of our parliamentary system that there be a chief opposition party of sufficient strength to offer informed criticism of government policies and actions. A second opposition group and various splinter groups may be added, but too many voices in this latter category can weaken rather than strengthen parliament.

More than one Canadian government has suffered from the lack of an opposition sufficiently powerful to exert a minority influence and the results have been destructive. Mr. Diefenbaker's record total of 208 seats, for instance, scored in 1958, was so top-heavy that it was itself a major factor in his subsequent fall from power.

On a numerical basis, Mr. Stanfield should be able to conduct a significant opposition to the new government, but this function will prove to be a heavy one for him since much of the front-bench strength which he had expected to have with him has been lost in the ballot boxes. The Fleming, Camp, Faribault, Roblin group, and other notables besides, will not be seen in Parliament, and the leader of the official Opposition will be hard put to find experienced and able debaters to carry the day-to-day load.

The same weakness may be found in the NDP ranks, for with Mr. Douglas a polling casualty, along with some of the younger men who promised to develop as potential leaders, a good deal of the socialist steam will have gone out of the NDP benches.

All this means that Mr. Trudeau will have a particular responsibility to avoid the pitfalls of power. Fortunately, even before the results of the election became known, he had announced that two-way communication between the government and the people would be a major concern of his administration. Mr. Trudeau's election success was largely the result of his close communication and rapport with the thousands of Canadians before whom he appeared. He recognizes the need to continue this intimate connection now that he is in office, and the word from Ottawa is that he will initiate frequent television appearances of the hot-line type whereby he and the public can maintain contact, as well as constructing other channels of communication.

This sort of exposure is unprecedented in a prime minister; perhaps only a man of Mr. Trudeau's agility in the give-and-take of debate could survive it. But it would be one way in which any shortcomings in the parliamentary opposition could be made up. The big thing is that the government knows that everybody will be watching.

At Government House

THE LONG AWAITED ANnouncement of British Columbia's next Lieutenant-Governor has revealed that the successor to Mr. George Pearkes will be Mr. John R. Nicholson. Anyone following Mr. Pearkes in this position must inevitably find himself faced with a formidable task of emulation, for the present incumbent has shown, through his eight years of service, abundant gifts of ability, tact, humanity, kindliness, industry, and a vast and sympathetic understanding of the men, women and children for whom he has been the Queen's representative.

Mr. Nicholson's past accomplishments indicate that he is well endowed by ability and experience to undertake the tasks of British Columbia's highest office. Of Maritimes birth and education, he moved from a law career to national duties and became involved in activities in this province before the war. He was a captain in the B.C. Regiment for two years and also served in the Department of Munitions and Supply. He has had top-level positions in industry, later being elected to Parliament in 1962, and becoming in turn Minister of Forestry, Postmaster General, Minister of Citizenship and Immigration, and Minister of Labor. He withdrew from politics following Mr. Pearson's retirement.

Mr. Nicholson is a man who knows Canada and British Columbia well and has spent many years of his life in public service. He may be assured of a warm welcome on taking over his duties at Government House.

Century of Progress—Within Months

THE CONCENTRATION OF criticism regarding the Greater Victoria system of garbage disposal is making headway, and the Regional District Board is now moving to find a solution to the problem. It hardly needs to be reiterated that the present method of dumping garbage for open burning at three collection points on Hartland and Millstream Roads is nearer to 1868's requirements than to the needs of today.

Inadequate as the current system is in regard to control of pollution, vermin, health hazards and unsightliness, it will be still less acceptable as the population rapidly increases throughout this area and garbage production multiplies. We might as well face the fact that residence in districts of increasing density demands expenditures to meet the requirements of the population. This means that we must spend money to cope with the problem of sewerage, garbage disposal and other forms of inevitable pollution.

We can no more continue indefinitely with the present obsolete treatment of garbage than we could have kept the open drainage ditches and sewers of a century ago. The efforts of the Regional District Board in this regard will be watched with interest.

Mr. Strachan Comes Apart

PROVINCIAL NDP LEADER Strachan has not improved his own public standing or that of his national leader, Mr. Douglas, in accusing the newspapers of having helped in the latter's apparent defeat in Burnaby-Seymour by using "hate literature" in editorials. To compare the editorials in reputable newspapers with some of the scurrilous garbage that was issued from certain quarters to attack Mr. Trudeau is as inaccurate as it is fatuous, and Mr. Strachan must be judged by his allegation.

The British Columbia leader also brings in Trudeaumania, redistribution, and exploitation of the NDP two-nation policy as causes of Mr. Douglas' defeat. There are many other items which might be added to the list. But why does Mr. Strachan avoid the real reason: the voters did not want a Socialist, Mr. Douglas, to represent them; they did want Mr. Perrault, a well-known Liberal candidate. It's as simple as that, and there is no need to vilify newspapers in order to disguise Mr. Douglas' lack of appeal.

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

A walk up the main nature trail at Goldstream campsite reveals many changes of plants, each in its own habitat.

There are many clumps of hazel. Some of them have grown to a height of over 20 feet. This year there is a fair crop of nuts forming.

At this time the green stocking-like husks are almost hidden beneath the rather hairy, heavily veined leaves. They will ripen in late July or August.

Examine the greenery as you walk along. There are large banks of the sword fern now beginning to show the spore capsules that are at present white and will turn to a rusty brown later.

Close to the cedar puncheon walk there is a very large bank of lady fern. This is a very graceful fern and some of the fronds are almost six feet in length.

Close by there are several patches of the deer fern. This is a rather strange plant as there are two different kinds of fronds, the fertile frond grows from the centre of the plant while the "food producing" fronds form a rosette at the base and they taper towards both ends.

Looking along the rocky faces of the stream you will find the maidenhair fern with its shiny black stem and finger-like delicate fronds.

Do you know that bracken sends up many "sucker" stalks which enables it to reproduce in this manner. It is seldom that you will find spore capsules, unless the root stock is fading out.

The Promises Mr. Trudeau Coaxed From Canadians

McDowell

MORE eloquent than all the post-election analyses of the meaning of Pierre Trudeau's victory for the future of Canadian unity is one simple statistical fact: The Prime Minister's most concentrated support came from his home province. In Quebec, and only in Quebec, did he win more than 50 per cent of the popular vote. Mr. Trudeau's mandate from Quebec is the mandate he won from the rest of Canada. In this case Quebec is a province like the others, only more so.

Multiple, confused and sometimes self-contradictory as the motivations of individual voters may be, the mandate that the Prime Minister is entitled to claim from this election is clear and straightforward.

It was the constant message of that strange series of sermons, happenings, love-ins and beatitudes that was the Trudeau campaign: the building, for the first time in the country's history, of a single, workable, Canadian consensus.

The fundamental strategic error of Mr. Trudeau's opponents, both Conservative and NDP, was in misreading him as a man of confrontation. The error could easily have been avoided if they had gone through his writings with an eye for understanding, rather than ammunition.

Having made this mistake they left Mr. Trudeau alone without competition on the only ground where it was possible to rally a consensus congenial to east and west, French-speaking and English-speaking, rich and poor, even, to a surprising degree, undoctrinaire progressives and undoctrinaire small c conservatives.

On the crucial French-English question both Conservatives and NDP, neither of which has any broad roots in French Canada, worked on the assumption that there could not be one Canadian consensus, there would have to be two, linked by a kind of agreement to disagree.

Their view is half-justified by history. Beginning with the hanging of Louis Riel and continuing with the conscription crises of two world wars, periods of intense and shared emotion in this country have rallied Canadians into two camps, not one, and the two camps have confronted one another across the linguistic frontier.

But the same facts of history suggest that a policy of agreeing to disagree, which may be livable in periods of calm, and is easier and less demanding of generosity and understanding, becomes explosive under stress and has become suicidal now that an independent Quebec is a genuine possibility.

The confrontations during the Trudeau campaign were around the borders of the consensus. Their purpose was to protect it, not to split it.

The most spectacular of them, and the one that got all the attention, was the confrontation with the handful of politicians and, especially civil servants in Quebec City who were attempting to behave as if Quebec were an independent country.

Language Issue

But the consensus in favor of "one nation with two official languages" had to be defended from more directions than one.

Regularly, while campaigning in English-speaking parts of Canada, Mr. Trudeau had to confront members of his own party who told him, "don't speak French here; the people aren't ready for it." Regularly he went ahead and spoke French and just as regularly the people applauded.

The applause that Mr. Trudeau won for the French language in Calgary was a basic plank in his platform in Quebec, as the applause that he won for "one nation" in Quebec was a basic plank for his platform in Calgary.

On issues other than language and constitution his approach was the same. He said he made no promises. But he went about the country prodding the various regions and groups to make promises to each other.

The applause of a Vancouver shopping centre audience when he said rich regions must be prepared to help the poor ones was an implied promise from the people of British Columbia to those of eastern Quebec and the Maritmes.

The applause in Saint John, N.B., when he praised the readiness that he found — he said — in the rich regions to help the poor, was a promise from a deprived region to regard the other end of the country with a little more appreciation and a little less resentful envy.

These promises may be less binding than so many certifed cheques. Some of the applause may have been for Mr. Trudeau's profile. And big as his audiences usually were, they amounted only to a fraction of the electorate. But in the semi-mythical processes by which the actions of an elected government come to express the will of the people, they do seem to amount to as much of a commitment as it is possible for a people to make. The cheque Mr. Trudeau asked Canadians to sign may not have been certified. But it was definitely not blank.

Other political leaders before Mr. Trudeau have won power on the strength of the country's longing for a common Canadianism.. But unlike at least one who managed for a short time to weld all Canada's regional chauvinisms into one big, coast-to-coast chauvinism, Mr. Trudeau made his campaign an effort to exorcise the local demons that have made every region of Canada feel like an "orphan", resentful of all the others.

This meant that, as he said at Fort Langley, B.C., "we must all be co-assurers one of another."

Things like that have been said before. But Pierre Trudeau specified what the insurance should cover, the basic essentials for a consensus necessary to make the country workable.

The language of a third of the population must be at home and respected everywhere. Deprived regions, groups and individuals must receive from the more prosperous, "not as charity but as justice," the help they need to get on their own competitive feet. But those who can compete should compete and not look to the taxpayers for a free ride in terms of protective tariffs, subsidies or transfer payments.

Platitudes Needed

All of this might bear some resemblance to a collection of platitudes from a high school text on civics. It disappointed many of Mr. Trudeau's early admirers who had hoped he would turn the election campaign into a lofty intellectual debate.

But the platitudes were still badly in need of a voice that could get them out of the textbooks and into the basic outlook and behavior of the Canadian citizen and voter.

And lofty intellectual debate — how many nations can dance on the head of one flagpole? — has conspicuously failed to be much help toward solving the psychological disturbances that underlie the constitutional problem.

The real challenge was not to define the country's problems. It was to make it possible, politically and emotionally, to do the things necessary to remedy them.

To do this Mr. Trudeau made his election appearances into a series of happenings, a kind of mass group therapy.

In Quebec, for example, where the imposed orthodoxy of a handful of doctrinaire nationalists had succeeded in cowing dissenters into silence, Mr. Trudeau proved to the hesitant federalists that they were the majority, simply by drawing out their applause again and again at the expense of the separatists and ultra-nationalists.

The effects of this are already showing up dramatically in a shift of the balance of power and policy in the Quebec provincial Liberal party.

Proving Liberal Strength

In Edmundston, N.B., a corner of the country where the upholders of repressive tradition had been influential far beyond their numbers, the Prime Minister proved to the supporters of more liberal laws that they were in the majority by winning their applause for his attack on reactionary attitudes.

Elsewhere he started WASP bigotry on the road to disappearance by showing the bigots that they had fallen out of step with those around them.

Much as it was a Canadian mandate Mr. Trudeau sought, his campaing was not against Quebec. To assume that it was was to forget that, until they decide otherwise, Quebeckers are still Canadians.

It was a mandate to build the basic Canadian consensus the country has never had before, a consensus in which, for the first time, French Canadians could feel they belonged.

And no matter how complex the voting motivations of voters in Quebec as in the other provinces, no matter whether by conscious approval or by the default of the other parties, it was the people of Quebec who most strongly endorsed Mr. Trudeau's appeal at the polls.

It is also the people of Quebec who have risked the most. Consciously or not they have in great measure staked the future of their culture in North America on Mr. Trudeau's ability to carry out his mandate by holding the Canadian people to the promises he charmed them into making one another during his campaign.

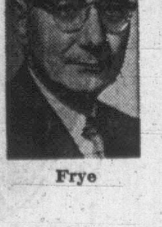
Squeezing Berlin for Its Bargaining Value



Frye

THE squeeze which East Germany has put on West Berlin in recent weeks is seen here less as a cold-war minicrisis than as a gambit in a bargaining process — a manoeuvre to influence an incipient negotiation on European security. For some time, West Germany's Foreign Minister Willy Brandt has been trying to engage the East in a negotiation for the settlement of European problems, including the partition of Germany.

Lengthy memoranda have been exchanged with the Soviet Union, and on June 18, Brandt had a prolonged private session in East Berlin with the chief Soviet negotiator on the subject, Ambassador Pyotr A. Abrasimov. Abrasimov invited Brandt to the meeting.

Little of the substance of these exploratory negotiations has come to the surface. The East has seemed willing to dicker, but has wished to start from the familiar Communist premise that "What's ours is ours, and what's yours is negotiable."

The principal East German, and a major Soviet, objective has clearly been to freeze, rather than heal, the partition.

Brandt has offered to modify many positions which previously had been frozen in Bonn and to explore a stage-by-stage approach to reunification, beginning with the elimination of "senseless barriers" between the two Germanies.

East German Boss Walter Ubricht, who is 75 years old tomorrow, has combined the rigidity of a Stalinist with the stubborness and conservatism of old age.

He has also feared, probably quite rightly, that any relaxation of the cold-war confrontation in central Europe would mean the replacement of his regime by at least a German Dubcek.

Progress, therefore, has been scant. Now, Ulbricht has sought to play, or at least to remind the West that he can play, his ace: Berlin.

Ability to pressure Berlin has always been a major Communist bargaining lever. Illegal though it is, limitation of the traffic flow to and from West Berlin is a physical possibilty, and even the much more serious step of harrassing airline flights can be attempted.

The only permanent remedy for West Berlin's vulnerability is a political settlement, and under the inexorable laws of diplomacy, the West will have to pay for any relief such a settlement includes. We should not have to pay; but we do.

The West's reaction to Ulbricht's Berlin gambit has been carefully honed. To have exploded with indignation and fury, as some suggested, would not only have been disproportionate but actually counterproductive.

It would have been to treat the manoeuvre as much more significant than it was, thus in effect giving it additional weight. To the extent that Ulbricht was attempting psychological pressure, he would have been helped to succeed.

The NATO Council, meeting this past week in Reykjavik, Iceland, avoided this trap. While reasserting the basic western position on free access to Berlin, the Council vowed to go on seeking an East-West detente — that is, a European settlement — and to that end, suggested "mutual force reductions" on each side of the Iron Curtain.

What the western alliance was doing, in effect, was broadening the scope of the prospective negotiations to cover not merely the division of Germany and the status of Berlin but the military postures of East and West in Europe. It was raising once again what, in the 1950s, used to be called disengagement.

In the context of 1968, disengagement has many interesting implications. A thinning out or withdrawal of Soviet forces in eastern Europe could well hasten the process, now well advanced in Czechoslovakia, Romania and Yugoslavia, of growing independence from Soviet control.

Disengagement could render Ulbricht's position so perilous in East Germany that even formal political recognition from the West would not long prop him up. It could tip the balances against Stalinism in Poland, and release Soviet counterpressures on Czechoslovakia and Romania.

Mutual force withdrawals could, in fact, have such desirable political effects in Eastern Europe that, short of an overall settlement advantageous to Russia in other respects, it is hard to envisage it happening.

The effort, however, is worth the candle. Pressure in the U.S. Congress for unilateral reduction of American forces in Germany — a step which would give away an important element of western bargaining power — will not help achieve the final result.

Mr. Trudeau Did It And He's His Own Man

By DOUGLAS FISHER and HARRY S. CROWE

(Mr. Fisher is a lecturer in Canadian government at Carleton University. Mr. Crowe is associate professor of history at Atkinson College, York University.)

Well, Pierre Elliott Trudeau certainly delivered the goods. He had about 15 more seats in him than we had expected. He pulled in the votes in the urban middle class, English-speaking and French-speaking, and it seems especially of women and young voters, in very surprising numbers.

Fisher

And he did it almost entirely on his own. The other men at the top of the Liberal party were not much in evidence. In part this was the Liberal strategy no doubt, to concentrate upon the newness of the approach and the personality of the new leader. But it was probably even more the result of the developing treatment of politics by the media as purely and simply a leadership phenomenon. Others can barely break into the TV news even in small centres.

So the prime minister is more completely his own man than his predecessor was, although Mr. Diefenbaker in 1957 and again in 1958 was in a rather similar position. He is not beholden to individuals.

Crowe

Mr. Trudeau is free in another way. He has no great commitment to policies or to positions. He can move in any direction and into almost any area and not run foul of his lines advanced during the election. Here he differs from Mr. Diefenbaker at his moment of triumph. His hands are less tied than any other PM in our history.

The prime minister is also the beneficiary of an immense amount of good will, especially in the cities, especially on the part of young voters and voters-to-be, and especially with respect to that matter which he has successfully appropriated as his own — the preservation of the Canadian nation.

He spoke modestly and moderately in victory of his "total message" and of the "over-all feeling."

★ ★ ★

In the days ahead he will have to break up his total message into its constituent compartments. At the same time the over-all feeling of the Canadian electorate will be defined into its particulars. The fortunes of Mr. Trudeau will be determined by the extent to which his compartments are in harmony with the electorate's particulars.

This is a field in which it would be rather reckless to make any prediction.

The official Opposition which he will face in the House of Commons will be but a pale reflection of what it might have been with a Camp, a Roblin, a Fulton, a Hamilton, a Starr, and a Brownridge.

Not only are the leading lieutenants of Mr. Stanfield missing, but the Progressive Conservative party has for all practical purposes departed from the cities.

This at a time when the great problems increasingly will be urban problems, when the pulsating forces of Canada as never before will be urban forces. Mr. Trudeau will have across from him a rural official Opposition. The prime minister and the government will benefit greatly by the contrast and the comparison which will constantly be made.

Along with the Conservatives, and at approximately the same strength as before, will be the New Democratic group. But it will be of different character in that five of its members will be from Saskatchewan, and they include three top-notch farm spokesmen, each one a fair substitute for Alvin Hamilton (something no prairie Tory could be).

When these are added to the re-elected Ed Schreyer (NDP — Selkirk), one sees that Agriculture Minister Joe Greene will have his work cut out for him.

An ironic twist may be that despite the redistribution which has increased urban representation in the Commons, and all the new urban impulses, farm debates may be among the major ones of the new Parliament.

And although the Conservative party may be an urban party, the main spokesmen of the prairie farmer will be the New Democratic Party with its trade union affiliations.

Here is another point which seems of great importance as one begins to analyze the results. Prof. John Wilson, political scientist at the University of Waterloo, has been doing some very exacting and exciting research on voting patterns in Canada in recent federal and provincial elections.

He has noted that election by election the New Democratic Party has been increasing its hold on working class voters.

A process of stratification seems to be at work, with suburbia and the high-rise apartments falling into the Liberal camp and the labor polls falling to the New Democrats. But it seems to apply to immigrant workers only after a period of time. Anyway we shall wait for Prof. Wilson's next study with great interest, and we imagine it will be of equal interest to Messrs. Trudeau and Marchand.

Next to the New Democrats in the House of Commons will be Real Caouette and an increased band of Creditistes. If they are consistent with their recent behavior they will give the government little worry on constitutional matters and little peace on economic grievances.

Their role may appear at first glance to be reduced from what it was with a minority government but it could be that the weakened state of the Conservatives will provide Mr. Caouette with an opportunity to take upon himself a combined role of conservative and Quebec opposition.

Finally, majority governments in Canada have usually rolled over and gone to sleep. If Mr. Trudeau follows this pattern can he keep his new followers? And if he isn't going to follow this pattern, what pattern will he follow?

Soviet Hard Liners Hit Liberal Writers

By ANATOLE SHUB
The Washington Post

MOSCOW — The Russian writer who first described life in Stalin's concentration camps has come under massive official fire as the Soviet Communist Party takes another giant step backward from de-Stalinization.

Alexander Solzhenitsyn, 50, generally considered one of the Soviet Union's most talented living novelists, was the principal target of a six-column editorial attack in the Writers Union publication, Literaturnaya Gazeta.

The paper described the author of "One Day in the Life of Ivan Denisovich" as a willing tool of anti-Soviet propaganda and one of his works—"The Cancer Ward," unpublished here but about to be published in the West—as "malicious libels" of the Soviet system.

SOLZHENITSYN

Also attacked were Benjamin Kaverin, another liberal novelist who pleaded for publication of Solzhenitsyn's works, and the writers who protested against last January's "literary underground" trial here.

Moscow observers viewed the attack on Solzhenitsyn as the gravest offensive move by political hard-liners since the trial of writers Andrei Sinyavsky and Yuli Daniel in February 1966. Sinyavsky and Daniel are serving at forced labor in the Potma camp in the Mojji region on the Volga.

It was unclear whether the attack on Solzhenitsyn would be a "last warning" or the prelude to political and juridical reprisals against the writer.

Arkady Vassilyev, one of the "public accusers" at the trial of Sinyavsky and Daniel, was named Communist Party secretary of the Writers Union this month, reportedly in preparation for heightening a "vigilance" campaign that has been raging all year.

The attack on Solzhenitsyn itself represents a major escalation of that campaign, although a behind-the-scenes controversy over whether to publish his novel, "The Cancer War," has been going on here for more than a year.

Great Event

Publication of Solzehenitsyn's Ivan Denisovich in the liberal monthly Novy Mir on November 20, 1962, was considered the most important literary and one of the most important political events in post-Stalin Russia.

Former premier Nikita S. Khrushchev reportedly personally ordered publication of the novel over the opposition of the state security organs and the Communist Party ideological apparatus headed, then as now, by Mikhail Suslov.

Solzhenitsyn, a wartime captain of artillery, was arrested in East Germany in February 1945 for having made derogatory remarks about Stalin, and his long years in concentration camps were the raw material for Ivan Denisovich. He was rehabilitated in 1957.

The author's talent, honesty and modest bearing won him widespread popularity throughout the Soviet Union. A Hungarian writer, Pal E. Feher, recently described in the official Hungarian literary journal Elet As Irodalom the spontaneous ovation given Solzhenitsyn when he appeared at a meeting in the Moscow House of Writers in May 1967.

In an open letter to the Soviet writers congress last June, Solzhenitsyn demanded an end to censorship, urged the Writers Union to defend rather than help persecute writers and denounced official pressures and intrigues agains both himself and his works. More than 80 other leading Soviet writers were reported to have supported Solzhenitsyn, whose letter was also read openly at a Czechoslovak writers congress the same month.

Although hard-liners pressed for action against Solzhenitsyn, "The Cancer Ward" was accepted for publication last fall by Novy Mir — to be suddenly withdrawn on orders from higher political authorities.

Only after it had become clear that "The Cancer Ward" would not be published in Russia did western publishers, who had obtained typescripts of the book which had been circulating in Moscow for months, announce plans to publish both "The Cancer Ward" and another novel, "In The First Circle."

Unauthorized

In a letter to Literaturnaya Gazeta written April 21, which was first published by the Italian Communist paper L'Unita June 4 and finally reproduced by Literaturnaya Gazeta, Solzhenitsyn declared that all such western versions were completely unauthorized.

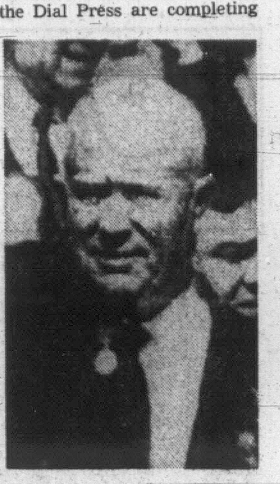
("One day in the life of Ivan Denisovich" was published in the U.S. in March, 1963, by E. P. Dutton Co.)

("The Cancer Ward" was published in mid-May in London, in Russian. In April, a Russian-language magazine Grani, published in west Germany by an anti-Soviet organization, sent a telegram to Novy Mir saying it was going to publish the book. The West German telegram said that the Soviet secret police had sent the novel to the west in order to block publication in Moscow. The implication was that western publication would discredit the novel in the Soviet Union.)

YULI DANIEL
. . . jailed author

(The book as published in Britain describes life in a Soviet cancer ward, and the possible symbolism of the setting and the book's criticism of Soviet society may have been the reason for its censorship in Moscow.)

(Plans for U.S. publication of "In The First Circle" were announced June 10, Harper & Row. At the same time Farrar, Straus & Giroux and the Dial Press are completing separate translations of "The Cancer Ward," which was published in Rome as well as London, in the Russian-language editions.)



NIKITA KHRUSCHEV
. . . ordered printing

(Two other American publishers, Frederick A. Praeger and Dutton announced May 14 they were cancelling plans to publish "The Cancer Ward" in compliance "with the author's wish" that the novel not be published outside the Soviet Union at this time.)

THE GALLUP POLL

Stanfield Was Underdog In Rating for PM Post

By The Canadian Institute of Public Opinion

Trudeaumania continued throughout the country until the last vote was cast in the recent election. Before the bar of public opinion, Pierre Elliott Trudeau rated almost two to one as a better prime minister than Robert Stanfield would be.

Forty-six per cent of the voters, regardless of their own political feelings, thought Mr. Trudeau would make the best prime minister as against 24% who felt this way about Mr. Stanfield.

Regionally, Quebec led other areas in approval of Mr. Trudeau. More in Quebec (52%) than in Ontario (47%) or the West (44%) said Mr. Trudeau would make the best prime minister. Only in the Maritimes did the scales show a slight balance in favor of Mr. Stanfield.

Not unexpectedly, among the hardcore party adherents, Conservatives (67%) thought Mr. Stanfield would be the better prime minister and Liberals (77%) felt the same way about Mr. Trudeau. Even among NDPers, more (35%) rooted for Mr. Trudeau than for Mr. Stanfield (18%). One indication of the election results, perhaps, is that Conservatives (16%) chose Mr. Trudeau as best prime minister three to one over those Liberals (5%) who chose Mr. Stanfield.

The question: "Regardless of any political feelings you may have, and thinking just of individuals, which man do you think would make the best prime minister for Canada—Pierre Elliott Trudeau or Robert Stanfield?"

	National	Quebec	Ontario	West

An Attractive Pattern For the Canadian Mosaic

By ART STOTT

Several platform guests at the S. J. Willis Junior Secondary 18th annual awards ceremony this week struck a positive and encouraging note in their remarks to the students being honored. The guests were familiar with the composition of the school, the ethnic diversity of its pupils, its record of service and achievement and the distinction it had conferred on boys and girls who do not come from the white, Anglo-Saxon, Protestant community.

Stott

The suggestion was advanced that the school had faced, recognized and solved a problem confronting Canada today—the problem of welding a unity from the different components within our population. Chief Philip Paul, of the Tsartlips, brought the point home as he expressed once more the Indian's gratitude for the way S. J. Willis staff and students had spearheaded the successful effort to send Kuper Island school band members to Expo last year. This, it seems to a reasonably large number of us, represented sympathetic treatment by a new mosaic of young Canadians for an ethnic group which is a minority but deserves respect and kindness.

By coincidence, the theme of the awards ceremonies was expressed within days of the release of a statement on curriculum planning for a public school system in the Northwest Territories drawn up by the first principal of S. J. Willis school, Bernard Gillie. Mr. Gillie is now director of education for the government of the Northwest Territories. It is his job, among other duties, to frame a system which will provide maximum benefits educationally to the young people who live north of the 60th Parallel in Canada. He recognizes the difficulties. He may find some encouragement for his attack on them in the attitude displayed at his old Victoria school.

In the Northwest Territories, Mr. Gillie points out, there are about 8,000 school-age children, 36 per cent of them Eskimo, 19 per cent Indian and about 45 per cent of other origins, mainly from southern Canada. In Mackenzie about 58 per cent of the students are neither Indian nor Eskimo, while in the Eastern Arctic, 90 per cent are classified as Eskimo.

Part of the educational job in the Territories — and perhaps the most important part—is to provide schooling which will equip the young people to compete in this day and age. The approach to this objective might be a relatively straight road if all the youngsters were Indian and Eskimo and a particular curriculum could be established to assist their progress into modernism from a background similar for all of them.

But with about half of them neither Indian nor Eskimo—and largely the children of Canadians from the south who expect, in most cases, eventually to move south again and to send their children to schools in the south—the system has to be good enough to fit the students for higher study outside the northland.

So a specialized program for the northland must allow for the adaptation of regular curricular material, especially at the lower grade levels, to bring it in line with the experience, environment and needs of a special group of students of Indian, Eskimo and Metis origin. It must provide a transition for them, furnishing an understanding of the different culture of the south. At the same time the curriculum must give non-Indian, non-Eskimo children a program of comparable standards to those of the south to which many of them will transfer.

The over-all intent must be to create a program which is constructively Canadian and, at the same time, peculiarly suited to the needs of northern students.

This may be a neat trick in mixing apples and oranges, as the saying goes, and probably it can be done. There's many an attractive fruit salad which contains those ingredients, though the mixing process has to be effected with care and understanding.

It may be of some consolation to Bern, as he burns the midnight sun on curricular work at Fort Smith, N.W.T., to reflect on the success achieved by his old school in Victoria. The mosaic has been carefully and effectively pieced together there—and the picture, defined in the sense of citizenship and service among the students, is a decoration to grace more than the halls of elementary learning in Canada.

WHY POLLUTION HAS ALARMED SWEDEN

STOCKHOLM — The Swedish government has asked the United Nations to hold a conference on pollution of the human environment. It was a cry, if not from the heart, at least from experience.

Alarm has spread far enough in Sweden to cause the establishment of a special government department for combatting pollution in all forms. It is believed to be the first of its kind in the world.

As the Swedish appeal went out to the UN, fish off the south coast of Sweden were found to contain sufficient mercury to warrant official discouragement of high human consumption. Fish, said the authorities, could only be eaten with safety once a week.

In Vattern, a large fresh-water lake in central Sweden, all fish has been declared unfit for human consumption. Pike and perch have been found to contain up to 100 times the maximum concentration of mercury allowed by the World Health Organization. About 1,000 fishermen faced destitution overnight, and the government now is faced by vast claims for compensation.

Sweden suffers from chronic mercury poisoning, one of the more obvious forms of pollution achieved by indstury. It is also easier to attack because mercury is universally accepted as poison.

On the other hand there is always scope for learned dispute over the effects of sophisticated chemicals and sprays, whose workings are not clearly understood, and certainly not easily explained to the general public.

Ornithologists first raised the alarm. They discovered birds of prey were rapidly being killed off by a disease, which, almost too late, was diagnosed as mercury poisoning. Certain hawks have completely disppared from parts of Sweden. The peregrine falcon, once a common sight, now is a rarity. Sea eagles have become almost extinct.

Feminine Mind Difficult Topic for Male Writer

I AM MARY DUNNE, by Brian Moore; McClelland and Stewart Ltd.; 217 pp.; $6.95.
Reviewed by Anthony Jenkins

When a male novelist writes in the first-person voice of a woman, it is always something of a risk. Such a device encourages the reader to be on the look out for faults of tone and phrasing that betray the fact that the narrator is not really a woman.

In the present case, it seems to me at any rate, that Mary Dunne frequently thinks and speaks like a man.

Admittedly this judgment is one man's view of another man's attempt to present the feminine mind, but having passed the book on to several female readers, I can report that this appears to be a general verdict. When Mary talks about herself, particularly about her sex life, she sounds like a man.

Nevertheless, this is an extremely good book. Mr. Moore creates characters that live and breathe on the written page.

In the final analysis, the occasional flaws in the narrative voice don't really matter because throughout most of the novel, Mary is looking back at her past; she is in effect outside herself, a third person narrator. The author recreates her story with the vividness and the intense delicacy that proved so striking in his previous novels, Judith Hearne and The Luck of Ginger Coffey.

In recent years, particularly in his last book The Emperor of Ice Cream, Mr. Moore's skills underwent something of a falling off, but with this book he has returned to the analytical style that has made his protraits some of tha most effective in modern fiction.

Mary Dunne started life in rural Nova Scotia, and the action, which takes place in New York, explores her mind on a day that is made more difficult by the fact that she is expecting her period. Ordinary events take on a threatening magnitude as she nervously wrestles with the present that is so much the result of her past.

She has been married three times, and if women experience a crisis of identity when they change their name to that of their husbands, this woman must frequently remind herself that she is in fact Mary Dunne, the sum total of all her former names.

Mr. Moore makes her life with each husband sharply distinctive and yet, at the same time, he creates the impression of a total unity.

Mary's first husband, Jimmy, is little more than a boy who runs away with her to Toronto to escape the rural doldrums.

The relationship between these two adolescents who expect very different things out of life and who grow apart from the first moment they are together is drawn with a touching comedy that is never sentimental and that always rings true.

Hatfield Bell, the second husband, is older. A magazine writer who is going downhill; he has talent but little faith in himself, and when Mary leaves him he goes to pieces.

The third husband, Terrence, is the least well realized. He is not distanced by the past, and in Mary's mind he is the glamorous prince of romantic escape fiction: a British playwright, moneyed, virile and impossibly understanding of his wife's neuroses.

Mary is made to remember these men through chance conversations with two friends whom she has not seen for years, and through these recollections she is able to come to a temporary truce with herself even if she does not find a complete solution to her feelings.

Tale Captures, Holds Interest

Reviewed By
GEORGE MARSDEN

Few writers have painted a more interesting and vivid picture of the English middle and literary classes than Miss Pamela Hansford Johnson, and her novels prior to the one reviewed here show three distinct phases.

Firstly we have the four books about Claud Pickering, his half-sister Charmian and her mother, Helena Archer, written with the cool detachment of an Anthony Powell. These novels are now rather hard to come by, but if you can get hold of Too Dear For My Possessing, A Summer To Decide, An Avenue Of Stone and Winter Quarters, they are delightful reading.

In the early and mid-fifties a rather more pedestrian series of books followed, each well written, but of no particular trend or significance. Then, ten years ago, appeared the delightful The Unspeakable Skipton which with Night and Silence, Who Is Here? and Cork Street, Next To The Hatters formed a trilogy which pokes gentle fun at American University and quasi-intellectual life in London. They are among the wittiest English books of this decade.

However Miss Hansford Johnson was wise not to prolong the joke too far and it is gratifying to find yet another development of her talent in The Survival Of The Fittest.

JOHNSON
. . . with passion

This book, which describes the lives of a group of young middle class Londoners from the nineteen thirties through the war years to the present day is somewhat in the genre of Howard Spring, but is in no other way derivative.

The book is not over-ornamented by a collection of quixotic oddities invented to sustain interest; all the characters are believable and their actions logical within the sets of circumstances described.

CRYSTAL CLEAR

Each character is crystal clear; personalities develop and mature over a long period and confirm the acute perceptions of the author.

It is noticeable that her descriptions of situations seem to be influenced by her husband, and the cool analysis of the following passage is pure C. P. Snow:

"She could not restrain the replacement of airiness by more than a touch of contempt. She was a proud woman. She had been cut down to a size not her own by people less than herself."

Because Miss Hansford Johnson writes with passion as well as compassion, she has given us an interesting and compelling book. She tells of two men: Jo the onlooker and Kit his slightly younger friend who dives headlong into life. Kit has a scintillating though somewhat superficial talent and becomes a popular and successful writer, while Jo's literary career barely gets off the ground, though he achieves some success in business.

YOUNG PEOPLE

It is also the story of the coterie of young people who are their wives, girls and friends, but despite Kit's brilliance, it is Jo who is the main influence on all their lives.

The author has an excellent ear for what now appears to be the stilted conversation of the prewar generation and she has a keen memory of the ideals that possessed the young intelligenzia who created the political climate of the day. Her descriptions of pub-crawls are definitely nostalgic, and she manages to build up, over an extended period of time, a descriptive framework of enduring friendships which survive betrayals and personality clashes in the way that friendships seem to do.

GREAT PRAISE

There is a lively portrait of Bessie, Jo's grotesque and gargantuan mother, and also of a seedy peer who seems to come straight from the pages of Evelyn Waugh. Could there be greater praise?

If there is a fault to be found, it is in the conversation of the younger children which appears pedantic and unlikely, but since it has little importance in the book, it is perhaps churlish to mention it.

One's interest is sustained from start to finish. To those acquainted with the mores of the English scene during this period, it will bring back many memories: to those who are not, it is an accurate description of an era.

Initial Promise Lacking

It is St. Valentine's Day in the year 1900, and the girls from rigidly proper Appleyard College outside Melbourne are to go on a picnic with their teachers. Amid the parasols and the frilly dresses, the cakes and the tea, occurs a tragedy that sets in motion a whole series of fatalities.

This is an evocative and charming novel that grips one's attention from beginning to end. However, despite the fact that it often sparkles with a dry and witty intelligence, it never quite fulfils its initial promise.

At moments, Mrs. Lindsay can fix an event or a character with a crisp, ironically understated phrase that probes all round her subject. But this is just as likely to be followed by writing that is soggy in its sentimentality and its over-insistence.

She steps out of the narrative far too frequently in order to drive home the connection between one event and another, and her infelicities of tone are typified by her description of possums skittering "obscenely" across a roof-top.

"What a wonderful day! I can hardly wait to get out in the country!"

"Listen to her, girls! Anyone would think that Appleyard College was in the Melbourne slums!"

She is less successful with the conversation of the young ladies, which seems to proceed from exclamation point to exclamation point, than she is with the piercing inuendos of the adults.

This is not a book for those readers who like their plots neatly tied up by the end. Mrs. Lindsay deliberately concentrates upon the effect of the central mystery on the surrounding characters and leaves much that is inexplicable unexplained.

Yet, despite the unevenness of the style, the skill with which the bright and sunny surface of the book darkens into hysteria and terror makes this a memoable and highly readable novel.—A.W.J.

New Magazine For Teenagers

A new magazine called Eye, aimed at teen-agers and with an eye on their purchasing powers, has been launched in New York by the Hearst Corporation. "The trouble with most teen magazines is that they're too parental," say the editors, and Eye intends to relay "the electric life of the Now generation."

It first appeared this spring, edited by a group all under 30. As a bonus, the first issue included a tear-out wall poster in psychedelic color. Newsstand price is 50 cents.

Giant Antagonists Crunch Huge Bones of Contention

HONG KONG: BORROWED PLACE — BORROWED TIME, by Richard Hughes; Andre Deutsch; $4.00.

Reviewed by Grant McOrmond

This brief study of Hong Kong takes its title from an article published in 1959 by Han Suyin.

He describes the miracle of Hong Kong in the following passage: "Squeezed between giant antagonists crunching huge bones of contention, Hong Kong has achieved within its own narrow territories a co-existence which is baffling, infuriating, incomprehensible, and works splendidly — on borrowed time in a borrowed place."

CUT SHORT

The British lease on the New Territories expires in 1997, so at most the colony can continue for only 20 years. With Red China's overwhelming hostile presence this existence could be cut short at any time; the miracle is that Hong Kong's colonial existence has not long since ceased. It has not even been reduced to the meaningless status of its neighbour, Portuguese Macao.

Hong Kong continues not only to exist, but to grow and prosper in an astounding manner.

Mr. Hughes, a Far East correspondent for the Sunday Times and the Economist, as well as for various Australian newspapers, examines in the first section of this short study the present situation in the city colony.

Its population, trade and industry are expanding at a fantastic rate. At the same time it clings to nineteenth century concepts of colonial government and laissez faire economics. It is plagued by riots, by poverty, by vice and crime. It is an anachronism in the twentieth century, depending for its continued existence on its usefulness to the Red Chinese regime, which in almost every way is the direct antithesis of everything the colony stands for.

TRIP INTO PAST

Richard Hughes then takes his readers on an interesting excursion into the past to reveal the origins of the colony.

Its parents were British imperialism and British mercantilism; its birth pangs the ill-famed opium war of 1840. If this section of the work casts little glory upon British policy or action, it remains interesting reading and gives one a clearer insight into the characters and principles that carved the British Empire.

The third section of the book, devoted to the future of Hong Kong, refuses to give any easy solutions or make any firm predictions regarding the colony.

It is obvious that Red China can destroy it at any time, but it does not yet choose to do so.

OPEN QUESTION

How Hong Kong will finally be incorporated into China also remains an open question. China can accomplish this end by a number of means other than military action. Economic and political pressures can achieve the goal. It could cut off the colony's food or water supplies.

It could, as in 1962, allow vast hordes of Chinese to cross freely into the colony, thus destroying the viability of its economy and government.

Students of the Far East will find Richard Hughes' Hong Kong an interesting, easy to read examination of a complex problem. It cannot be regarded as either definitive or profound, but it does carry with it detachment and vitality.

EXOTIC IDEAS FOR PARTY FUN

For a gift or for one's own use, this delightfully written cookbook contains exotic yet feasible recipes from 18 different places loosely connected with the Pacific.

Accompanying the recipes are sumptuous illustrations as well as informative introductions to the customs and foods associated with such colourful spots as Hawaii, Tahiti, Japan, Mexico, Texas and San Francisco. The 300 food and drink suggestions provide excellent party ideas; for example, this recipe for "Indonesian Lamb Roast" makes for an exciting dinner

½ cup finely chopped celery; ⅓ cup finely chopped onion; 1 clove garlic minced; ¾ cup oil; ¼ cup vinegar; 2 teaspoons A-1 sauce; 3 tablespoons curry powder; 2 dashes Tabasco sauce; 3 tablespoons honey; 1 teaspoon oregano; 2 bay leaves; ½ cup prepared mustard; juice and rind of 1 large lemon; 6 lamb chops, or a rack trimmed of fat.

Saute celery, onions and garlic in salad oil until onion is transparent. Stir in remaining ingredients; simmer a few minutes. Chill. Marinate chops or rack in this mixture three or four hours in refrigerator, turning several times. Drain marinade from meat.

Wrap bones of chops or rack of lamb with foil, leaving meaty portions exposed. Arrange in greased, shallow baking pan. Brush meat with marinade and bake at 400 degrees F. approx. 20 minutes, or longer, depending on thickness of meat and desired doneness.

Turn meat once during the baking period and baste frequently with marinade. During the last few minutes of cooking, the meat may be placed under the broiler if further browning seems necessary. Serve remaining marinade hot, as a sauce for the meat. Serves 6 — M. C. J.

Complex Plot Ably Presented

LOST IDENTITY, by Margaret Briggs, McLelland and Stewart, $5.95.

Reviewed by Lionel Adey

This is a first novel of most unusual interest. Miss Briggs, who teaches at Simon Fraser University, came to live in Canada in 1955, but the scenes in her book take place in England, France and Switzerland, during the previous two decades.

The hero is in a hopsital in a southern English town, suffering from loss of memory following an explosion in a research laboratory. "John Finneker" (so called from the maker's name on his suit) soon enough discovers that he is really Owen Barnard when revisiting the Wiltshire village where he had gone to school before the last war, nor does it take him much longer to find that he had been doing research work in Switzerland in 1952.

The real problem confronting his psychiatrist is that of uncovering the events of the intervening 15 years.

As these are recalled, there emerges a pattern of emotional shocks. The imaginative boy, staying with his German pen-friend, was shocked at the drowning of a cat by a German woman.

Amid a general panic when he was working as a British agent in Occupied France, he unjustly shot and then drowned a German would-be deserter.

UNDER STRAIN

Years later he breaks under the strain of over-intensive research supposedly intended for medical purposes but which his fanatical director really intends to put to military uses.

The action is then subtly switched to a police hunt for the person responsible for the disastrous laboratory explosion with which the story began, so that the excitement is maintained as Barnard himself is arrested and tried.

So complex a plot confronts the author with a number of difficulties. She has to project herself into the consciousness of a schoolboy, to plant dream sequences from which will spring later events, then she must look through the eyes of an adult possessed of every faculty save memory.

The author copes most ably with these problems, by a narrative technique which owes much to the cinema, with flashbacks and movements from analysis to dream and dream to historical reality.

She fails only in a rather unconvincing trial scene during which she is driven to the crime-novel cliches of the bullying prosecutor and the timely intervention by the unexpected witness.

Of the personal relationships the hardest to manage is the central one, between Barnard and his fiancee Ann. One feels that she seems too patient to be made of flesh and blood.

However, the professional relationships between Barnard and his psychiatrist, and Barnard and his headmaster, are portrayed with tact and sincerity.

"The dignity of the individual . . . was inviolable; and from that belief . . . it was a logical step to the tenet that to ravage human dignity or to destroy human life was the ultimate wrong." These moral values, so untenable in wartime, underlie Barnard's unconscious revolt against his years of war service and explosives research, but the connection could well be made more explicit.

The author's moral reflectiveness enables her to probe her characters so as to find beneath a quality its antithesis.

For example, one of the most experienced British agents is so afraid of making his 16th parachute drop into France that he has to be pushed out.

GREAT ASSET

"The sun lit sparkling crests on the water and a pair of swans, serenely conscious of their beauty, dallied in the frame of the weeping willow trees."

She also has the ability to compel attention to a scene by means of unusual phrases, the "ebony silence" of a Swiss lake, or the cedar branches which "wildly thrashed a cloud-harried moon" during a gale.

Lost Identity offers a narrative full of incident and of unexpected twists that the reader ought to have forseeen. Moreover it offers not only a considerable insight into the working of the human nervous system, but a wholesome moral sanity and integrity.

The book suffers, one feels, because the story has rather too complex a structure; one is therefore a little too aware of the mental effort that has gone into its making. Miss Briggs has, however, written a very readable first novel which may well have some notable successors.

Light, Deft And Funny

IN PIOUS MEMORY, by Margery Sharp. William Heinemann. 160 pp. $3.95.

There are some writers who are natural story-tellers and Margery Sharp is surely one of them. Her new novel, In Pious Memory, is light, deft and very funny.

Arthur Prelude, a financial wizard who has spent his entire life wrapped in the banking affairs of the world ("he just slayed even the French!") is killed in an air crash—or is he? At any rate, his memory lives on and takes some strange turns in the mind of his devoted wife and indifferent family.

Miss Sharp never puts a foot wrong. Her sly comedy is honed to perfection, and she handles the Prelude children as acutely as she does the adults. This is nigh comedy in the old-fashioned style, but it is also bang up to the minute in its dry perceptiveness. The book is sheer delight; one can only wish that it were longer.

DRUG-BOND FORTUNE HIDDEN IN LOCKER

PORT MOODY (CP)—A cache of $73,923 in stolen bonds, 120 capsules of heroin and .45-calibre ammunition was found in a locker here, police chief Ted Millard said Friday.

He said the find was made in a locker at a bulk-loading terminal on the waterfront of this Vancouver area city.

He said the bonds were stolen in 1962, part of $240,000 in loot taken from a New Westminster real estate office.

Chief Millard said the locker had not been used for three months and it would be difficult to trace the last person who used the locker.

McCarthy Supporters Denied Votes

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Supporters of Senator Eugene McCarthy, who is seeking the Democratic party's nomination for president, stormed out of party meetings in New York City and Nashville, Tenn., Friday.

In both cases they were protesting against what they saw as party action favoring Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey, who already may have enough delegate votes to ensure he will be picked as presidential nominee when the Democrats meet in Chicago in August.

In New York, supporters of McCarthy charged they were denied a fair share in the allocation of at-large convention votes. They walked out of a meeting of the Democratic state committee.

On the basis of this victory, the McCarthy group asked for at least one-third, preferably one-half, of the 65 at-large votes to be allocated by the 345-member state Democratic committee.

GROUP OUTNUMBERED

But the McCarthy group, outnumbered 7 to 1 on the committee, was given 15½ votes, less than one-fourth of the total. Humphrey was the major beneficiary of the allocation.

The McCarthy bloc left just as another McCarthy group walked out at the Connecticut state convention last week, for a similar reason.

In Nashville, the Democratic state convention lined up solidly Friday behind Humphrey and 75 McCarthy supporters marched out when the chairman ended the state convention just as a McCarthy spokesman was trying to get the floor.

The Tennessee convention endorsed Governor Buford Ellington, as favorite son, for his state's 51 votes at Chicago. Ellington is expected to release the delegates to Humphrey on the first ballot.

POLICE FOLD TENTS OF INDIAN CAMP-IN

OLYMPIA, Wash. (UPI) — States police Friday folded the tents of Indians protesting alleged violations of their ancestral fishing grounds, ending a week-long camp-in on state capitol grounds. Nine persons were arrested.

The camp-in was also to protest the jail sentence of Negro entertainer Dick Gregory, serving a 90-day term in a county jail across the street.

Gregory's sentence stemmed from a fish-in on the Nisqually River, on which the state has been enforcing game regulations. The camp-in was the latest in a series of demonstrations by Indians in protest of the regulations.

Robichaud Fills Senate Vacancy

OTTAWA (CP) — H. J. Robichaud, federal minister of fisheries, has been appointed to the Senate, Prime Minister Trudeau announced Friday.

He will continue as fisheries minister until the prime minister announces new cabinet appointments, expected next week.

In making the appointment of the 56-year-old New Brunswick native to the upper house, Mr. Trudeau announced that "plans for reform" of the Senate are under "active study" by his government.

He said the changes could be made in co-operation with the provinces. But if there was undue delay the federal government would act on its own.

Pending changes in the Senate, it was necessary to proceed with appointments that would "maintain the continuing operation of the Senate in its present role and form," the statement issued by the prime minister's office said.

The prime minister was "indicating to all persons whose appointment would be on his recommendation that changes were in contemplation."

"He was counting on their co-operation to the degree that it might be necessary in implementing changes at the appropriate time."

The statement added that it would be preferable if changes in the role and powers of the Senate could be made "on the basis of discussion with the provinces." But Mr. Trudeau was not excluding "the possibility that, if this took too long, some aspects of reform might have to be proceeded with otherwise."

PART OF REVIEW

The government had made clear its desire to have the Senate become a more effective instrument of federalism and its willingness to discuss the matter in federal-provincial constitutional conferences as part of a constitutional review.

The statement said:

"Mr. Trudeau said it was in this context and with these intentions in mind that he had recommended . . . the appointment of the Hon. Mr. Robichaud to the Senate."

Deliberate Drinkers Fail Test

Canadian Jaycees learned a sobering lesson about the potency of a mixture of alcohol and gasoline Friday.

Three Jaycee volunteers took a series of road tests in simulated cars at 9 a.m. and then adjourned for beverages.

An hour and a half and up to 10 drinks later, the same subjects took the same tests.

And failed.

The car simulators were provided by the B.C. Automobile Association in its mobile driver training unit, and the tests were supervised by Al Smitz, an instructor in the BCAA's defensive driving course.

Delegates to the 33rd annual national meeting of Jaycees watched the tests conducted in the mobile unit on closed circuit TV from the Empress Hotel convention centre.

It was all in the name of traffic safety education, and after the Jaycees watched the three "drunks" lose their normal proficiency and reaction time, they seemed to get the point.

Reaction time lengthened by 30 per cent after between seven and 12 ounces of alcohol — depending on the size of the person — had been imbibed by each of the three subjects. The number of errors in a 10-point driving test increased from 1.5 to five.

The Jaycee volunteers for the drinking-driving demonstration were Mr. and Mrs. Bill Wood of Vancouver and Donald Heath of Victoria.

Panelists who assessed their inebriated reactions were police chief John Gregory, motor vehicles superintendent Ray Hadfield and Uvic psychology professor E. N. Hobson.

The car simulators are part of an eight-hour defensive driving course advocated by the Canadian Highway Safety Council and provided here by the BCAA.

Ed Hession, defensive driving course co-ordinator, told the Jaycees there are three-quarters of a million drivers in Canada who have had no driver education.

We've got it!

Doctors Back Raw Sewage Statement

Victoria Medical Society Friday supported Health Minister Ralph Loffmark's stand against the dumping of raw sewage in B.C. waters.

The doctors' statement:

"It is very important that safe sewage collection systems proceed with all deliberate speed and it is also very important that the final disposition of the waste be both safe and useable for a long period of time, in view of the large costs and health hazard involved."

Many individuals and groups have been concerned, the medical society says, and much is still not understood in regard to the dangers of sewage disposal into the sea.

"It is with this in mind that the (medical) society welcomes the proposal by the minister to initiate studies to ensure that no short or long-term health dangers to the population will arise in connection with the proposed method of sewage disposal."

Cold Water Poured On Hospital Plan

The suggestion was made by North Saanich Ald. T. C. M. Davis.

He advocated that Sidney, Central and North Saanich take concerted action to build a hospital if the Capital Regional Board doesn't build a recommended 200-bed replacement for Rest Haven Hospital.

He is also in favor of the Seventh Day Adventists, present operators of Rest Haven, operating the proposed new hospital.

"I have doubts that the provincial government which will provide 60 per cent of the capital costs for the new hospital, would go along with Mr. Davis' proposal," said Mayor Lee.

NOT PRACTICAL

"I don't think it's practical," he added.

But the mayor said he backed the Agnew, Peckham consultants report that the hospital should be building in the region of Elk Lake or "further north."

Earlier this month, John Tisdalle, MLA for Saanich, suggested the Saanichton area as a building site.

The mayor said he expected some opposition to building a hospital in the Elk Lake region or further north, on grounds that there were no sewage or water facilities.

"But this argument doesn't hold water," he said. "By the time plans for the buildings are completed, Central Saanich will have a sewer system and an adequate water supply."

SITE AVAILABLE

A site was already available in the municipality, but the mayor would not disclose its location.

He couldn't see, he said, the municipality being without a sewer system for much longer because of the growing pollution problem at Brentwood and in other areas.

(Central Saanich has applied to the regional district board to install a $1,500,000 sewage system.)

The mayor doesn't care who runs the hospital — the Seventh Day Adventists, or St. Joseph's Hospital management.

"But I firmly believe that the 200-bed hospital should be built further north than McKenzie Avenue — a proposed site for the hospital," he said. "The northern peninsula is rapidly expanding and from a planning point of view it should be located further north."

OPENS FESTIVAL

Norway's 16th Bergen International Festival of music, drama, folklore, opera and ballet was opened by King Olaf V.

Art Collector Dies

TORONTO (CP)—Douglas M. Duncan, 66, an art collector who pioneered picture rentals in Canada and discovered many internationally-known artists died Wednesday. He was credited with helping such painters as Emily Carr in her struggling days, and David Milne, a protege.

Royal Marine Pioneer Dies

William Charles Shawyer, a Royal Marine when Queen Victoria reviewed the fleet at Spithead during her diamond jubilee and a Victoria policeman when the pay was $3 a day, died Thursday in Mount St. Mary's. He was 94.

Born one of 10 children in Portsmouth, England, Mr. Shawyer came to Canada in 1892 as a Royal Marine in HMS Royal Arthur, based at Esquimalt.

He was a 37-year member of the Royal Canadian Legion, Trafalgar branch.

Returning to Victoria after his navy discharge, Mr. Shawyer worked for the Bullen Co., building the first marine ways in Esquimalt, before going into the Kootenays to mine gold.

POLICE OFFICER

Journeys took him back to England here he married. On returning to Victoria he was a police officer for five years, quitting when the pay was reduced from $3 to $2.50 a day.

He moved to North Sooke where he organized construction of the first schoolhouse in the district.

A widower, he lived recently with his daughter, Mrs. Vera Robinson, 2507 Quadra.

Also surviving are a daughter, Mrs. F. L. (Lenora) Hewlett and a son, Wilfred Charles, both of Victoria; a brother Walter of San Francisco; four grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were to be held at McCall Bros. chapel today.

Nerve Chemical Still Active

LOGAN, Utah (AP) — Dr. D. A. Osguthorpe said Friday nerve chemicals continue to linger in Skull Valley, Utah.

About 6,400 sheep died in March at Skull Valley after the army conducted an aerial spray of nerve gas at nearby Dugway proving ground.

Osguthorpe, a Salt Lake City veterinarian, was hired by the Utah government as a consultant in the incident.

He said the nerve agents "are stable and lingering in the vegetation and soil."

"Reports that the Skull Valley area is clear of dangerous compounds are false. Animals taken into the area suffer toxic effects."

Osguthorpe said it is possible the compounds will become more toxic as their molecules combine with vegetation and organic materials in the soil.

He said the nerve agents were carried to the ground by rain.

"The only reason people weren't injured is that they were out of the rain," he said.

B.C. Surplus—$29.3 Million

British Columbia's surplus rose $29,300,000 to $141,200,000 in the fiscal year ended March 31, 1968, and its indirect debt leaped $250,000,000 to $1,986,000,000.

These figures were released by Premier Bennett Friday in the annual mid-year financial and economic review.

The review tells a story of steady economic expansion that will continue into the coming year, Mr. Bennett said.

The surplus of $29,300,000 in the past year occurred during an overall increase of $82,000,000 in revenue and $89,000,000 in expenditures.

Revenue was $810,100,000 and expenditures were $780,806,000.

Mr. Bennett continued his well-known practice of underestimating revenues, which helped create the surplus on paper. He was low by $70,100,000 in his revenue estimate which was tabled in 1967.

But he also underestimated expenditures by $40,500,000.

The indirect debt, called contingent liabilities, consists of borrowing by crown corporations and local governments.

The review says that crown corporations co-operated with the request of the federal government to ease interest rate pressures by not going to the money market since June 1, 1967.

The breakdown of provincial government revenues in the 1967-68 fiscal year was: personal income tax, $142,800,000; death duties, $13,700,000; corporation taxes, $64,000,000; sales tax, $164,000,000; liquor profits, $5,500,000; motor vehicle fuel taxes, $65,500,000; vehicle licences, $29,000,000; lands and forest revenues, $49,900,000; mines, $38,600,000; federal tax rebates, $119,800,000.

Total assets of the provincial government reached $1,777,000,000, up from $1,550,000,000 in 1966-67.

The amount of provincially guaranteed debt for public schools was $292,600,000, up from $243,700,000.

Payments to, and on behalf of local governments were $400,900,000 or $205.95 per capita.

Total guarantees to municipalities and other local governments reached $351,300,000, up from $339,900,000.

The three crown corporations — B.C. Hydro, the old ferry authority and the Pacific Great Eastern Railway — had profits totalling $13,600,000.

Acklands Buys Hardware Firm

WINNIPEG (CP)—Shareholders of one of western Canada's oldest firms, the J. H. Ashdown Hardware Co. Ltd., Friday approved a recommendation by their board of directors that the firm be sold to Acklands Ltd. of Winnipeg, a large wholesale distributing firm.

Ackland offered to buy all the issued and outstanding common shares of Ashdown for $16 a share payable in whole by issuing, on a share for share basis, 373,517 shares of a new class of six per cent cumulative redeemable convertible preferred stock of Acklands, par value $16 a share.

Inflationary Pressure 'Reduced'

Reduced inflationary pressure in 1968 as a result of restraint in spending and wage settlements was forecast Friday by Trade and Industry Minister Waldo Skillings.

A slower rate of expansion in capital investment coupled with increased domestic industrial capacity provides some prospect for reduced inflationary pressures, he said.

However, such an agreement will depend "to a considerable" degree on restraint in spending in the public sector and in wage settlements in the months ahead, the minister added.

Mr. Skillings painted a glowing picture of British Columbia's economy in other sectors.

"Over the past 12 months this province's rate of population growth was 3.3 per cent, the highest in Canada and almost double the national average."

The population of the province is now more than 2,000,000, and Canada's population is 20,700,000, he said.

"In addition, B.C.'s labor force continues to grow at a rate not equalled anywhere else in Canada, and the rate of economic growth has been sufficient to provide jobs for most of those entering the labor force," Mr. Skillings added.

WEEK ON MARKETS

'Shaken Free' Of Wall Street?

By GERALD CLARKSON

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Shares in Canada's major industries broke through to their highest levels since the autumn in brisk trading this week.

With the exception of election day, prices moved up continuously in a surge of optimism which dates back to the beginning of June. Although brokers said a strong majority government was welcome news in the market, they thought domestic politics were not the main influence on the trend.

Leading groups were paper and forest issues, beverages, chemicals, communications and steels. Trust and loan stocks, oil refiners and banks also advanced.

Among seasoned issues at their best this year, Thomson Newspapers jumped 5 to 44½, Texaco 2⅝ to 33½, Famous Players 3⅞ to 57⅞, Seagrams 2 to 47½, MacMillan Bloedel 2¼ to 25 and Bank of Montreal ¾ to 14.

Investors are hoping for even higher prices later in the summer, and there is a real feeling that Canadian markets have shaken free from the restrictive influence of Wall Street.

The major indexes at Toronto and Montreal were independent of New York all through the week.

AFFECTS CANADA MORE

Throughout North American markets, great store was laid on the passage of the U.S. tax increase-spending cut bill. But after the event, Canadian stocks responded with a much sharper spurt than U.S. shares.

With the bill signed, brokers here expect an early reduction in interest rates and bond prices have moved up in anticipation of an official move. The drop in yields on short-term treasury bills for the third week running was another pionter.

Hopes have risen rapidly in the last two days, and analysts talk of bank rate being cut to 6½ or 7 per cent from the current 7½ per cent. This will almost certainly mean action by the Bank of Canada well before any similar move by the U.S. Federal Reserve Board.

In the United States, observers are becoming scorneful of the tax bill. The Wall Street Journal called the scheme "at best a palliative. Indeed, it is a warning how far the authorities have yet to go to find the cure for inexcusable financial irresponsibility."

Andrew Brimmer, a Federal Reserve Board governor, said there were no immediate plans to reduce bank rate. And prospects were further clouded by the publication of the U.S. trade deficit for May, the second this year.

Gold shares, the most volatile indicator of the world's monetary problems, posted small gains. Campbell Red Lake rose 1 to 34½, Dickenson 20 cents to $4.80 and Giant Yellowknife ⅛ to 11. Dome slipped ⅝ to 67.

The status and value of gold is still in the air, although brokers believe the situation in France and South Africa should keep the price from rising.

Reports early in the week that French gold reserves were still largely intact turned out to be false. The Bank of France revealed a total loss of gold and foreing exchange amounting to $1,062,000,000 for the four weeks ending June 20.

This was matched against the $6,500,000,000 amassed since General de Gaulle took office ten years ago. French gold was sold to European central banks at the official rate of $35 U.S. an ounce, so the transactions did not affect the free bullion market or gold stocks.

However, Jacques Reuff, author of the French plan to double the price, was still promoting his scheme last week. And another factor was South Africa's bid to sell gold to the International Monetary Fund in exchange for badly-needed foreign currency.

This move could have a dynamic upward effect on gold's free price by seriously reducing the potential supply of newly-mined bullion.

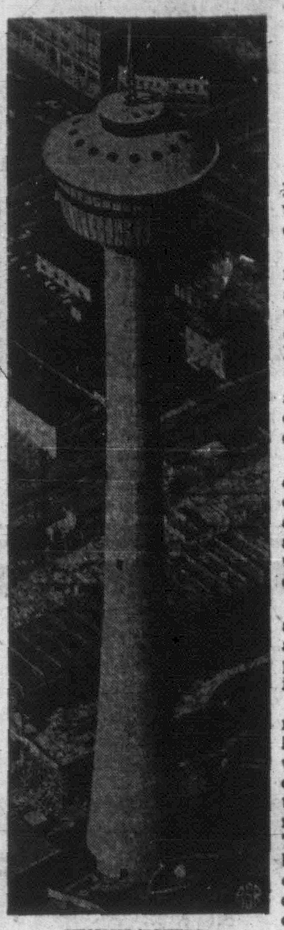
Also a continuous traffic in gold bewteen South Africa and the IMF at $35 would probably create a floor for all gold, private as well as monetary — which is exactly what the central banks sought to remove by creating the two-tier system.

The United States is naturally opposing any such threat, and the IMF has postponed its decision on whether to buy from South Africa.

On index at Toronto, industrials rose 2.57 to 166.61 and golds 2.56 to 213.72. Base metals fell .33 to 12.31 and western oils .87 to 208.10.

Volume was 23,282,000 shares compared with 20,823,000 last week. Gains outnumbered declines 424 to 319.

On the Montreal and Canadian exchanges, the composite index rose 2.42 to 158.74. Combined volume was 5,307,000 shares compared with 5,945,000. Advances outnumbered declines 186 to 137.



HUSKY TOWER

. . . on the Calgary scene

Tallest Tower Twirling

CALGARY (CP) — Premier E. C. Manning officially opened the 62-storey Husky Tower in downtown Calgary Friday.

The $3,500,000 tower has a revolving restaurant and observation terrace at its top which offers a panoramic view of the city, the Rockies and the Prairies.

The developers, Husky Oil Co. and Marathon Realty Co. Ltd., claim it is the tallest structure of its kind in North America.

Mr. Manning said the rare combination of two companies, engaged in different fields of endeavor, showed a remarkable sense of corporate citizenship which aimed to serve the needs of the entire community.

"It will be a chief tourist attraction to visitors to Calgary and will contribute to the prosperity of the whole province," he said.

The restaurant, seating 210, revolved completely once each hour. The observation terrace will accommodate 250. Two elevators whisk 25 persons at a time from ground to top in a minute and three seconds. There are 762 steps from top to bottom. The tower is devoted exclusively to sightseers and diners and has no business office space.

The 24,000,000-pound tower will be opened to the public Sunday.

Some 3,000 cubic feet of concrete were used for the landmark. It is 94½ feet across the eight-foot-thick base upon which the tower rests 20 feet below ground level.

The top of the tower pod varies from 78½ feet to 89 feet across just under bubble skydomes in the roof. The stainless steel top structure is painted and includes Husky's orange color.

WHY REAL ESTATE?

Real Estate today is regarded as a career and a profession. It is possibly one of the most responsible of all services dealing in sales. It is a profession where sales-oriented men and women can determine their future and income directly through their own efforts.

WHY COLONY?

Colony is one of Victoria's leading firms. It is surprisingly only eight years old, yet enjoys the prestige of having its offices in a new building built specifically for Colony. It enjoys a reputation of integrity, originality and progressiveness. It is the only Real Estate firm on Vancouver Island with the ASK Computer, designed for Real Estate listing and sales, affiliated with realty firms throughout North America.

Look into Real Estate, it could be your calling. Look into Colony's training programme. There is not another like it in Victoria.

Form Own Harbor Board?

Director Pat Frumento told Victoria Chamber of Commerce directors Friday the CNR and department of transport are not coming up to expectations on Ogden Point development — and it might be time for Victoria to form its own harbor board.

He added harbor boards in other cities — notably Nanaimo and New Westminster — had been effective in starting things moving.

The Chamber of Commerce traffic and transportation committee, under chairman George Farmer, has been working with the CNR and DoT for months to get action on the rehabilitation of Ogden Point with the aim of improving the city's position

OVER GULF ISLANDS IN 25 YEARS

3.5 Million Travelled Route

By AB KENT
Business Editor

A milestone in Canadain aviation slipped by unnoticed this month, but the wife of a Victoria eye specialist remembers a beautiful flight over the Gulf Islands 25 years ago.

This was the first passenger flight of a twice-daily service by Trans-Canada Air Lines that linked the capital city with Vancouver, and the young stewardess aboard was Betty Hemingson, a registered nurse from Virden, Man.

Her flight took place June 5, 1943, carrying reporters and VIPs the day before official commerical service to Victoria began. The one-time stewardess, now Mrs. Chris Moore, remembers:

"We were all invited to Government House — it was Lieutenant-Governor Woodward then — and we had lunch there. Our pilot was Capt. Art Rankin, who died just recently in Vancouver.

"I am reminded of how beautiful the flowers were and how attractive was the setting around Government House.

"The planes flew much lower then and the views over the Gulf were beautiful."

It was a Lockheed 14, which carried 14 passengers and was known as the Lodestar, a doughty aircraft of a type used to begin Trans-Canada service in October 1937 and continued flying for the airline until after the war.

Since that June day in 1943 Trans-Canada has carried 3.5 million passengers on the Vancouver Island-mainland route, meanwhile graduating to such larger aircraft as the DC3 and Vickers Viscount, now having 48-passenger capacity on 10 flights a day.

Mrs. Moore recalls that joining the airline when she did was an "exciting, novel employment for a girl.

"The salary was quite high, and with the dirty thirties just ended, money was not very plentiful then. It was an exciting venture, and in the war years most passengers were VIPs like admirals, so it was interesting from that standpoint."

The Manitoba girl was among the first 140 stewardesses trained by Trans-Canada in Winnipeg, each required to be a registered nurse, and between 22 and 26 years old.

Starting in 1941, she flew out of Lethbridge, Winnipeg and Vancouver, and became a supervisor before leaving the line in 1947.

Although the first permanent commercial air link to the mainland has passed without ceremony, Air Canada has taken the trouble to enshrine the company's first new aircraft, a Lockheed Electra 10A bearing the registration CF-TCA, which in its time flew the Vancouver-Victoria-Seattle route, before being sold as surplus.

This plane was re-purchased recently from an American owner and restored to like-new condition by Air Canada aircraftsmen in Montreal to be presented to the National Museum of Science and Technology for permanent display at the aviation museum, Uplands airport, Ottawa.

Long-Term Bonds Active

TORONTO (CP) — Corporate and long-term Canada bonds were the most actively traded issues on the Canadian bond market this week. Provincials and short-term Canadas were mostly unchanged. In convertible corporates, Simpsons 5½-per-cent Sept. 15, 1979, jumped 10 points to 170 bid. There was no offering. Trans-Canada Pipe Lines 5-per-cent Dec. 1, 1989, fell five to 92½ bid and 95½ asked and Shop and Save 1957 Ltd. Dec. 15, 1986, 4½ to 100½ bid and 114½ asked.

Acklands 7½-per-cent June 15, 1988, gained three to 106½ bid and 108½ asked and Home Oils 5½-per-cent, 1984, 2½ to 117 bid and 120 asked.

In non-convertible issues, Trans-Canada Pipe Lines 5.85-per-cent, 1987, slipped two to 79½ bid and 82½ asked and Anglo Pulp 6½-per-cent, 1986, 2½ to 84½ bid and 87½ asked.

In long-term Canadas, the 5¾-per-cent Sept. 1, 1992, issue picked up one to 89¾ bid and 90¾ asked and the 5½-per-cent Aug. 1, 1980, issue one-half to 8¼ bid and 90¼ asked.

Day-to-day money slipped one-half to 5¼ per cent and 91-day treasury bills closed at 6.56 per cent and 182-day bills at 6.51, respectively compared with 6.66 and 6.62.

NO SETTLEMENT WITH PILOTS

MONTREAL (CP) — Cleve Kidd, executive vice-president of the Canadian Air Line Pilots Association, says no settlement of conciliation board negotiations is in sight between Air Canada and the pilots.

Negotiations have been in progress since February under board chairman Maxwell Cohen, dean of McGill University's law faculty.

Mr. Kidd said in a statement there are more than 400 Air Canada pilots earning from $600 to $700 a month. Pilots with three or more years service might average as high as $17,500 a year.

IT'S MY VIEW . . .

By Ernie Fedoruk

It's hardly the season, and the fine folk along the West Coast may not give a hoot about those hockey arguments originating on the Prairies. Until some of the missing pieces were linked together in recent days, my apathy measured about the same as yours.

Now that the picture seems clearer, it would seem that Canadian hockey is heading towards the greatest storm in its history. The Prairie-originated rebellion is serious.

It started when the Western Junior League — made up of teams in Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba — announced it will cease to be guided by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association. The Canadian Hockey Association came into being. Subsequently, a Western Ontario Junior League also severed ties with the CAHA and shook hands with the CHA.

He met with the B.C. Junior League operators last weekend in Penticton, and Victoria's delegation was unanimous in its declaration that Butlin is a very impressive personality.

"He spoke for a full hour," said Cougars' manager Bob Reid, "and there wasn't a single thing on which he could be tripped. He had all his facts, and made more sense than anyone I've met in a long, long time."

●

B.C.'s junior operators came away convinced that Butlin and his CHA rebels have no intention of backing down from their threats to establish a second Canadian hockey organization. They've come too far, he informed the B.C. league, and there is nothing in Canada's law books which says amateur hockey teams of our nation must be ruled by one association.

What's it all about?

Much of the present argument deals with the lowering of the junior age limit. That isn't the main issue, but merely the fuse that touched off the fireworks.

Basically, the CHA is dissatisfied with the manner in which the CAHA has handled junior hockey, and especially with the CAHA's five-year agreement with the National Hockey League.

The CAHA-NHL agreement is so ridiculously one-sided, said Butlin, the major league should "double the salary" of the man responsible for securing it — Clarence Campbell.

"Butlin," said Reid, "says he has no quarrel with Campbell. He regards the NHL president as a good businessman who made a good deal for his organization.

"Butlin cited a case in which a graduating junior was drafted (from the CAHA) by a certain NHL club . . . for $3,000. The pro club turned around a few days later and sold him to another team for $35,000.

"The draft price is firm . . . $3,000, regardless of the fact the draftee may be another Bobby Orr or Bobby Hull."

●

If the reactions of Reid and Victoria coach Doug Anderson can be used as an example, it would seem Butlin is getting his message across. He has stirred up every hockey official in the land, and has the public asking questions.

Canada is the cradle of hockey, yet it can lay claim to only four professional hockey teams. The glory days of senior hockey is a thing of the past, and junior hockey is all that seems to matter now.

The CAHA hasn't exactly distinguished itself.

Butlin quite obviously is anti-NHL, but he still makes a lot of sense.

Earlier this week in Calgary, he deplored a "ridiculous" situation which allows NHL teams to sign members of the Canadian national team. He said the nationals "won't get a dime" for the players, although the CAHA, the Canadian government (you and me, when we pay taxes) through the National Fitness Council and private individuals have financed the national program for four years.

If the Canadian taxpayer is, indeed, getting the short end of the stick, then perhaps it is time for the revolution.

MAX SHIFTS GULLS TO VICTORIA ICE

Manager-coach Max McNab, who has switched the training camp of his San Diego Gulls to Victoria this year, is hoping to arrange a pre-season game with a National Hockey League Club.

"We will have some exhibition games at Memorial Arena," McNab told the Times by telephone after announcing from San Diego that the Gulls would train in Victoria. "I hope one of them will be against either Montreal Canadiens or Toronto Maple Leafs.

"They are limited in the number of pre-season games they can play, but I think we have a good chance of getting one of them to play in Victoria."

Gulls, who have set league attendance records in each of their two seasons in the Western Hockey League, have previously trained at Chilliwack.

"We have had an excellent camp at Chilliwack," McNab commented, "but I believe Victoria is an ideal location in every way. Facilities at Memorial Arena are of professional stature."

McNab has scheduled the first practice session for Monday, Sept. 16, and plans to keep his club here for about three weeks. The Gulls will return to San Diego for training drills Oct. 6 and 7 before opening their season at Denver.

Mt. Doug Sprinter Finds Legion Clinic Beneficial

By STEVE HUME

EDMONTON — Sprinter Bill Fediw has his eyes on the big time and with a little more help, like the assistance he has been getting from the Royal Canadian Legion, the Victoria athlete thinks he may just make it.

The 17-year-old star from Mt. Douglas High School was one of two Victoria athletes invited to the Legion's third national track and field clinic, running for six days at the University of Alberta here, and he says the coaching is "tremendous." Schoolmate Anne Langdale was unable to attend the clinic.

"I'm finding out all my weaknesses, and the clinic is really teaching me how to train correctly," he said Friday in an interview that took him away from his scheduled lecture on weight training.

The clinic combines lectures, films and demonstrations by specialists in the basics of weights, relay training, interval running, score orienteering, hurdling, tests and measurements.

Bill said it's all valuable, but he thinks the films may be the biggest help. Used football style, films of individual performances are looped and run continuously in slow motion, while an instructor picks out weak points. Graph checks, or eight still photographs taken over a time lapse of three strides, are another visual aid to instructions.

"I've already discovered two serious flaws in my sprint style," he said.

"My arm action has been bad, and my set for the start can be improved. I'm busy changing my arm action now, and if I alter he set of my hands. I'm sure my start will be faster."

If he comes off the blocks much faster than he does now, Bill could realize his wish to run for Canada's national team.

Screened from among 235 athletes by the Canadian Track and Field Association before receiving his invitation to come and learn from instructors like Harry Jerome and Bill Crothers, he had a best time for the 100 of 9.9 last year — and that's fast in any high-schooler's books.

Victoria schoolboy champion in the 100 and 220-yard sprints, and B.C. prep champ in the 220, Fediw, who graduated this year, has already heard from college recruiters.

"I have heard from two universities, but I'll have to give it a lot of thought," he said. "I'm not sure I will like the set-up. It will depend on the kind of scholarships offered."

He says he is considering the University of Victoria.

"Maybe not this season, but the season after if I don't take any scholarships."

SUGGESTIONS FROM THE MASTER

One of biggest battles at training camp of B.C. Lions at Royal Roads is struggle to capture regular quarterback job and four candidates listened attentively Friday as assistant-coach Jackie Parker, one of greatest quarterbacks in history of Canadian Football League, offered suggestions. Listening to suggestions from former master signal-caller are (left to right) Henry Schichtle, Pete Ohler, Paul Brothers and Tim Murphy. (Times photo by Irving Strickland.)

BRADY, EVENSON

Fullback Duel In Lion Camp

There were some minor casualties at Royal Roads Friday but the B.C. Lions appeared in remarkable condition for their second day of pre-season training.

Although they were going through only their second and third drills since reporting to the training camp, head coach Jim Champion had the Lions running through five plays, working on defence and pass patterns, and engaging in some hitting.

Condition of most of the players bidding for regular berths with the Canadian Football League club was encouraging to Champion and his assistants, who planned to step up the tempo in weekend workouts.

Loaded with muscle, the team is physically much larger than last season and the 61 players in camp add up to something like six tons of gridiron beef on the hoof. Biggest of all is Bob Hoskins, a defensive end from Wichita State University, who steps in at six-three and 270 pounds.

Champion will keep the Leos hustling through two workouts daily until the club returns to Vancouver July 9. The afternoon sessions, starting at 3:30, will be open to the public.

Expected to be excused from running today were offensive ends Sonny Homer and Lach Heron, who pulled thigh muscles in Friday's drills.

One player, 245-pound import guard Maurice Bates, was released because of a knee problem, but veteran lineman Dick Fouts arrived in camp Friday and was on the field today.

LEROY APPEARS SET

Two of the most impressive performers Friday were Dale Brady, a 215-pounder from Memphis State, and Jim Evenson, a 220-pounder from Oregon. Ironically, both Evenson and Brady are waging a duel for the fullback position and there seems little possibility either will be shifted to offensive halfback since sophmore Leroy Sledge apparently has that spot locked up.

Leroy, a 21-year-old from Virginia, reported in at 235 pounds and could be in for another great season after being an instant success with the Lions last year. Sledge packed the ball 58 times for a five-yard average, caught 41 passes for 911 yards, paced the club with the longest rushing gain — 62 yards — and the longest passing play — 81 yards.

Players Favor Strike Following Phone Poll

DETROIT (AP) — Representatives of players and owners of National Football League teams have refused to comment on their secret meeting Friday to discuss complaints and a possible strike by the 640 league players.

The NFL players seek a minimum salary similar to that of the major baseball leagues. NFL players now get an allowance of $10 a day when in training or playing an exhibition game. They seek $500 each for all exhibition games.

In addition, the association asks that each club contribute $100,000 to the pension plan and pay a $15,000 minimum salary.

Managements of the 16 clubs have contended the demands are excessive. The players have asked to be shown which team profit margins cannot support payment of the proposed contributions.

WILLING TO STRIKE

Players had been polled by telephone and most are willing to strike if their demands are not met.

Exact make-up of the secret meeting could not be determined.

The committee appointed by the NFL owners to negotiate with the players consists of Vince Lombardi, general manager of Green Bay Packers; Wellington Mara Jr., president of New York Giants; Rankin Smith, president of Atlanta Falcons; Jim Finks, Minnesota Vikings general manager, and George Halas Jr., president and general manager of Chicago Bears.

PIGGOTT RIDES RIBERO TO IRISH DERBY PRIZE

DUBLIN — Superbly ridden by Britain's leading jockey, American-owned Ribero drew away in the final furlong to win the Irish Derby today and record one of the biggest upsets in racing.

Ridden by Lester Piggott, Ribero won by two lengths over the odds-on favorite, Sir Ivor, also American-owned. The French horse Val d'Aoste was third, another two lengths behind, and Laudamus finished forth in the 1½-mile race that carried the hopes of millions who had bought Irish sweepstake tickets.

Piggott had ridden Sir Ivor to a dramatic victory in the recent English Derby. For a time, it appeared his change of mounts in the Irish Derby would back-fire. Sir Ivor, trailing from the start, made a move at the half-way point. But inside the final furlong, Ribero came storming through to win the first prize of $142,659.

It was Piggott's third victory in the Irish Derby. He won on Meadow Court in 1965 and on Ribocco last year.

Hungry Rookie Quebec Leader

MONTREAL (CP) — After the disastrous financial year Dick Carmody has had so far on the pro golf tour, he likely would be willing to swim to the Quebec Open title that will be decided today.

And if the weather doesn't improve he might just have to do that.

Carmony, 30, from Palm Springs, Calif., moves into the final 18 holes with his eye on the $2,500 first prize—a considerable larger pay day than he has had this year.

So far in 1968—his rookie year on the tour—Carmody has won only $50 in 16 tournament appearances.

Friday Carmody fired a 70 for the second consecutive day over the water-logged Islesmere Club course for a one-shot lead over Bob Boldt of Eugene, Ore., and Moe Norman of Gilford, Ont.

However, Alvie Thompson of Toronto, the first-round leader with a 68 Thursday, had trouble on the sodden greens all day and jumped to a three-over 75 Friday.

Dufour had a 73 for the day Cox 74 and Whibley 72.

In all, 51 pros who scored 153 or less for the two rounds and 20 amateurs under 155 totals, were to start the final round.

In addition to Trapp, who scored a 73 Friday, and Cox, Wayne Vollmer (75-74—149), Lyle Crawford (76-75—151), Bill Wright (75-77—152) and Victoria's Bill Wakeham (75-76—151) were other British Columbia pros to qualify for the final round.

The leaders:

Dick Carmody, U.S.	70-70—140
Bob Boldt, U.S.	72-69—141
Moe Norman, Gilford, Ont.	70-71—141
Bob Cox, Vancouver	69-74—143

Gray Colors Adanac Club A Sorry Blue

Fast Start and Forbes Inspire Shamrocks to Jinx-Holding Win

PORTLAND — Billy Gray and Victoria Shamrocks weren't asking any questions. They left it all to Portland Adanacs.

You can't blame Portland players for asking the questions — or talking to themselves — after the Shamrocks clipped Adanacs 9-6 in National Lacrosse Association activity here Friday.

For one thing, Portland has yet to claim a point from Victoria in six games. Adanacs did win one here, but the decision was reversed in a committee room because Portland used an ineligible player.

NO ORDER CAME

During Friday's game, Portland players began to wonder if, perhaps, Gray should have been declared ineligible. The hard-rock Victoria rearguard drew two misconducts when the Rocks dropped Adanacs 10-6 on Wednesday.

No suspension order came, and Gray made the most of it. He got the Rocks rolling Friday, and then left it up to Barry Forbes to keep the Irish on top.

Gray's bustling set up Ron Zilkie for the game's first goal. Gray scored the second on an unassisted effort. Tom McVie got one back for Portland to make it 2-1, then Gray took over aain, passing to Nirmal Dillon.

That made it 3-1, and the Rocks never looked back. Vern Black and Ranjit Dillon made it 5-1, and Forbes' outstanding goaltending inspired the Victoria team to stay ahead.

Forbes, at his best in holding Adanacs to a single goal in the final period, finished the night with 33 stops while rival Joe Comeau blocked 28.

Ranjit Dillon joined Gray as three-point performer, scoring twice and setting up a third. Shamrocks' other goals went to Bill Spotswood, Don McNeill and Ken Alexander.

QUIET ACTION

In contrast to Wednesday's game, Friday's action was "tame." Victoria drew three minor penalties, Portland four. Adanacs scored two of their goals on power-play situations.

The victory lifted Victoria into a three-way tie for the league lead with Vancouver and New Westminster.

Victoria coach Dave Unwin had high praise for his charges. He was especially delighted in the manner in which they "dug hard for loose balls."

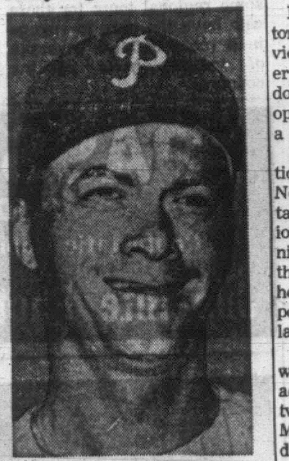
Angels Foul Bunts But Fool Senators

Bunning-Fryman Duel Deteriorates Into 10-1 Ramble for Pittsburgh

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Manager Bill Rigney of California Angels has decided to give up bunting.

Four times Rigney flashed bunt signs to California hitters in the 11th inning against Washington Senators Friday night. And four times, he received foul balls.



JIM BUNNING
. . . easy winner

But the Angels beat the Senators 1-0 without any bunts. The victory completed a doubleheader sweep for the Angels, who downed Washington 4-3 in the opener with Jim Fregosi hitting a three-run homer.

In other American League action, Oakland Athletics edged New York Yankees 3-2, Minnesota Twins downed Baltimore Orioles 5-2 and Detroit Tigers nipped Chicago White Sox 5-4 in the first game of a doubleheader. The second game was postponed by rain as was Cleveland's game at Boston.

Chuck Hinton opened the 11th with a walk. Rigney, trying to advance the runner to second, twice gave bunt signs to Don Mincher. No luck, but Mincher did work Darold Knowles for a walk.

Now with runners at first and second, Rigney gave the bunt sign to Rick Reichardt, who responded with a couple of foul balls. Rigney let Reichardt swing away and the Angel outfielder lined a double to left, scoring Hinton.

NO MORE BUNTS

"No more bunts," swore Rigney. "We aren't going to bunt any more as long as it turns out this way.

Fregosi's homer in the third and a run-scoring single by Mincher in the eighth gave the Angels just enough cushion to stand off Mike Epstein's three-run homer poke in the first game.

The Athletics bunched singles by Rick Monday, John Donaldson, Sal Bando and Reggie Jackson for two runs in the sixth against Stan Bahnsen, then added another run on Monday's sacrifice fly in the eighth.

Harmon Killebrew snapped a 16-game dry spell with his first home run since June 9, helping Minnesota whip Baltimore. Killebrew's 13th of the season was a two-run shot.

Mickey Stanley's two-run homer in the seventh gave the Tigers their comeback victory against the White Sox. Pete Ward had hit a two-run shot putting Chicago on top in the top half of the inning.

FIRST MEETING

Jim Bunning and Woody Fryman, principals in a multi-player winter trade between Pittsburgh Pirates and Philadelphia Phillies, pitched against each other for the first time this season Friday night.

But the anticipated duel deteriorated into a 10-1 romp for the Pirates and Bunning, who scattered eight hits and knocked in three runs with a double and single on the way to his first victory since May 6.

Elsewhere in the National League, Houston Astros thwarted New York's latest bid to reach the .500 mark by trimming the Mets 7-2, Atlanta Braves blanked Los Angeles Dodgers 3-0, San Francisco Giants downed Cincinati Reds 4-3 and St. Louis Cardinals slugged Chicago Cubs 9-5.

Bunning, whose arrival in Pittsburgh was looked upon as the salvation of the Pirates' troubled pitching staff, took a 3-9 record and a 3.69 earned run average into his first appearance against his former teammates. Plagued by groin and ankle injuries, the 36-year-old right-hander had lost seven in a row.

Fryman, the southpaw who went to the Phillies with three others in exchange for Bunning, had rebounded from a 3-8 season at Pittsburgh by winning 10 of 16 decisions this year. He was 7-0 in Connie Mack Stadium and had a brilliant ERA of 1.81.

Faster Pace For Junior Net Tourney

Officials of the Pacific regional junior tennis tournament were keeping anxious eyes on the skies this morning.

Rain wrecked their first-day schedule Friday and this morning they had the young swatters poised for an accelerated program of matches to enable them to catch up on postponed matches and reach the finals Monday as planned.

Contestants in the four-day tourney were required to report early this morning and were assigned to matches on courts at four locations — Racquet Club, University of Victoria, University School and Oak Bay Tennis Club.

Information on matches may be obtained by calling the Racquet Club.

NEW DATE SET

PARIS (UPI) — The French Sports Car Federation said the 24-hour Le Mans Grand Prix auto classic would be held Sept. 28-29. The race was postponed because of the student-riots crisis in France last month.

VICTORIANS INVITED ON SECOND THOUGHTS

Goaltender Barry Sadler and forward Ike MacKay are in Toronto today after being apparently snubbed when B.C. selections of players to try out for Canada's World Cup soccer team were originally announced.

Although nominated by the B.C. Football Commission, the two stars of Victoria O'Keefes were not included when the first invitations were issued by the Dominion association. Fullback Daye Stothard was the lone Victoria candidate.

However, there was apparently a second thought, and Ike and Barry received belated invitations. They left for the Toronto trials Friday night from Vancouver.

CLEVELAND LEADER

Archer Supports A Putting Theory

CLEVELAND (AP) — George Archer, in his fifth year on the professional golf circuit, has his sights set on a pretty lofty goal.

"I'd like to be the best putter on the tour," Archer says. "A fellow like that can make the most money."

The fast-talking Californian already is rated one of the best putters around and showed some of his magic Friday by shooting a six-under par 65.

USES 53 PUTTS

He needed only 53 putts in the first two rounds on the 6,742-yard Lakewood Country Club layout.

Aaron came in with a 66 Friday and South American Roberto de Vicenzo and Californian Dave Stockton were only two strokes back.

At 139 were Fred Marti, Dave Marr and South African Bobby Cole. Roy Pace, Dale Douglass, Frank Beard and Dan Sikes stood at 140.

Arnold Palmer and Lee Trevino were back in the pack. Trevino, brash U.S. open king, posted a 71 Friday for a 143 while Palmer also shot even par 71 following a disastrous 75 Thursday. He was at 146 and barely survived the cut.

One Sandra Dull, Second Consistent

BALTIMORE (AP) — Sandra Haynie, looking for her first victory on the 1968 Ladies Professional Golf Association tour, carded a two-under-par 34-36-70 Friday to take a one-stroke lead in the first round of the 54-hole Lady Carling open.

Kathy Whitworth, a two-time Baltimore winner who beat Miss Haynie on the last hole in the 1962 tournament here, fired a one-under-par 36-35-71 for her best round on the Pine Ridge course.

Tied for third with even-par rounds of 72 were Betsy Cullen, equalling her best round of the year, former Baltimore champion Clifford Ann Creed and rookie Debie Austin.

Sandra Post, the 20-year-old rookie from Oakville, Ont., who whipped Miss Whitworth by seven shots in a playoff for the LPGA championship last Monday, finished with a 75 and admitted being "as dull as anything."

Scoring 73s were the defending champion and favorite, Mickey Wright, a four-time winner this year, and Carol Mann.

Miss Haynie, who has been in the runnerup position twice this season and in the top 20 in all 12 tournaments, was as consistent as anyone on the course, hitting 15 greens and going over par on only one hole to go along with three birdies.

Carlings Finally In Winners' Circle

It wasn't surprising that there was something of a celebrations in the Carling softball camp Friday night.

The Carls had reason for cheers. After going to the post 16 times without a victory in the Victoria Senior Softball League they finally turned on their tormentors Friday night at Central Park.

Colony Inn was the victim as the Carls, despite making their task tougher by committing four errors, came from behind for a 7-6 triumph.

BISHOP HOMERS

In the top half of the final inning it seemed Carlings were destined to suffer their usual fate when Steve Bishop slammed a two-run homer to send Colony into a 6-5 lead.

However, this was another night and Carlings made it look almost easy as they got the two runs they needed.

Winning-pitcher Wade Burns cracked a double to start the bottom half of the frame. He rode home on a triple by Ernie Savoie, who scored the winning tally when Norm Curran followed with a sacrifice fly to centre field.

Colwood Leading Cup Golf Series

Royal Colwood Golf and Country Club took the lead in women's team competition for the Bliss Cup by defeating Uplands at Colwood Thursday in the first half of the annual home-and-home series.

In distaff competition for Colwood members, Mike Price and Mardi Shook tied for "A" division honors, Freda Munch and Janet Marshall shared "B" laurels and Ena Howard topped the "C" section.

EX-BEAR DIES

Russian Upsets Aging Gonzales

Alexander Metreveli, 23, No. 1 of the Soviet Union, upset the veteran from Los Angeles Friday 4-6, 6-4, 6-3, 7-5 in the third round.

Metrevelli shattered Gonzales' dream of winning his first Wimbledon, at age 40. The American competed here only once before—in 1949 just before turning pro. But open tennis brought him back after 19 years.

Because of a backlog caused by rain, Gonzales had to play his second singles match in two days. Normally he would have been given a day's rest between.

Also Friday, Rod Laver, Australian pro who is the top seed, posted a 6-4, 3-6, 7-5, 6-3 victory over Marty Riessen of Evanston, Ill.

Two former Wimbledon champions from the 1950's were toppled.

Alex Olmedo, champion in 1959, lost 5-7, 1-6, 1-6 to Australian pro Roy Emerson, who won the title in 1964 and 1965. Peruvian-born Olmedo is now a coach in Los Angeles.

Australian Lew Hoad, champion in 1956 and 1957, went down 3-6, 11-9, 6-1, 3-6, 3-6 to Bob Hewitt, South Africa's Australian-born Davis Cup star.

Young Go All Out For 'Jazzu Kissas'

Tokyo is not the "Mod Capital" of the world, but it is one of the "swingingest" for nightlife buffs, particularly for the younger set who don't want to pay the prices of the big-name nightclubs.

For first-time visitors to the world's largest city, Japan Air Lines' experts recommend visits to a Shinjuku jazz club, a Japanese coffee shop, and a ride on the top of Tokyo Tower.

The young Japanese who patronize the jazzu kissas (jazz clubs) which crowd the narrow alleys of Shinjuku listen to the latest Ramsey Lewis trio or Wes Montgomery records with the reverence of devotees for their cult.

Sitting quietly with abstract expressions, or sprawled comfortably in their chairs, the music washes over them to the exclusion of all else.

In one such club, Dug, visitors are welcomed with warmth and friendliness. Large speakers cling to the panelled walls of the long, narrow room. Comfortable chairs and couches surround tables.

The owner, Tetsuro, claims he has 3,000 long-play jazz records in his collection. He also owns Dig, another jazz club a few blocks away.

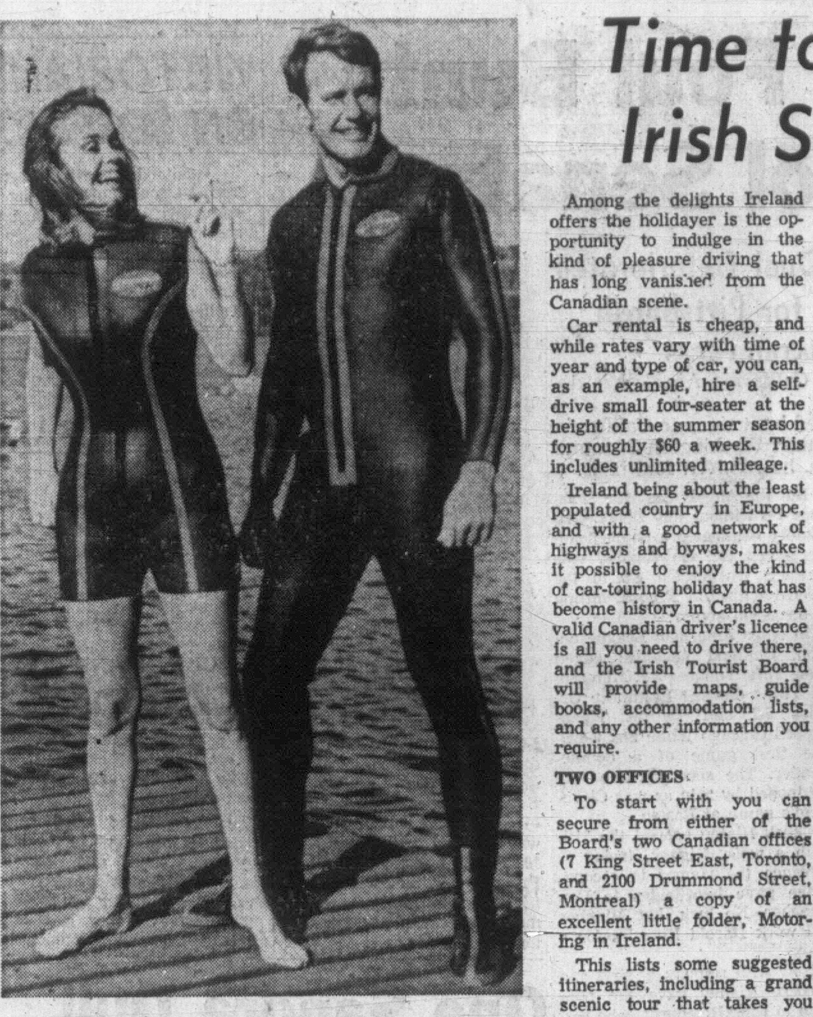
Thousands of coffee shops abound throughout Tokyo. There are two extremes — the modern and traditional.



IF YOU GET your kicks sailing the blue Pacific then these matching neoprene suits will come in handy when the north wind blows. While both suits are almost identical, pants and sleeves can be added for protection against the elements. The suits were featured at a London boat show. (CP Wirephoto).

Wiggle Up Road To Giant Lens

MT. PALOMAR, Calif. — This mountain top is about a mile closer to the stars than the valley below, but that's not much help when the telescope you're looking at can see for 5,876,068,880,000,000,000 miles.

That's the range of the world's giant, 200-inch Hale telescope — 5 sextillion, 876 quintillion, 68 quadrillion, 880 trillion, give or take a few extra million miles.

A good high-gear road wriggles up the mountain to the broad valley forested with oaks and pines where the great silver dome looms high as a 12-storey building. Visitors are welcome inside the glassed-in balcony to hear a recorded story of the giant 'scope.

GREAT TUBE

The great tube, suspended in a massive yoke, looks like nothing so much as a giant's space gun. In itself as tall as an eight-storey building and weighing 500 tons, it is so delicately balanced that it could be turned with a touch of a finger.

The big eye at the base of the tube is a 200-inch mirror of pyrex glass. It weighs over 14 tons and took over 11 years to polish. The mirror's contour is so delicate that it would be distorted by body heat were it not for the glass walls of the balcony.

No one peeks directly through the telescope. The "looking" is done with a sensitive camera plate. And what the camera sees is likely as not to be some heavenly object that is long since gone. Because the telescope sees so far that the light it picks up may have started its journey in outer space a billion years ago.

Car Crash Kills Grit Candidate

MONTREAL (CP) — Gerard Rondeau, 35, unsuccessful Liberal candidate in the June 25 federal general election, died today of injuries suffered in a traffic accident on the North Shore Autoroute near Montreal.

Mr. Rondeau came second in Joliette riding with 12,223 votes, losing to Progressive Conservative Roch Lasalle by 289 votes.

Time to Enjoy Irish Scenery

Among the delights Ireland offers the holidayer is the opportunity to indulge in the kind of pleasure driving that has long vanished from the Canadian scene.

Car rental is cheap, and while rates vary with time of year and type of car, you can, as an example, hire a self-drive small four-seater at the height of the summer season for roughly $60 a week. This includes unlimited mileage.

Ireland being about the least populated country in Europe, and with a good network of highways and byways, makes it possible to enjoy the kind of car-touring holiday that has become history in Canada. A valid Canadian driver's licence is all you need to drive there, and the Irish Tourist Board will provide maps, guide books, accommodation lists, and any other information you require.

TWO OFFICES

To start with you can secure from either of the Board's two Canadian offices (7 King Street East, Toronto, and 2100 Drummond Street, Montreal) a copy of an excellent little folder, Motoring in Ireland.

This lists some suggested itineraries, including a grand scenic tour that takes you around the coast of both the Republic of Ireland and Northern Ireland.

This tour is planned for the traveller who wants to cover as much ground as possible in a reasonably short time and is arranged so as to be conveniently undertaken in 10 days.

All told, it covers just over 1,000 miles and takes in the main scenic regions and most of the tourist highlights.

The folder also includes some regional tours for those who have the time to engage in a more detailed coverage of various parts of the country.

Everyone Laughed When He Said TV

By AL FORREST

It was more than 10 years ago that a young University of B.C. football quarterback was working for a newspaper during the summer.

His name was Richie Eustis.

He was a pretty fair quarterback. Liked to throw the long bomb. Strictly a passer.

Not a bad writer, too.

But he was discontent.

"I'm discontent," he said to his sports editor who went by the name of yours truly.

MARTIN
. . . high finance

"Discontent?" I said. "How could you be? You're young, healthy, energetic and making $40 per week."

"Yeah, that's true," he said.

Came the fall and Richie returned to UBC.

But college was not very exciting and the football team kept losing — in those days UBC lost to EVERYBODY (scores like 46-0 . . . fun!).

One day Richie said:

"UBC is for the birds. I am going away."

"What to do?" he was asked.

"Where?"

"Toronto."

"When?"

And he walked out the door.

History has not recorded whether he walked, ran or hitch-hiked to Toronto but the rest of the story after his arrival is documented in lights ten feet tall.

Eustis was signed up as a writer on the Juliette show and his career was launched. When her Saturday night show folded, Richie went to California.

Instead of $40 per week it is about $40 per hour.

And he doesn't hitch-hike, it's strictly first class.

He has all the things that advertising says we should want and have.

But is he happy?

You better believe it.

●

For a quiet off-the-beaten-track rest from the cares of the tinsel world he's spending the weekend on Bowen Island and coming over to Campbell River Monday to explore the upper portions of Vancouver Island.

After another week it will be back to the frantic, hectic life of private swimming pools and cocktails.

The funniest thing about all this is that ten years ago when he said he was going away to get into television . . . everybody laughed.

NEXT WEEK — Award-winning film Helicopter Canada will be shown on Channel 8 at 9 p.m. Sunday . . . it's a splendid lighthearted look at the nation despite the plugs which say it covers all Canada from Nova Scotia to the Rocky Mountains . . . if you are getting up at 8 a.m. Monday, Canada Day, you can see the unveiling of the monument of Prime Minister Mackenzie King on Channel 2 . . . a documentary on Centennial Year is re-run at 7:30 p.m. Monday on Channel 6 . . . Janet Leigh stars in the comedy Dear Deductible at 9 p.m. Monday on Channel 5 . . . pianist Roger Williams is featured on Music Hall at 9 p.m. Tuesday on Channel 6. His songs include Dark Eyes and The Impossible Dream.

Norman DePoe raised some election night chuckles when he struggled to give some vote returns in French. He stumbled over "les Tory stranglehold" of the Prairies. An hour later he discovered there no longer was one.

AWARD JUSTIFIED

The citation said: "As company director, teacher and choreographer, he is opening a new vista to America's ballet dancers, making them proud of their international heritage yet part of the pulse of their land."

The award honored the achievements of Joffrey, a teacher-choreographer, director of a small ballet company that was acclaimed at home and abroad.

Since then, it has gained added significance as Joffrey has become artistic director of a new company which has grown rapidly and won even wider recognition.

In 1962, with financial backing from a well-to-do New Yorker, the Joffrey company flourished, and during the next two years they had successful tours of Russia and the middle east.

In March, 1966, they arranged a one-week stand at New York's City Centre and made such a hit that they were picked as the resident company of the theatre.

Joffrey and his New York City Centre Ballet will open this year's Vancouver Festival at the Queen Elizabeth Theatre on July 2.

The company will perform through July 7.

Toronto Playwright Wins Prize

OTTAWA (CP) — Night Sun, by Lennox Brown of Toronto, a play in the tradition of theatre of the absurd, has won first prize in the 29th annual Canadian Playwriting Competition.

The one-act play competition for Canadian writers, sponsored by the Ottawa Little Theatre since 1938, was adjudicated this year by 40-year-old Gordon Peacock, head of the department of drama at the University of Alberta.

Chairman of the competition, Gladys Watt, said that the 68 plays entered this year were all presented in a professional manner.

DIAMOND IN THE GROOVE

The Sadness He Pretended Was Real

By BERYL PROUDMAN

Pieces of Hancock, GGL 0245; The Blood Donor and The Radio Ham, Hancock, GGL 0270.

From 1946 when he was demobbed from the R.A.F. He worked most successfully in radio and television. In 1950 and again in 1960 he won the BBC television awadr Comedian of the Year. His popular radio show Hancock's Half Hour became even more popular when it was televised in 1956; and a few years ago when CBC imported some of the series, many Canadians became Hancock fans.

FAMOUS CLOWN

In the last seven years he has made rewarding inroads into films, and when he died was in Australia working on a new TV show. As with many famous clowns, at least part of the sadness he pretended to must have been real for him to take his life when he was only 44 years old and at the peak of a successful career.

One of Hancock's most endearing traits lay in a seeming naivete which made him expose the foolish little man who lay beneath his blustering grandiloquence, in confidential asides to the audience.

Having convinced us that the cost of keeping up with much-demanded publicity photographs is phenomenal, he explained; "I must have used up two or three sets of six in the last ten years."

Full of righteous indignation and rebellious determination to right wrongs, he found that he can only talk big and that he deflated completely when action is required.

PIECES OF HANCOCK

In Pieces of Hancock, a parody of International Drama Festivals staged in the Scouts' Hall, East Cheam presents two contrasted plays.

Jack's Return, a most melodramatic melodrama ends in an excessive denouement when all four actors unmask.

A modern psychological drama Look Back in Hunger is hampered by a refractory curtain, an actor who cannot remember Hello Mum without a prompt, an audibly annoyed audience and the counter attraction of a boxing match.

Like Walter mitty, Anthony Hancock had a secret life. As an R.A.F. type he developed an upper lip so stiff that it could support his planewide moustache, and a nerve so cool that at 24,000 m.p.h be could lasso the controls from the tail of the plane and land it perfectly.

Chicarty Hilary, the photographer in The Publicity Photograph insults the unshaven down-drooping Hancock at every turn but he does improve his appearance by cutting the negative below the neck and above the legs and inverting it so that narrow shoulders and a broad waist become broad shoulders and a narrow waist.

The operation whereby he splices one leg down the middle and moves half over produces a pleasing slenderness in the straight-sided limbs.

As a blood donor Hancock is priceless. Outraged that he might have had "that" disease on the doctor's list, inordinately proud of his unadulterated Saxon blood—with just a dash of Viking, and elated at belonging to a rare blood group he drives the other donors to distraction.

HANCOCK
. . . an empty arm

Alone in the waiting room he sings and talks to cheer himself up as a child might. His post-donation conversation on the value of good health is a master piece of linked cliches.

LOUD ASSERTION

Fearful ignorance leads him to assert loudly; "a pint of blood, that's an armful, I'm not walking around with an empty arm for anyone" and "Without circulation you would feel as though you were walking around with a bootful of water."

His undue concern with what is to happen to his rare blood makes him badger the doctor constantly until a good use is found for the precious stuff.

For excitement he has made radio contact with people around the world.

Already suspicious that he is missing something he laments, "I can't help feeling that I'm not exploiting the medium to the extent envisioned by Marconi" when his activities are limited to a weather forecast from Tokyo, games of chess and snakes and ladders and a request to send a bread pudding to Kuala-Lumpur.

EMERGENCY CALL

When an emergency call brings exciting opportunity, no ham was ever more plagued. Annoyed neighbors pound the door, a punch-happy crane operator wrecks the set; when he finally finds a pencil it has no point and electricity fails at the crucial moment.

When surely nothing else can delay his heroic rescue efforts the valves burn out completing the saga of catastrophes.

There is something desperately sad about his final realisation that an Indian calling for help would stand a far better chance with someone else.

This pathetic ineptitude which underlay all Tony Hancock's comic endeavours made him the great clown he was to so many admirers.

Anybody's Caribbean trip gives you the Caribbean. But P&O's Fall Caribbean Holiday also gives you the Pacific, Panama and Acapulco, to boot. And does it all during one wild and wonderful two-week vacation.

Here's how it works: you fly to Nassau or Bermuda and spend as much or as little time there as you please. It's up to you and your budget. Then you board your great P&O liner, either the Canberra or Oriana—two of the biggest, happiest ships afloat. You sail through the Caribbean to Panama (great duty free bargain-hunting here). Then through the incredible Panama Canal to the Blue Pacific. Next, on to Acapulco. Finally, relax as you sail to Los Angeles, San Francisco or Vancouver.

In two explosive weeks, you see it all—plus the excitement of life aboard the great white ships. Sun-filled days. Fun-filled nights. Great food. Great people. Great times.

When would you like to leave? You can join Oriana in Bermuda on August 23 or in Nassau, August 26, or board Canberra in Nassau, September 15.

Or you can sail Oriana the other way. Leave Los Angeles October 7, get off in Bermuda October 18, then fly home whenever you please.

Or if you'd rather plan your own package, P&O ship fare starts as low as $557 First Class, $311 Tourist (start or finish in Bermuda); low as $485 First Class, $271 Tourist (Nassau start). All fares in U.S. dollars.

Outshines Them All In Role of Producer

By AUDREY JOHNSON

A new force has erupted into the Victoria theatre scene.

It blew up, almost literally overnight, with the solid success of the comedy production, The Odd Couple, in April.

ROBERT PRICE . . . the idea man

And now, with the musical, Roar of the Greasepaint successfully behind it and another noted contemporary play — Luv — scheduled for the McPherson Playhouse in late July, it can be seen that this is not short-lived mushroom growth but a force of substance and vitality.

Robert Price and Associates is its title and its nerve-centre is Robert Price himself, a dynamic nothing-ventured-nothing-win strongly theatre-oriented Victoria barrister.

ALSO ACTS

Mr. Price acts—he was one-half of the capable team that made Odd Couple a winner—but his talents are most spectacular in the vital role of producer.

That is, producer in the American sense which differs from the English in which producer and director are interchangeable terms.

The American producer is the powerhouse, the organizer, the fund-diviner, the idea man, but not the director.

In practically all previous attempts within memory to establish a professional theatre in this city, the role of producer has been the one most underrated.

The special gifts needed were never recognized or utilized if available.

Now, suddenly, in our midst we have a man who, perhaps even to his own surprise, is exhibiting the ambition and energy of the true entrepreneur.

SIX PRODUCTIONS

His organization is rapidly coagulating and has already formulated plans for five or six productions in the McPherson next winter.

All productions of Robert Price and Associates will be fully professional, he emphasizes.

Among outstanding Canadian directors who have indicated an interest in coming to Victoria to do shows under his banner are Tom Kerr and Victor Mitchell.

How did it all start? Concern for the future of the McPherson Playhouse, says Mr. Price.

With the waning situation and ability of Bastion Theatre to attract adult audiences, the potential of the charming theatre bequeathed to the city by the late financier-philanthropist, Thomas S. McPherson, seemed doomed to neglect and darkness.

ON HIS OWN

His first two productions — Odd Couple and Greasepaint — were mounted and presented on behalf of Bastion Theatre. But from now on Robert Price intends to operate on his own.

Bastion plans to maintain an intimate theatre on the top floor of the Maritime Museum and continue its school and school tour function, an area in which it has achieved considerable success.

In the meantime, Mr. Price has plans for a wide season subscription campaign and is deeply involved with all the numerous details of setting up a major professional venture.

World's Finest In Young Talent

Victoria Symphony Society's forthcoming season will present a unique opportunity to Victoria audiences to hear some of the world's finest young talents, winners of the most prestigious international music competitions.

EIGHT COUNTRIES

Altogether eight countries will be represented in the 1968-69 international gala season which will be opened Sept. 22 and 23 by England's great piano virtuoso, Moura Lympany.

An outstanding Canadian violinist, Steven Staryk, formerly concertmaster of the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra, London, the Amsterdam Concertgebow Orchestra and Chicago Philharmonic, will play the Tchaikowsky Violin Concerto at the Oct. 6 and 7 concerts.

PRIZE WINNERS

The prizewinners to appear with the orchestra will include Karine Georgian, cellist, Soviet Union; Oscar Ghiglia, classical guitarist, Italy, pupil and assistant of Andre Segovia; Yossi Zivoni, Israeli violinist who won the Queen Elizabeth, Munich and Paganini Competitions.

Pianists are James Dick, United States, winner of the Tchaikowsky and Leventritt competitions; Dimitri Bashkirov, Soviet Union, and Camille Inkman, Victoria.

Butchart Garden Stage Comes Alive on Monday

Summer entertainment in Victoria begins to roll Monday when the Butchart Gardens floral stage comes alive with the 1968 version of last summer's highly popular revue, Just for Fun.

In the main this is an entirely fresh show — although two items, the colorful Toy Parade and Changing of the Guard, are being repeated by popular demand.

Many of last season's star performers are back, including Gini Lefever, Marge Bridgman, Murray McAlpine and Robin Ross, with talented young performer Barry Flatman featured in several numbers.

THREE TIMES A WEEK

The revue will be on stage three times a week, Monday, Wednesday and Friday, throughout the summer.

Among new production numbers will be the opening, Walking Happy, an African episode, one entitled Big Spender, and a flying number.

Extensive work has been done this season on back stage areas and the orchestra pit, thus much improving the physical means of producing the show.

From the audience viewpoint this will mean a smoother and generally better show as far as sound and movement are concerned.

Director, choreographer and designer of Just for Fun, is Bebe Eversfield. Christopher Ross is assistant to the producers and has also directed certain numbers.

BIG BAND SOUND

On Tuesday evenings, David Pepper will conduct a 25-piece orchestra — brass, woodwinds and strings, the latter from the ranks of Victoria Symphony — in a show entitled The Big Band Sound.

This program takes a look at five decades of the cream of popular music, beginning in the twenties and coming up to what is contemporary.

Songs from each of the decades will be performed by Ruth Champion, John Dunbar and Alan and Mimi Robertson and the orchestra will contribute, among other things, a Glen Millar medley.

Hostess will be actress-dancer Gini Lefever.

As in the past several seasons, Thursdays will be given over to a Scottish variety show featuring the pipes and drums of the Canadian Scottish Regiment (Pincess Mary's), highland dancing, and popular baritone John Dunbar as MC.

The Grace Tuckey and Zingali Puppets will occupy early evening time Tuesdays and Thursdays with two shows Saturdays at 7:30 and 9 p.m.

TO BE HELD AT THE
ART GALLERY OF GREATER VICTORIA
THREE EVENING LECTURES ON JAPANESE ARCHITECTURE AND GARDENS
by Professor Toru Mori

Professor Toru Mori of Osaka University in Japan, one of the leading Japanese authorities on Oriental art, is well-known internationally for his extensive writings on Japanese art history. He is coming to Victoria this summer especially to lecture on Japanese art.

His lectures, which will be illustrated by slides and also printed for the benefit of those attending, are scheduled as follows:

1. Monday, July 8, at 8:00 p.m.
   Shinto and Buddhist Architecture
2. Wednesday, July 10, at 8:00 p.m.
   Stone Gardens
3. Friday, July 12, at 8:00 p.m.
   Private Houses and Gardens

Seating will be limited to 120. First consideration will be given those enrolling for the full three lectures. Admission to individual lectures for others will be accepted if space is available.

Fee for the series of three lectures will be $3.00 for Gallery members, non-members will pay $4.50.

Festival Delegates To Talk Standards

Canada-wide representation is to be found in delegates who will begin to gather this weekend at the Empress Hotel for the 19th annual convention of the Federation of Canadian Music Festivals.

Hard work by the local committee headed by Dr. J. F. K. English has paved the way for a successful convention, the first one this organization has held in Victoria.

Matters under discussion at the various sessions will include problems connected with the operation of music festivals generally, adjudicators, standards of music and extension work on behalf of music throughout Canada.

REGISTRATION

Interested persons may attend sessions on the payment of a registration fee of $10.

Entertainment has been kept down to a few highlight events in order to allow delegates, many of whom will be paying their first visit to this city, enough free time for personal choice rambles.

On Monday evening the local committee will be hosts at an informal get-together in the hotel's Georgian Lounge and on Tuesday evening it will host a visit to Butchart Gardens.

Wednesday, the provincial government will entertain delegates, the Victoria committee and special guests at a formal dinner. Hon. Ray Williston will preside.

Entertainment will include a Chinese Lantern Dance by a group from the Chinatown Lion's Club and showing of a B.C. film by Wilf Gray.

ART IN REVIEW

No Oversights . . . But It Lacks Lustre

By TED LINDBERG

Summer vistors to Victoria aren't going to be afforded a very large or comprehensive picture of the local art scene, nor does this ever seem to be true in the art centres of other cities.

Everyone puts up a "caretaker collection" and heads for the hills.

People talk about the art season which supposedly begins in the autumn and ends in the spring, like grand operas and legitimate theatre; but remember that someone eventually thought of open-air music festivals and summer stock.

Lindberg

Granted that artists need vacations like everyone else, I still can't concede that esthetic and intellectual activity must cease, just because the sun is shining.

I don't believe that art is ever out of season, except through some misalliance with an agrarian society, similar to the archaic educational calendar.

Turn It Off?

How does one turn off curiousity, the creative process or the need to relate experience?

The Art Gallery of Greater Victoria is planning a permanent summer display consisting of three exhibits: Main Elements of the Japanese Collection; European Paintings and Decorative Arts from the 15th to the 18th centuries; and a profile of Victoria artists dating from Emily Carr to the present.

The Japanese and European exhibits will of course provide endless hours of continued enjoyment, but the modest number of Victoria works may leave something to be desired by seekers of the scene.

A quick perusal of the names involved don't reveal any glaring oversights, but the exhibits seems lackluster and unrepresentative in a few cases. Here again I'm thinking of those summer visitors, like a house-proud provincial.

Yes, We Have No Bananas:

Sunflowers

but we have palette-knived sunflowers and assorted fruits by Ina D. Uhthoff (circa 1950), buttered in various yellows; and two of the deadest Herbert Siebners I've ever seen, especially compared to the sprightly graphics and paintings by him in the show just now closing at Nita Forrest's Print Gallery.

There are two paintings by Richard Ciccimarra, a Laughing (brown) Woman, adequate but common place, and a Winter Landscape of similar ilk.

Don Harvey's serigraph Shall We Dance is essentially an inexpensive edition of a Don Harvey painting, and I can't help but feel that some of that snap and momentum is lost along the way.

His newer prints have resolved this tremendously, and hopefully the Gallery will see fit to acquire examples of these as well as a major painting.

Flemming Jorgensen (who is about as prolific as Herbert Siebner) is represented by two landscapes, Friglandia composed of vertical etched lines worked against white triangles, and Piazza, a neat piece of shorthand in pastel and wash. Neither is of museum quality, which is a pity, because this artist has produced a number of worthier things.

H. V. Piddington contributes joy to any exhibit. Her colored etching, Plomberie de Poitiers is like stained glass capable of organic growth: a harmless bauble, but a thing of considerable charm and radiance.

Ten Mile Point a watercolor by William D. West, said to have caused a scandal in 1952, seems now to be a very tame and formal semi-abstracted landscape. One wonders what all the fuss was about, as in the cases of Marcel Duchamp, Picasso and others.

Woodcuts

Molly Privett's woodcut, Dinner a Deux provides evidence that someone has been effected by contemporary Japanese woodcuts, but lacks the transparent quality.

The English landscape school (which effects so much of what until recently was Canadian art) is perfectly reflected in Tidal Patterns expertly and faithfully rendered by Brian Travers-Smith.

This, I suppose, will forever be an essential part of Victorian art, as will be illustrations of aquatic birds, such as Fenwick Lansdowne's Cormorants.

Another painter, John Dobereiner, is represented by a single print titled Carnival, a black and white collagraph. There is some nice textury imagery to linger with here: the prints are getting better at this point.

Pat Martin Bates' etching and aquaint, amusingly saddled with Dislimination of the Silent Rounds, are beautifully laundered and wrung-out Italian poppies (carried home in a pocket dictionary), pressed confetti, pressed tin cans, pressed geometry, pressed ideas, pressed colors. It takes a pack-rat to know a pack-rat.

The ink and wash drawings of P. K. Irwin are unparallelled, I guess, in any collection. They are laboriously finished, free-associational forms and values; extremely personal psychic footprints, both art and wordless pages of some hour-by-hour diary. Her The Unmoving brings to mind Dore sans Dante.

Historical Value

Margaret Peterson's Vision at Klukwah and The Splitting of the Tiamat owe a great deal to the discrete stylizations of native Indian art as reassembled into contemporary formats: this preferable, perhaps, to the literal rendering of totems and artifacts as practised on occasion, by Emily Carr.

The Carrs owned by the Gallery have enormous historical and monetary value, and this exhibit includes several paintings dated as far back as 1913, when Miss Carr painted the Brittany Coast in a predictable Fauvist manner.

There are two portraits by Myfanwy Pavelic: a charcoal sketch and an oil painting; very respectable in an academic manner, but unfortunately dated, like other popular cliches.

Maxwell Bates is Maxwell Bates. Victoria may claim him, but he belongs to the nation. He is represented in this gathering by two paintings. Bates paints what he sees, which is not what you may think I mean.

'Early' Morris

I refer particularly to The Cocktail Party, one of his favored subjects. If you have ever had any divine insights after a couple of well-iced fortifications, you may immediately have shared the 20-20 vision (corrected or un-) of Max Bates. Or, you can smell the damp earth in Workmen, and confront his unsmiling, doll-armed Character. Bates is Bates.

The Gallery has now acquired an "early Michael Morris" and a "recent Michael Morris." Hereby the two hangs a parable concerning the state of affairs in the really contemporary scene. You don't have to be old, any more, to rate retrospective treatment. Things move too fast.

I've seen several more of this chap's paintings since the last time I passed judgment, and I've decided he's got a great deal more going for him. Compare his Sunflower with Mrs. Uhthoff's, on the one hand; and compare his Untitled Multiple with the rest of the show.

Gives one pause; what?

Expo Party Paid Off In Profits

MONTREAL (CP) — Expo 67 ended in the black, retiring Deputy Commissioner General Robert F. Shaw said here in an interview.

Mr. Shaw, who left Friday for a world tour, said total revenues of the world exposition exceeded $406,000,000 while the deficit has been set at $285,000,000 — a profit of $121,000,000.

The report will be submitted to the Canadian government by the Canadian Corporation for the 1967 World Exhibition and is expected to be tabled in the House of Commons during the first month of its next session.

Ming China, Where's That? Asks 'Intellectual' Beauty

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Young blonde actresses are persuaded by studios or press agents to say something intellectual: "I love Dostoevski" or "my hobby is collecting Ming china."

In most cases the blonde suffers under the illusion that Dostoevski may be her next leading man, and that Ming china is real estate on the outskirts of Hong Kong.

But there are no lengths to which the people around a blonde actress won't go to avoid having her described as a "dumb blonde."

She needn't assume the protective intellectuality of the late Marilyn Monroe, Betty Grable or Kim Novak. She is a bright, adventurous girl who is a professional photographer as well as an actress.

SHOOT PICTURES

Yvette recently completed two pictures, Picasso's Summer and Three in the Attic, after which she headed for Easter Island with a museum expedition to shoot pictures.

"I am fascinated by anthropology and archaeology," Yvette explained a few days after her arrival home.

"I read about this expedition and flew to New York to join the group of scientists. They didn't know who I was, but accepted me as a serious photographer."

Yvette made it all the way to Chile before she was recognized by a baggage handler when she stepped off the plane. She held a brief press conference, then continued on her way, 2,300 miles across the ocean in a rickety old four-motor plane.

"I spent three weeks on the island living in a tent and shooting pictures of the natives, the scientists at work and the artifacts and archaeological discoveries there.

"I took hundreds and hundreds of pictures. Now I hope to sell them and write a story of what is happening out there for a major magazine."

Yvette had only one hot bath during her stay at Easter Island, but she did suffer through a freezing shower every morning.

Asked why she took off for the isolated island instead of lounging around a Hollywood swimming pool, she replied, "Life is an adventure and I'm terribly curious. I love to see and learn new things all the time.

"Right now I'm planning a television special titled The Search for Identity and the Joy of Living. I'll go skiing with Jean Claude Killy, climb a mountain with Kellog, explore under water with Cousteau and end up at NASA with the astronauts.

"It's a matter of dropping in and getting involved."

Yvette didn't once mention Dostoevski.

NEED MICROSCOPE

Two copies of the world's smallest book, 10 mm. by 16 mm.—a collection of Galileo Galilei's letters—are part of the Odessa Museum's collection of rare books.

Split by the Peace Tower, Centre Block of the Parliament Buildings. Corner stone was laid September 1, 1860, by Edward VII.

CAPITAL BUILDINGS

Our Nation in Reflection

By Don Vipond

The tumult of election time fades.

Before long the focus of the nation will swing to a massive and intricate stone monument regally set on a hill beside the Ottawa River.

Canada will be 101 years old Monday. Its Parliament Buildings are an immutable and awesome record, telling much about that time for those who trouble to look.

Like the nation, they are huge and sprawling, scarred by time, rugged and, outwardly at least, cold.

Within, there are vast vaulted halls which echo lonely footsteps. Shafts of sunlight can brighten the smooth clean stone. There are resplendent chambers, silent now, but soon thick with the chant of many voices that speak for the land.

The Parliament Buildings are never really empty. Always they offer the sense that something really significant, too detailed, too changing to bind with words, is alive within.

It is a curiously satisfying sense. It makes these buildings a home to every Canadian who looks within.

Tucked in corners are pockets of memories. Like the Memorial Chamber in the Peace Tower. Two world wars sundered so many dreams in Canada. They are touched briefly there, in 110,546 carefully-inscribed names.

There is the new world too. The Centennial flame licks skyward night and day.

Here is the Commons, prim and church-like, seats so precise. It says something about one side of the Canadian temperament.

And the crimson senate, so rich and opulent, tells of another time, born long ago and not yet past.

In those royal corridors between there is the dust of half-forgotten symbols, heads of kings and queens from times long past, designs from ancient heraldry.

There is whimsy too, to show those old Canadians had humor, although perhaps quite unintentional.

It is there in the strange faces etched in stone atop columns, in nooks and c rannies—here a gargoyle playing a mandolin, there a creature from some devil's world snarling its perennial rage.

THE PEARKES COME HOME

As of Sunday, it's true. That's the day the Pearkes come home.

So ends eight years in the office of Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia. So marks another turn in a career that began as a bugle boy and included homesteader, mounted policeman, distinguished soldier and cabinet minister.

Now the Pearkes will have a full measure of time in their beautiful home. They will forego the endless formal receptions for the comfort of lawn chairs and company of their pet Poodle, Binkie.

And now Mr. Pearkes, an ardent gardener, will be able to give the time he wants to his own lawn and flower beds.

A lot of goodbyes have already been said.

Mr. Pearkes has been recently honored by the Jaycees and Legion, among many others.

The University of Victoria conferred an honorary degree on Mrs. Pearkes.

There have been some hello's too. Earlier this month neighbors threw a "welcome home" surprise party complete with brass band for the Pearkes.

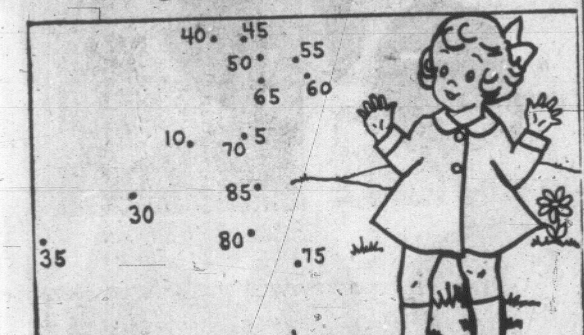
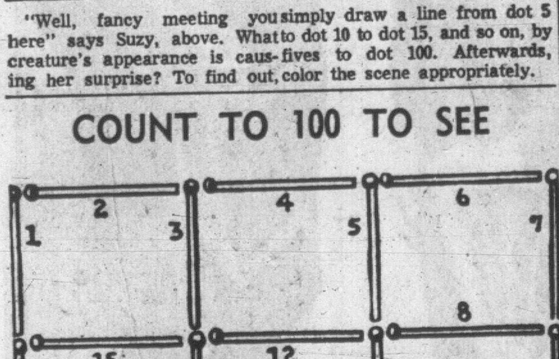
SMART GALLERY



"Well, fancy meeting here" says Suzy, above. What creature's appearance is causing her surprise? To find out, you simply draw a line from dot 5 to dot 10 to dot 15, and so on, by fives to dot 100. Afterwards, color the scene appropriately.

COUNT TO 100 TO SEE



Place seventeen matches in six squares, as shown above, to represent fence sections, and see if you can solve a problem for a farmer who has six sheep pens and wants to reduce the number to three by removing only five fence sections.

SIGHTSEEING ON PAPER

A novelty store features miniature replicas of world famous landmarks. Supposing the following structures are among them, can you name the cities in which the originals stand or stood?

1. Leaning Tower ....
2. Taj Mahal ....
3. Alhambra ....
4. Doges Palace ....
5. Parthenon ....
6. Storting ....
7. Hadrian's Tomb ....
8. Alamo ....

Answers: 1, Pisa; 2, Agra; 3, Granada; 4, Venice; 5, Athens; 6, Oslo; 7, Rome; 8, San Antonio.

MINI-TEST

The following sentence contains the same word used twice, but with a different meaning in each case. Supply the missing word:

Within a —— after taking off the jet became a —— speck in the sky.

Remember, it's the same word used twice.

DO YOU KNOW SIGN LANGUAGE?

How quickly can you think of five words containing the word "sign"? Ensign is one, for example. Now see if you can get five more quickly.

Answer: Design, signal, designate, consignment, assignment, etc.

COUNT THE MATCHES

Tom, Dick, Harry and Sam are bowlers. If every man plays each of the others once, how many matches will be played?

Answer: There will be six matches.

STEPPIN UP THE LAW

According to a policeman's testimony, a fleeing thief had a start of 27 steps when the officer started in pursuit.

"You say," exclaimed the suspect's lawyer, "that he took eight steps to your five?"

"That is correct," replied the officer.

"Then please explain to the jury how you managed to overtake my client."

"Well," said the officer, "I have longer legs, and two of my strides are equal to five of the prisoner's."

The foreman of the jury quickly figured out just how many steps the policeman had to take to capture the suspect. Can you do as well?

Solution: The policeman took 30 steps at the same time the thief took 48, which added to the latter's 27 steps ahead of the officer carried the crook 75 steps — the distance equaled by the policeman's 30 steps.

MIND READER?

I have no substance, and generally no intelligent relation to time or times. Sometimes I am sensible, but oftener I am absurd. Yet I have great influence, and not infrequently change the plans of people. Indeed, I have helped to change the history of the world. What am I?

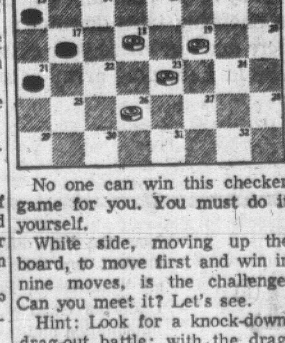
Solution: A dream. Did you wake up to it?

SUM-FUN

There is a certain number from which, if you subtract 10, multiply the remainder by three, find the square root of the product, and from this amount subtract 18, nothing is left. What is the answer?

Solution: Work this in reverse. Nothing plus 18 equals 18. Eighteen squared is 324. Three hundred and twenty-four divided by 3 is 108. One hundred and eight plus 10 is 118.

DO-IT-YOURSELF CHECKERS



No one can win this checker game for you. You must do it yourself.

White side, moving up the board, to move first and win in nine moves, is the challenge. Can you meet it? Let's see.

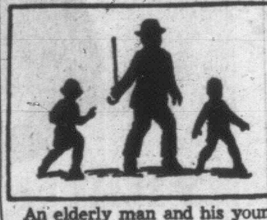
Solution: White 26-22, Black 17-26, White 18-14, Black 9-18-27, White 19-16, Black 12-19, White 10-6, Black 3-10, White 6-15-24-31-22; then 18-17, 22-13, 21-25, 13-17, 25-30, 17-22, etc.

THIS GROUP GETS AROUND



An elderly man and his young granddaughter and grandson started out for an afternoon stroll in the park. Halfway there, it started to rain and they turned back again. Study this drawing, left, carefully, you'll see the threesome moving in both directions.

On another occasion, 'tis said, the same group was joined by the elderly man's twin brother who was also accompanied by a grandson and granddaughter. To see the original group of three become six, stare fixedly at the drawing and gradually bring it closer to your eyes.

Still another amusing eye exercise involving this trio is to stare at diagram fixedly, then shift gaze to a nearby blank wall. Try it.

THE SEVEN SEA?

You've often heard and used the phrase, "the Seven Seas," and you've probably accepted it, unthinkingly, as literal. However, there are many more than seven seas — there are almost seven times seven seas. You probably can name more than a dozen yourself. Try it, then test your friends similarly.

In this case, no oceans, bays or gulfs are to be included — just seas so designated geographically. A sea is defined as a large body of salt water set off or partly enclosed by the formation of the adjacent land; also an inland body of salt water, as the Dead Sea.

WHAT'S THE ANSWER?

At a county fair, a merchant placed some eggs in a glass case and offered a prize to the person guessing the correct number in the lot. The six competitors nearest the total guessed: 350, 337, 330, 353, 340, 347. Of these competitors one was 9 out of the way, another missed by 4, another by 11, a fourth person was wrong by 12, a fifth by 6 and the other only 1 off.

What was the correct number of eggs in the lot?

If math processes fail, simply take a guess.

N-Giants 'Nearly Equal'

WASHINGTON — The mathematics of nuclear exchange makes the United States and Soviet Union nearly equal bargainers in any negotiations to halt their missile race.

After being behind in the early 1960s, the Russians are now thought to have around a thousand "hard and dispersed" intercontinental ballistic missile (ICBM) launchers. That number is increasing while the U.S. figure of 1054 land-based ICMBs is, for the moment at least, a fixed one.

There are 656 missiles of the Polaris type on 41 nuclear submarines and that figure, too, is a plateau. The Russins have about 50 such subs that carry far fewer missiles, but their sub-building program is going right ahead.

The U.S. has well over 600 long-range bombers, almost half of them on an alert status at all times.

Dr. Finn Larsen, chief deputy at the Pentagon for research and engineering, recently figures that "our alert forces alone carry more than 2,200 weapons, averaging more than one megaton each, and only 400 one-megaton weapons are sufficient to destroy over one third of the population of the Soviet Union and one half her industry."

RUSSIANS AHEAD

In megatonage the Russians are clearly ahead, as their much stronger rocket boosters can put a larger payload into the air. And in time they will overtake the U.S. in the number of launchers.

However, former defence secretary Robert S. McNamara claimed this year that the U.S. could fire 4,500 warheads through Soviet defenses, as against 1,000 Soviet warheads capable of penetrating U.S. defenses.

The U.S. is reckoned to be well ahead on research on MIRV (multiple independently targeted re-entry vehiles), a system of putting many nuclear caps on one missile with the objective of overwhelming a defence system.

Some defence sources said Thursday it was possible that the Russians were concerned that MIRV and other projects might lead the U.S. toward the capability of launching a first strike so devastating that the victim could hit back only weakly.

Around Moscow the Russians are deploying Galosh, an area ABM defence system not unlike the planned U.S. 5-billion dollar Sentinel. Galosh is thought here to be the Russian's only ABM system.

McNamara was reluctant to respond to this threat when he announced plans last September to build Sentinel, but his successor — Clark M. Clifford — clearly felt the time was ripe.

"If the Soviets are developing an ABM system," he told a press conference last week, "and we know they are developing it, I believe we are in a better posture to reach agreement with them on an ultimate step toward disarming if we also go about the deployment of a system."

That line of reasoning had much to do this week with the Senate's approval of 227 million dollars to buy sites for Sentinel, despite strong and continuing opposition.

Now some Pentagon people at a high level are concerned that Clifford may have been too successful, that he brought a response from the Russians that will encourage the anti-ABM forces in Congress to fight even harder against the deployment of Sentinel.

Proceedings Stay Ordered by Crown

Claude Comer, 19; Ralph Isaacson, 20, and David Weir, 19, all of 740 Kings, were charged June 1 following a prior incident in Goldstream Park. They pleaded not guilty.

The move by the Crown means the charge is dropped at the moment but can be reintroduced at any time.

Arthur Mayse

The storm that doused your lights a few minutes past noon on murky Friday knocked ours out as well. One moment, reporters racing deadline were bringing their typewriter tattoo toward a climax. The next, this newsroom was plunged into a unique state of utter silence.

The keys stopped clicking. The teletypes that chatter so busily to themselves were hushed.

The real drama was in the composing room, where the rows of linotypes had also been stilled by the meterological flareup. Each lino is fed from a pot of melted type-metal, an alloy that can turn solid in not much more than 20 minutes if the electric heat is shut off.

Let the pot and the type-metal in the lino's arteries harden and the machine can be restored to use only by a long, laborious freeing process.

Our electric clocks were out, but by wristwatch count, the power came on just a trifle over 5 minutes ahead of a freezeup that could have meant a very late Times on your doorstep.

As matters turned out, the printers managed to make up those lost minutes and meet their deadline.

Victoria Community Arts Council has developed an idea that strikes me as a winner. This is to set up an intermediate art workshop in the old Dowell Cartage building on Wharf Street at Bastion Square.

The plan has a pleasant Renaissance flavor. Young beginning artists and craftsmen would work with their knowledgeable seniors as apprentices, trading service for expert instruction.

The list of arts and skills which the workshop would encourage is lengthy and diversified. It includes painting, sculpture, ceramics, movie-making, experimental sound, set design, and experimental and children's theatre. Others could be added according to demand.

A brief on the proposal has been drawn up, and Ald. Clyde Savage, Community Arts Council president, will seek City Hall approval for it.

The arts council has been cherishing this notion of a Bastion Square centre for many months, and I'm glad to learn that it has now been put in concrete form. The project would be a boon to teen-agers with a long summer before them.

It might also inject a touch more liveliness into a good little square that has never quite caught on as it should.

Anyone interested is invited to a meeting at 8 p.m. Monday, July 8, at 1960 Lansdowne, under Community Arts Council auspices.

If fewer American tourist-fishermen invade our coast waters this year, the fact may be laid to a fish-story that's not only true, but one of the most thrilling (to anglers at least) on record.

Fishwise, the Great Lakes have been steadily declining — but one of them, Lake Michigan, has been given a near-miraculous reprieve.

Into it, about four years ago, Michigan fish and wildlife service introduced Pacific coho salmon, which are now multiplying and extending their territory at an amazing rate. Twenty-pounders are bein caught, and Michigan is advertising this new attraction like crazy.

'Be ironic, won't it, if once coho-rich British Columbians must some day head east to catch this liveliest of our salmon species.

And, believe me, it could happen here. I give our coho runs about 20 years at the outside. By then, unless this province and the federal authority take thought for a priceless — and diminishing — asset, the coho will be gone.

That's it, except to pass on a suggestion from a brisk young voter who feels each ballot should carry a tag-line labelled 'Undecided.' If the Undecides won the count, we'd toss out all candidates and try again with a fresh batch!

Harsh Future For Splinters Says Bennett

By BRUCE YEMEN

Premier Bennett gave oblique approval Friday to the Greater Victoria Conservative Association executive's endorsement of Oak Bay Socred candidate Peter Pollen.

But he was careful not of refer directly to the Social Conservative philosophy of Alberta Premier Ernest Manning which the Conservative directors also generally endorsed as individuals.

Mr. Bennett said in an interview the federal election showed clearly the public desire for majority government.

He predicted that Liberals and Conservatives would dominate federal politics for "a number of years" and perhaps longer.

"The minority parties will come back if the Liberals and Tories don't do a good job," he said.

Perrault Recognized Trend

The same would be true on the provincial scene—the "free enterprise" Social Credit party and the "socialist" NDP would dominate politics, he said.

Provincial Liberal Leader Ray Perrault recognized the trend and went into federal politics, said the premier.

He said the voters were "pretty harsh" when they dealt with federal "splinter parties" and added:

"I suggest they will deal pretty harshly with splinter parties provincially."

He said the Victoria Conservative directors had obviously realized this and acted accordingly.

The premier used the word "realignment" only in the sense that voters would tend to support parties capable of providing majority government.

Liberal supporters in the three ridings facing July 15 provincial byelections should sense the necessary realignment, he said, describing the provincial Liberal party as a "small splinter group if ever there was one."

The Liberals held six out of 55 seats in the last legislature.

'Voters Spoke Loud and Clear'

"The voters have spoken loud and clear on that," he said.

Mr. Bennett was notably silent last year when Premier Manning called for realignment of conservative forces in Canadian society to form a united national party of the right wing.

The endorsement by the Greater Victoria Conservative Association was not only for Mr. Pollen's candidacy in the July 15 byelection but also for his views on political realignment..

Mr. Pollen said that Premier Manning's book, "Political Realignment: A Challenge to Thoughtful Canadians," was the basis for his philosophy.

Eric Makovski, president of the Greater Victoria Conservative Association, said the Social Credit and Conservative parties "are just wasting time and money fighting each other."

A lack of vitality in the Conservative Party could be traced to a lack of "basic philosophy," he said.

All but one of the directors of the association backed the new attitude, he said, declining to name the dissenter.

Premier's Pressure Too 'Heavy-Handed'

'Troops and Money' Says Grit Candidate

By JOHN SLINGER

Oak Bay Liberal candidate Allan Cox said today Premier Bennett is sending "troops and money" into the riding in an effort to wrench the former Liberal seat into the Social Credit camp.

Mr. Cox charged that the premier was resorting to "heavy-handed power politics" in his support of Social Credit candidate Peter Pollen in the July 15 byelection.

Entry of Mr. Bennett into the campaign "makes it clear that this is not a fight between Pollen and myself. . . . It is a fight between the premier and myself."

The Liberal said Oak Bay "traditionally has not reacted well" to such politics.

The charge was levelled after invitations from Mr. Bennett were sent to Oak Bay voters asking them to attend a Thursday meeting for Mr. Pollen.

The invitations, postmarked Vancouver, reportedly say "the Hon. W. A. C. Bennett, premier of the province of British Columbia, has the honor to invite you and your friends to attend a public meeting in support of your most capable candidate Peter Pollen . . ."

Mr. Cox said he believes the invitations went to most voters.

He said he doubted the Conservative support mounted behind Mr. Pollen represented a philosophical swing toward Alberta Premier Manning's Social Conservatism.

The Liberal said Oak Bay traditionally voted for a candidate rather than a party, "so I don't think there is even a possibility of a philosophical alignment."

"Certainly in our party, the executives wouldn't have any authority to commit the party to a political alignment."

He expressed surprise at the announcement by five Oak Bay New Democratic Party members that they would give tacit support to Mr. Cox by not fielding a candidate.

He dismissed suggestions that the endorsement indicated an NDP-Liberal alignment as "ridiculous."

"The Liberals and the NDP are philosophical enemies," he said, adding that the Liberals would welcome any NDP votes that come their way.

Peter Bunn, spokesman for the NDP five, said his party took only 972 votes in the last election, but these votes could mean the difference between a Social Credit or a Liberal victory.

Mr. Cox said he expected the premier would try to use the NDP statement to prove his charge of an NDP-Liberal conspiracy against the Social Credit government in the legislature.

"It is a convenient conspiracy to suggest, since both parties are in opposition to him," the Liberal said.

The Social Credit-Conservative mating was not repressentative of a strong Oak Bay Social Credit movement.

NO OAK BAY CANDIDATE

NDP Counters Conservatives

By ERIC MAURICE

The move follows the Conservative Party's decision not to field a candidate in Oak Bay and leaves only Liberal Allan Cox and Socred Peter Pollen in the race. Nominations close July 5.

The NDP move is intended to offset the Conservative endorsation of Mr. Pollen.

Greater Victoria Conservative Association directors said earlier they "enthusiastically support" Mr. Pollen's candidacy.

While the Victoria-Oak Bay NDP association declined to support Mr. Cox openly, it is clear the battle lines have been drawn and that their opposition to the Socreds is intended to carry NDP support into the Liberal camp.

"LOVE TO HAVE"

Executive member Peter Bunn told the NDP meeting Oak Bay "is a seat the premier would dearly love to have" and one which couldn't be won when Social Credit was in its heyday.

"A Social Credit victory in Oak Bay would be out of all proportion to its value, but the Psychological impact would be very great," said Mr. Bunn, who also is chairman of Greater Victoria School Board.

Mr. Bunn proposed a motion not to nominate an NDP candidate and to support the Liberal candidate, but the second part of his motion was rejected by the membership.

The constituency association also moved to "strongly" recommend to the NDP provincial office not to nominate an Oak Bay candidate in this election.

Association president Phil Fawcett told the meeting provincial NDP leader Robert Strachan and the provincial caucus and table officers all favored running a candidate in Oak Bay and were prepared to nominate one if the constituency association failed to do so.

Oak Bay At Bay Over Vote Signs

Election signs erected by Oak Bay Social Credit candidate Peter Pollen are too big for municipal bylaws.

And no one has bothered to get a municipal permit to erect the signs on private property as required by bylaw.

Oak Bay mayor Fred Hawes said today it is illegal to erect signs on municipal property such as boulevards and roadways, and signs on private property are restricted in size to two and a quarter square feet.

★ ★ ★

There is "no question" about the fact the signs are contravening municipal regulations concerning size, but the bylaw was designed to apply to commercial signs.

The position on political signs is unclear, the mayor said.

"This problem hasn't arisen before."

Mr. Hawes said the erection of signs on private property requires a municipal permit, and since no one sought permits for the several hundred Pollen signs, the municipality has no record of who put them up.

Many complaints have been received from residents who don't like having campaign signs in their neighbor's yards, the mayor said, but no one has tried to press charges.

The municipality informed Socred campaign workers the signs would have to be removed from municipal property and this has been done, says Mr. Pollen.

Mr. Pollen said he didn't think the municipal bylaw applies to federal and provincial electioneering, and that if Oak Bay wants to press charges over the signs on private property, he will fight the rase.

They didn't take any action during the federal campaign, he said.

JAYCEE RESOLUTION

'First Aid or Abandon' Faltering CYC Venture

The Company of Young Canadians should be disbanded unless the government takes quick firm action towards strengthening the staggering organization, says a Canada Jaycees convention resolution.

The resolution says the new government must take a new approach toward the company to correct that taken by the last government which was "prejudicial to the company."

Prepared by the Jaycee national executive, the proposed resolution was to be presented today to the convention's general assembly at the Empress Hotel for discussion, possible revision and a likely motion calling for representation to the government.

The result of a year-long national study, the resolution says the CYC concept is "a bold experiment into social change," and worthy of national support.

". . . the projects undertaken by the CYC are related to real social problems and have and are producing positive results for the benefit of all Canadians."

The CYC was established in July 1966 by the Pearson government as an agency for recruiting volunteers to help underdeveloped areas of Canada improve their economic and social standards.

Under two executive directors, the company was criticized because of the "hippie image" which many people felt was portrayed by the volunteers.

The Jaycee resolution calls for provision of strong leadership within the organization and proper "structuring" of the company to increase its effectiveness.

The company's two executive directors, William McWhinney and Alan Clarke, have both resigned in dispute and the company's Quebec branch has been agitating for a separate provincial organization to be called the "Company of Young Quebecers."

There have been numerous charges that the organization was infiltrated by Communists and was being taken over by young radicals.

The Jaycee resolution asks that the CYC be given enough money to enable it to reach its goals.

BUDGET SLASHED

Late last year the federal government announced it was slashing the company's budget to $1,900,000 from $2,400,000 the previous year.

The decrease, together with internal staff conflicts, forced the scrapping last month of two large Toronto projects and one in Winnipeg. Also abandoned was a plan set for this fall, for a small expansion into underdeveloped countries overseas.

Poor publicity has created public misunderstanding of the objectives of the company, the Jaycee resolution says.

It asks that every effort be made to educate and inform the country of the CYC's role and accomplishments.

OVER 6,000 PLEDGES

Sidney Walkathon Holiday Feature

A nine-mile Sidney walkathon is expected to attract more than 1,000 people on Dominion Day.

Peter Russell, president of the Sidney Lions Club, sponsors of the event, said over 6,000 pledges have been made for varying amounts of money for the walkathon.

"It promises to be an outstanding success," he said. "The entire community appears to be behind the project."

NOON START

Proceeds from the event will go towards Lions' youth programs, such as high school scholarships and playground equipment.

Participants in the walk who are among the first to cross the finishing line at Sidney will receive prizes.

There will also be special prizes for young people of various age groups.

The club will also provide refreshments to walkers along the route, plus medical assistance.

The route starts from Sanscha Hall and winds through Sidney, Rest Haven Road to Mills Road, West Saanich Road and Wains Road and back to the hall.

Ask The Times

Q. Is there any person or agency whose business it is to find placement for manuscripts?

A. Literary agents place manuscripts. Standard U.S.A. practice is 10 per cent commission on home sales and up to 20 per cent on foreign sales. In the case of unsolicited manuscript certain firms charge a reading fee which is refunded if the material is accepted. In all cases writers are advised to send a preliminary letter and to ascertain terms before submitting. A recommended agency is the Scott Meredith Literary Agency Inc., 580 Fifth Avenue, New York 36, New York.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

FLARE DROP LACKING

Fisherman Knocks Rescue Efforts

A Victoria fisherman charged today more could have been done to rescue two fishermen whose boat sank off Estevan Point Thursday night.

Neils Kriberg, 755 Cook, said he was in the area Thursday night in his fishing boat Whiff and heard the distress call about 5 p.m.

"The call was relayed through Tofino and there were about four boats close to the stricken vessel," he said.

"I was just a little too far away to help, but the nearer boats could have if they knew what was going on."

Mr. Kriberg said fishermen often turn their radios off and don't hear distress calls.

He claimed a plane could have been sent from Tofino to drop a flare over the sea, thus indicating the mishap.

As it was, Bruce Petrie, 2950 Leigh Road, and Lloyd Crowther, 1090 Goldstream, clung to an overturned dinghy and kicked themselves to shore on Bartlett Island.

They were rescued about 7 the next morning by a Coast Guard helicopter.

Doing The Town

New look . . . new sale . . . beautiful bargains! . . .

For the past 100 years and more . . . Wilson's big annual January sale has been an anticipated event for Victorians . . . one they waited a whole year for . . . so maybe you're wondering how come they've just announced a summer clearance sale . . . Well, Wilson's store may be old in years . . . but it's still young and up-to-the-minute in spirit . . . (have you seen its "new look" yet?) . . . so the powers that be said, "Why not TWO sales a year and give the people a second chance to acquire beautiful, beautiful bargains?" . And so it came to pass, and Wilson's big new summer clearance sale is now on . . . Prices have been slashed beyond belief . . . In the Ladies' Dept. you'll find a large selection of summer dresses, suits and jacket dresses . . . crimplenes, linens and cottons . . . at prices far lower than they were just a week ago . . . Same thing in the Men's Wear and Men's Furnishings . . . We can't mention names here . . . but you'll find famous-name suits, sport jackets and slacks . . . odd lines and broken sizes . . . at prices 20% to 40% off . . . not to mention a 20% discount on the famous Lombardi's tailored-to-measure clothing for the next two weeks . . . And if your man is fast with the footwork . . . he may just be lucky enough to pick up a $7.95 dress shirt for a mere $4.76! . . . W & J Wilson Limited, 1221 Government St., 383-7177.

Lightweight, smooth and colorful canvas is the newest fabric for all-weather coats.

More goodies at M & E . . .

Naturally Wilson's young sister . . . the Madam and Eve Shop . . . is in there pitching too with a spring and summer clearance of all their regular stock . . . and when Pam starts slashing price tags, there's no telling how far she'll go! . . . Anyway when we dropped in on Wednesday we saw a great array of mouth-watering bargains . . Dresses galore in all sorts of fabrics, and in styles for all occasions . . . Smart little day dresses for street and office wear . . . adorable party frocks . . . Regular prices of these dresses are $26 to $40 . . . and they've been reduced from one-third to one-half . . . so if you're good at arithmetic . . . which we aren't . . . you can figure it out for yourself . . . There are some nice suits and dress and coat ensembles with price tags snipped by one-third . . . Same thing goes for coats, in spring wools . . . While all the rainwear is going for half price . . . Pam tells us she's also got a number of "unadvertised specials" . . . but refused to be more specific. Could it be she's holding out a carrot? . . . Well, we mean to find out for ourselves by popping in to M & E daily during this coming week . . . Could be we'd pick up some real plums . . . or should we say, "apples"? . . Madam and Eve Shop, Trounce Alley, 383-7177.

High adventure in our own Canada . . .

Gosh, we keep getting prouder every day of this wonderful country we live in . . . a pride spurred on and fed by the absorbingly interesting Canadian books which are coming off the presses . . . and the Book Nook . . . our favorite book store . . . always seems to have them first! . . . Brand new this week is R. M. Patterson's "Finlay's River" . . . a story of that wide and beautiful river in B.C. and the men who have explored it . . . For a man's true adventure story, this is absolutely "it"! Author Patterson, who wrote that Canadian classic "Dangerous River," is an acknowledged master of Canadian wilderness writing . . . his knowledge is sure, and his prose sparkles! . . . Another new and fascinating book is "The Queen Charlotte Islands 1774 to 1966" by Kathleen E. Dalzell, of Prince Rupert . . . It's a definitive history of the little-known Queen Charlottes . . . Tells tales of the early explorers, missionaries and settlers . . . An authentic companion volume to George Nicholson's "West Coast," according to Mr. Nicholson himself . . . Not a book, but a delightful bit of Canadiana is the Eskimo Calendar for 1969 . . . a big, beautiful calendar whose 12 entrancing pictures are Cape Dorset Eskimo prints . . . Seals, birds, the furry owl (Ookpic) . . . Eskimo families form the subject matter . . . and they're sheer delight! . . . This comes in a sturdy mailing folder, and would make a wonderful gift! IN STEP WITH STYLE — BY NONA DAMASKE

Fashion for Meditation

Times' fashion editor Nona Damaske is currently on holiday in California. Today's column gives the latest news from Victoria's "twin city."

Damaske

PALM SPRINGS — Fashion fads begin in any number of strange ways . . . from a best-seller book of fiction, a hit movie, a trend in architecture, the color preference of a famous person or the current trend in art. When the Beatles and Mia Farrow went to India to meditate with their Guru a new fashion came on strong.

The "Meditation" dress, shirt or jacket with the Guru collar, is now the "in" thing for men and women.

High necked, long-sleeved and slightly indented at the waistline, this garment is worn long or short . . . on its own or as part of an ensemble. Several fine strands of beads or a medallion falling to the waistline are a necessary part of the final image.

In rich, gleaming brocade the "Guru" is an acceptable dinner jacket for today's fasion-conscious male.

The rich fabrics find their way into milady's Guru wardrobe in the form of elegant at-home designs or full-length theatre coats. Tunic-length, the Guru is a good-looking companion for slender pants. Gurus in the current popular length . . . just above the knee . . . are seen on the streets. The young crowd faithfully follows this meditation look with micro-mini Gurus. The guitar is no longer the "in" instrument . . . one must now be able to discuss and understand the sitar . . . if one cannot play the strange-sounding instrument.

I had hoped by now to have been able to report on the progress of the renovations of the former luxury liner Queen Mary but the work is at a point where visitors are a distinct hazard. The lower decks are being removed to make room for the 100,000-square-foot museum. I did manage a good look at her, however, at her present mooring, Pier E, in Long Beach.

I went, with a group of friends, to the opening ceremonies of a beautiful $6 million Bank of California Building on Ocean Boulevard, Long Beach. From the elegant lounge on the 17th floor I could see the former Qneen of the Seas. I had once before seen the Queen Mary in New York harbor where her size did not appear quite so awesome. Our well-loved Princess Louise, now also owned by the city of Long Beach and serving as a fine restaurant vessel, is now dwarfed to toy size.

I had a delightful visit with former Victoria resident Mary Hicks last Sunday at her lovely Palm Springs home. Mary and her husband Harold are now in Oregon where Harold is indulging himself in one of his favorite pastimes . . . fly fishing.

Next week I will tell you about meeting Mrs. Bob Hope.

Hints From Teacher To Help a Housewife

By Penny Saver

"The first thing I am going to do is have a proper manicure." That was the remark a teacher friend of mine made as we were talking of her coming freedom a few days before school closed for the summer. We had planned a shopping trip together and I had dropped by the school to pick her up. I arrived just in time to watch her go through the fascinating process of duplicating a final worksheet for her class. Her hands were blackened with ink by the time she was through ("I am quite clumsy at this, Penny," she admitted), and I didn't think it would ever come off. "Nor did I first time," my friend told me. "I must have gone through every kind of soap imaginable looking for one that would touch the dirt. A teacher has to cope with everything—paints, ink, glue, chalk (terribly drying) and heaven only knows what else. That's why an end-of-year manicure feels so wonderful."

By the time we set out for the shops, however, no one would have known what her hands had gone through. Her experiments had finally lead her to a product that worked. This is a creamy green liquid that lifts stains to the surface where they can be wiped away. "It is perfect for a teacher and I suppose it would be ideal for the secretary too. You just massage a little into the stains on your hands and wipe it off with a facial tissue. For deep stains you may have to rinse with water." This cleaner contains no harsh chemicals and no abrasives yet it removes ink from almost any source—hectographs (those funny "jelly" duplicating pads) mimeograph ink, carbon paper and typewriter ribbons. An eight-fluid-ounce bottle is 50 cents. I am sure that many busy housewives would find it useful as well.

Teachers have some wonderful ideas. Another tip I got from this friend was on the subject of bulletin boards. She finally got tired of sticking pins into hard walls and found a better way of tacking up her pupils' art work. It is a white putty-like substance that will stick to any surface except fresh wall paper or paint. Just warm it in your hands and use it to replace staples and pins. It is re-usable and won't mark a clean, dry surface. It is non-toxic, non-irritant and won't dry out. It protects, seals and cleans. Apart from holding bulletins in place this putty can be used to keep pictures straight and steady (it won't, however, hold them on the wall by itself) and for keeping rugs, candle-sticks, ashtrays and such in place. A good-sized package is 49 cents.

Complexion Beauty

The secret of beautifying the complexion is said to lie in the saturation of the skin with a new type of tropical moist oil. The skin takes on an immediate healthy bloom as the tiny lines and blemishes are gently smoothed away. This saturation treatment with the moist oil of Olay is recommended by skin care consultants, who advise its daily use as a powder base to give the complexion day-long beauty. Your druggist will help you obtain a supply for your personal needs.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Old Gent Needs Bit of Kindness

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: We are a couple with four school-age children. Our problem is an old retired gentleman who lives next door. He just won't leave us alone.

When the boys want to work out in the yard with their father, this old man comes out and talks to them. If they're planting flowers, he is right there, telling them how to do it. If I happen to be outside sitting with friends, he comes out and joins us.

My daughters cannot even sun themselves without this old man coming out to sit with them.

Abby, I hate to seem mean, but who needs an old man following you around and inviting himself over every time you go outside?

My husband doesn't have the nerve to say anything to him, but if you tell me I should do it, I will.

PESTERED

DEAR PESTERED: The poor old gentleman is lonely, and he could also be getting a bit childish in his declining years, so be kind to him. Tell him, gently, that you and your family need a little more privacy. He may forget from time to time, but be patient, and remind him. One day, you, too, may be old and lonely.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is in the army and we are stationed 1,800 miles from home. My mother has offered to send the money for me to fly home several times as she wants to see me and her new grandson.

My husband wouldn't hear of it. He says he does not want me going home unless he can go with me.

Now my mother is going into the hospital for major surgery and she wants me home to be with her for a couple of weeks. My husband is up in arms and won't allow it. (We used up our leave last Christmas and he can't go with me, so that's that.)

I think my husband is selfish and unreasonable. I am just about ready to go anyway, but I hate to do it. What is your advice!

UNDECIDED

DEAR UNDECIDED: I think your husband is not only selfish and unreasonable, but he's also immature, tyrannical and shortsighted, and sadly insecure. If you can't make him realize that he is wrong in forbidding you to go to your mother in her hour of need, ask him to talk to an impartial party. The chaplain where he is stationed would be my Number One suggestion.

P.S.: Don't go without your husband's blessings, unless you decided you don't want to come back.

DEAR ABBY: I'd like to add my two cents' worth about tipping: When I go to a hotel, for example, and see a "bellboy," who is a good 20 years older than I am, I feel like a heel for letting him carry my luggage.

Then when I have to tip him a buck for doing a job that I am more physically fit to do than he is, I feel like a schnook. So what's the answer!

HEEL AND SCHNOOK

DEAR HEEL AND SCHNOOK: You'd feel like a bigger "heel" carrying your own luggage. Furthermore, don't judge anyone's physical fitness by his age. Most of those "old bellboys" are probably in better shape than you are.

CONFIDENTIAL TO RAMELDA: It's the same old story, you can wear out a mother, abuse her, neglect her, impose upon her and hurt her, and win her back with only four words, "Mom, I love you."

A WOMAN'S VIEWPOINT

By Pat Dufour

Canada's Indians must have loomed large in the mind of Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau when he spoke of the "just society" he hopes to build.

The local Songhees Indian band, by its newest project, has shown it has no intention of waiting for hand-outs or motherly administration.

For the first time in its history the Band will run a six-week playground program on the reservation in Esquimalt this summer and all of its members are enthusiastic. While it is geared primarily for the 60 youngsters between six and 13 who live on the reservation, the playground program will be open to all children, especially in the Esquimalt and Saanich areas.

For the past year Johnnie Rice, chairman of the Songhees Recreation Commission, has worked toward the creation of such a program. Five of the band's teen-agers attended the Intermunicipal Playgrounds Institute at Mount View senior secondary school in May to prepare for their roles as leaders.

Nineteen-year-old Don Albany, nephew of Chief John Albany, will be playground supervisor. Assisting him will be the chief's daughter, Jacqueline; Lillian Jones, Richard Sam and Mrs. Rice's son, Patrick.

The program begins on Tuesday. Continuing until Aug. 9, each day from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. children will be able to enjoy a variety of games, including soccer, softball and others geared for small tots; learn crafts, listen to stories, indulge in sing-songs, and take part in field trips to places of interest.

The band has found a "fairy godmother" in the Esquimalt Lions Club. Working with Joe Iannarelli as its project chairman, the club has undertaken to assist with guidance and a donation of $500 which will be used to pay the leaders a small salary.

Indians Find Friend in Arena Manager

Joe is as enthusiastic about the project as his Songhee friends. He intends to have the youngsters at the Esquimalt Sports Arena "at least once a week" so that they can enjoy roller skating as his guest. Like many a community worker he's been kept busy "on the scrounge" helping the band to amass the equipment which it needs for the playground.

He's certain that the project may be the nursery from which Victoria may obtain at least one or two of its future athletes. He cites the years when he worked in the Ontario centre of Ingersoll.

"There were many Indians there and they were terrific at ice hockey, lacrosse and other sports. Sixty per cent of our wrestlers came from their ranks."

The official opening of the playground will be Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. with Chief Albany and Mayor Ray Bryant sharing the honors. But, for the Songhee Indian Band, this will be just one milestone reached in the search for a better life for their children.

The local band has another community project. The old church on the reservation, later used as a school until the children were transferred to St. Joseph's School, is again a core for the life of the band.

None has worked harder with hammer and nails than Chief Albany to repair it and make it a centre for teen-agers and their elders.

Mr. Iannarelli would like his Indian friends to take on another project. He still remembers the Songhee Indian Day he enjoyed the first year he arrived from Ontario.

"I'll never forget the skill with which the paddlers propelled their canoes through the rough water ... it was tremendous."

But that's all in the future. Meanwhile the Songhees and their friends from the Esquimalt Lions Club are concentrating on making Wednesday's official opening one to remember.

Unfortunately, I won't be there. By that time, I'll be two days out at sea, crewing in the race from here to Maui. But my best wishes will be with the Songhees on "opening night" and, fittingly enough, they'll be coming from a yacht with the name of Potlach.

BUSY SCHEDULE

His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. George R. Pearkes were faced with a busy schedule today. They both attended and His Honor officially opened the Gllangcolme Fun Days given by Langford, Colwood, Glen Lake, Metchosin and the surrounding districts. On completion of the opening, His Honor again officiated at an opening, this time the fair at the Langford Centennial grounds.

Early this afternoon His Honor and Mrs. Pearkes flew to Hazelton where His Honor opened the Ksan Indian Village at the junction of the Skeena and Bulkley Rivers.

Baptism Ceremony

The five-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. K. A. Kightly, 560 Agnes Street, was baptized in the names Jacqueline Ann at a ceremony held in St. John's Anglican Church on Sunday. Rev. Leonard D. Jenner officiated. Mrs. J. Donaldson, Mrs. R. Young and Mr. L. Hatcher are the child's godparents. Her maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. H. Hatcher and her paternal grandmother, Mrs. R. Calcutt. Mr. H. Hatcher celebrated his birthday the same day. After the baptism, a tea was held at the Kightly home. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. H. Hatcher, Mr. and Mrs. J. Donaldson and Bradley, Mr. and Mrs. F. Durick, Mr. and Mrs. G. Ford, Mr. L. Hatcher and Jacqueline's sister Gina.

Dinner for Yachtsmen

Skippers and crews of yachts competing in the Victoria-Maui race which starts off Brotchie Ledge at 10 am on Monday will gather at the Red Lion Motor Inn this evening for a dinner which begins at 7 p.m. The tables have been arranged so that skippers and crews will sit at tables bearing the names of their boats.

KITCHEN AT SEA

Hints for Galley Gourmet

Now's the time that millions of North Americans go down to the seas — and to the lakes and rivers — in ships. But these Jack London and Joseph Conrad types now bring the wife and kiddies along. Here's the first of seven articles that will help the harried housewife — or girl friend — keep up her culinary expertise on the bounding main.

By NANCY HYDEN WOODWARD

NEW YORK (WNS) — From the Great Lakes to the Gulf Stream, from the bays of Maine to the California coast and in all the lakes and rivers between, North Americans are trying out their sea legs again.

And often as not, the busiest person aboard the family sailboat or cabin cruiser is not the captain but the first mate —his wife. She not only has to pull her own weight in the usual shipboard chores, but is also expected to serve up bountiful meals, for appetites are big on the bounding main.

The problems of space and comfort are rare commodities on a boat, and are virtually nonexistent in the galley. What can one create on a one — or two-burner stove? Recipes requiring a pantry full of ingredients are out, but that's no reason to settle for a can of beans or a ham on rye. There's a way to trim your culinary sails to galley-size, provided you apply the proper planning and imagination.

This series will include recipes that can be made on one or two-burner stoves (a few can be made in the portable oven—more on that in the next installment).

But first two warnings and a helpful hint:

Warning No. 1: Don't cook when underway, even in a sailboat on calm waters. When least expected the boat could heave, sending hot soups and cooking equipment — and you — flying.

Warning No. 2: Watch out for ammoniated ice if you are buying a block. It is illegal to sell it, but some marinas do. Although it freezes quickly, the food takes on its odor and spoils. Best way to spot it is its very cloudy-looking appearance.

Hint No. 1: Time and effort can be spared if you prepare some of your meals — or parts of them — in advance in the quiet of your kitchen. It might also be a good idea to make up menus for the weekend. It should save your headaches and space.

EGGS ON A RAFT

Four slices white bread (cut a hole in the centre of each, about the size of an egg yolk); 4 eggs; butter or oleo.

Melt butter in skillet over medium heat, drop bread slices and break an egg over each so that yolk falls in centre. Let brown slightly, turn, and brown other side.

KNOCKABOUT CHICKEN SALAD

Steam a five-pound chicken at home and cut in fairly large pieces, ½ cup celery diced, 1 cup tart green apples peeled and diced, ½ cup green grapes, cut in half; 1 cup salad dressing (not regular mayonnaise), ¼ cup light cream, 2 teaspoons grated onion, 1-3 cup toasted almonds, slivered; 1 teaspoon curry powder (more, if desired).

Mix all ingredients together and serve as main luncheon course. Serves six but would serve several more as a dinner salad.

CURRIED COD

One half cup curry powder, 1 cup flour, 2½ lbs. cod fillets, cut into 1-inch strips; ½ cup butter, chopped parsley, thyme.

Mix curry powder and flour and dip fillets into it. Melt butter in heated skillet and brown fillets on both sides. Sprinkle chopped parsley and thyme on top and serve.

BOILED CAT BOAT DINNER

Three lbs. corned brisket of beef, water to cover, ½ bay leaf, 6 carrots, sliced; 10 small peeled onions, 10 small peeled potatoes, 1 head of cabbage cut into wedges, 6 medium rutabagas (turnips), 4 whole peppercorns, 6 parsnips, whole and peeled; ½ head diced celery.

Mix ingredients together and simmer about an hour. Serves four.

CAPTAIN'S GROG

One and a half jigger rum, ½ teaspoon brown sugar, 1 ounce beef bouillon, ½ jigger cherry liqueur, 2 drops Tabasco, slice of lime.

Wins 'Bad Taste' Award

NEW YORK (AP) — Costumes designed to add "propriety and prudence" to the mini-skirt and fashioned after the garb of nuns and monks are arousing a maxi-controversy.

Chicago Daily News columnist Virginia Kay gave the designer —Walter Holmes—"The Shockingly Bad Taste Award of the Year, Decade and Century."

Clerics aren't mincing any words either.

Msgr. Joseph T. V. Snee said: "Whether it's mini-skirts or mini-habits, both are tasteless and indecent."

Holmes, 34, said: "After all the nudity and everything else, I felt strongly about the complete opposite—propriety and prudence . . . I had nothing sacrilegious in mind at all."

QUIRKS IN ELECTION PATTERN

Creditistes Made Each Vote Count

By FRASER MacDOUGALL

OTTAWA (CP) — Analysis of the party vote by provinces in Tuesday's election exemplifies the principle that the share of voter support won't always be translated into Commons seats.

The Liberals got 53.3 per cent of the vote in Quebec against 45.6 in the 1965 election. This time they elected 56 of 74 Quebec MPs against 56 of 75 three years ago.

The Creditiste vote in Quebec dropped by 1.1 percentage points to 16.4 from 17.5 yet they almost doubled their seats to 14 from eight. The Conservative share of the Quebec vote dropped two-tenths of a percentage point to 21.1 from 21.3 but their number of MPs was cut by half, to four from eight.

In Ontario, the Liberals increased their share of the party vote by 2.9 percentage points to 46.5 and elected 64 of 88 MPs against 51 of 85 last time.

The Conservative share of the Ontario vote dropped two percentage points to 32 and their number of MPs went down eight to 17 from 25. The NDP Ontario vote dropped 1.1 percentage points but that only cost them three seats, the total dropping to six from nine.

In British Columbia the NDP got identical 32.9-per cent shares of the vote on Tuesday and in 1965. Yet this time it elected eight of 23 members against nine of 22 last time.

The Conservatives increased their B.C. vote by half a percentage point over 1965 to 19.7 but lost all three of their B.C. seats. The Liberals boosted their B.C. vote by 11.8 percentage points to 41.7 but more than doubled their seats to 15 from seven.

If each province returned the same number of MPs and they were elected by voting at large, the Conservatives would have won the election.

Conservative candidates got more than half the vote in four provinces — 53.1 per cent in Newfoundland, 51.8 in Prince Edward Island, 55.2 in Nova Scotia and 50.2 in Alberta. They had the largest share of the vote in two other provinces — New Brunswick with 49.7 per cent and Saskatchewan with 36.9.

Quebec was the only province to give the Liberals more then half the vote — 53.3 per cent. They had the largest share in three provinces — Ontario 46.5 per cent, Manitoba 41.8 and B.C. 41.7. They also had the largest share in the territories with 48.

In the 1965 election only two provinces gave more thean half their votes to one party. The Liberals got 64.1 per cent in Newfoundland and the Conservatives 53.8 in P.E.I. The Liberals went over the halfway mark in the territories with 52 per cent.

The Liberals bettered their 1965 party vote showing in seven provinces — P.E.I., Quebec, Ontario, Manitoba, Alberta and British Columbia. The Conservatives improved in five — Newfoundland, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Alberta and B.C. They also did better in the territories.

The NDP did better in Newfoundland, P.E.I., Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and the territories.

Sooke Wharf Fees Arouse Public's Ire

District marine agent Larry Slaght said Friday charges being levied for wharfage at Sooke Harbor are in line with government wharf regulations across the country.

There have been no charges at Sooke Harbor in the past because the department had no wharfinger — a man who collects wharfing fees and retains a percentage as pay.

Mr. Slaght was answering charges by Larry Sutherland, 5884 Sooke Road, who said the federal government is failing to provide adequate moorage in the harbor.

Mr. Sutherland said charges were unfair because of the lack of facilities.

"There is no water — in fact, no facilities at all.

"Now the federal government is going to impose wharfage fees."

Among the worst problems is the fire hazard, Mr. Sutherland said.

"If there ever were a fire, the boats would have no way of getting out at all," he said.

"On top of everything else the wharf is in poor repair.

"We've been screaming for years for something to be done and now we're getting our answer — the imposition of fees."

He said the winter fees would be $5 monthly and 30 cents a foot in the summer — "and that will apply whether you're tied to the so-called float or to the 16th boat in line."

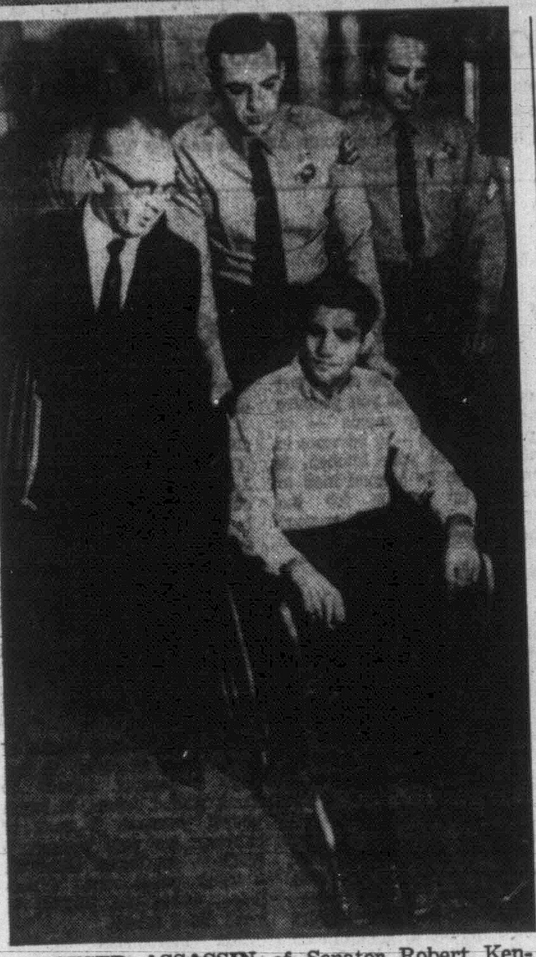
Chamber president Stuart Cummings said the wharf was rebuilt eight years ago about half its former size.

He said the floats are in bad condition, with holes and rotten pilings. There is no electricity or toilet facilities.



ACCUSED ASSASSIN of Senator Robert Kennedy, Sirhan Bishara Sirhan is wheeled to an elevator in Los Angeles County Central jail after winning a continuance of three weeks before intering a plea to a charge of murder. With him is his attorney, Russell E. Parsons. Sirham suffered an injured ankle at the time of his arrest the night Sen. Kennedy was shot. (AP Wirephoto).

Convention Centre Stand Re-affirmed

Victoria city council Thursday re-affirmed an earlier decision to encourage the building of a convention centre in or near the Wharf Street waterfront urban renewal area.

In making the formal decision Thursday council members rapped the knuckles of Ald. Percy Frampton and rejected a request for further delay from Ald. Robert Baird.

The first decision to endeavor to get a convention centre on the waterfront was made little more than 18-months ago. Since then it has been the topic of many committee and council meetings.

When the economic survey of the waterfront area was presented to council a month ago it also recommended the convention centre be located in or close to the urban renewal area.

The report of the economists stated that the centre would provide the spark for further development by private capital.

Ald. Framton said he was afraid that the city was depriving private capital of the right to build the proposed centre.

He told council he had been in touch with private developers who had assured him that with the right sort of co-operation construction could start in November on a hotel-motel-convention centre complex well away from the waterfront.

Ald. Ian Stewart said he too had heard the rumor and had taken time to track down the agents of the firm involved.

"I asked specifically 'what would the reaction of your principals be if they were held to the urban renewal area?' and they answered quite firmly 'okay'.

"They also assured me that they were a long way from the planning stage and that all they were doing at present was discussing possibilities."

Of Ald. Frampton's re-introduction of the Oxford Leasehold proposal to build a convention centre opposite city hall he was equally critical.

"All we have had is a lot of talk," he said. "If we could convert the talk into action and the action into dollars we would have a centre a long time ago.

"As for this latest proposal (outlined by Ald. Frampton) it is one of the vaguest I have every heard."

Before discussion started a letter from Ald. Baird, absent from the meeting, was read advocating a tabling of a decision until the next council meeting.

"I'm tired of waiting," said Ald. Hugh Ramsey. "Let's get on with the job."

Unions May Revive Dormant Merger Deal

Merger talks between two food processing unions are "in a state of limbo," and official of one union said Friday.

"The issue is a long, long way from being settled," said Jack Nichol of Vancouver, business agent for the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union, which has 9,473 members in British Columbia.

The last meeting between the UFAWU and the United Packinghouse, Food and Allied Workers, which has 25,000 members in Canada, was in May.

Top officers of the packinghouse union were in the United States for a projected merger with the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of North America, which has 10,909 members in Canada.

TWO MONTH RECESS

While there have been no talks with the UFAWU for two months, "this doesn't mean talks are off. I think they will go on as soon as packinghouse is available," said Mr. Nichol.

A merger between the two unions would solidify strength in the food industry, especially if the butchers' union joins packinghouse.

It would also provide an entry into the Canadian Labour Congress for the independent UFAWU by becoming part of an existing affiliated union.

Mr. Nichol said "it is difficult to assess" when a merger proposal might be placed before the union's membership.

It would have to go before the UFAWU convention — the next one is in January — and a full program would have to be worked out for submission to members, not just a simple "yes or no" to a no-details merger.

How many years younger do you think your face should look to make you really happy?

When a woman uses 2nd Debut to make her face look too young, it would be said that she used it not too wisely. And if she uses it to shed only one or two birthdays, this too would be a waste of her time, energy and money. Any woman about to depart on a course of facial rehabilitation with 2nd Debut should first decide just how youthful her face should be made to look to best serve her present purposes. Once this decision is made, there remains little to do beyond applying 2nd Debut nightly according to directions and discontinuing its use when the desired state of more youthful looking linelessness is reached.

WHAT 2nd DEBUT IS:

2nd Debut is a radical departure from the oily creams and lotions that have been the basis of skin care during the past century. It is a scientific development based in the demonstrable fact that skin's appearance ages through dryness, and that the oiliest skin can also be the driest. 2nd Debut demonstrates to women of all ages that dryness can be relieved continuously and varying degrees of youthful appearance reestablished by maintaining the water balance of skin at normally required levels. 2nd Debut, therefore, contains neither oil nor grease. Instead, it is an aqueous emulsion of the ingredient known to be the one employed by nature to keep human skin adequately moist to prevent dryness and premature aging.

As contained in the emulsion 2nd Debut, this ingredient (known as CEF) need only to be applied to the surface of facial skin. The water-moisture level of the skin automatically rises. Progressively, the skin's surface appears smoother and more youthful as lines become less evident and some completely disappear. Those around the eyes, the nose and mouth are usually among those that respond earliest to regular nightly applications of 2nd Debut. The tone of the entire face and neck is at once lifted and given the appearance of fresher form as you near the end of your first 2nd Debut course in youth renewal. From that point on, occasional applications of 2nd Debut with its rich CEF 600 content help facial freshness to remain and facial smoothness to continue to replace those insidious premature age lines that plagued you before your friendship with 2nd Debut began. And, at some later indefinite time, you may begin another course of nightly 2nd Debut applications, with assurance it will be fully as effective as the routine just completed.

2nd Debut is made in two potencies. The first contains CEF 600 and is designed for the woman with early worries; that is, the younger woman who has started to line before her time.

The double-potency CEF 1200 was formulated for the face over forty; or for the impatient lady who wants visible results without delay—or for you if your facial lines are deep. It should smooth age lines faster. In only a few days you see a marked change.

Now, to prepare your skin to receive these treatments, 2nd Debut Liquid Cleanser was developed. Its results are dynamic. Its application is different, for it is to be applied in a thin layer over your face and throat. Then rinse off with cool water. Now your skin is clear, and clean. Really clean!

For a perfect complexion instantly, matte finish 2nd Debut Liquid Make-up with CEF 600. Covers blemishes and imperfections so completely and with such a natural look no one suspects it of being make-up. Helps overcome skin dryness, too. Six shades, each a natural skin tone. From Pale to Golden Tan.

Finally, 2nd Debut Body & Hand Lotion (with CEF 600) is a most welcome sensation in body and hand grooming. Imparts a feeling of luxury to the body that makes you regard yourself with extra importance. And its CEF 600 richness quickly defeats the cause of chapping and roughness with its deep moisturizing of your hands. This is a dual-purpose balm with an immediate and pleasurable effect.

When luscious home-grown strawberries are being picked and served every day it encourages the gardener to talk about a larger planting for next year. It is all so simple. The plants will naturally make runners on which new plants will form, and when these new plants have rooted they can be lifted and reset in a prepared bed.

So far, so good. The only drawback is when these new plants fail to produce expected quantities of berries.

This brings us to a question that is repeated hundreds of times each strawberry season; "Why are the plants I set out last fall not bearing fruit?"

While the answer may be linked with environment, climatic conditions for the season, pests or diseases, it is more often a case of the gardener propagating the wrong plants.

•

Some strawberry plants produce fruit in abundance, others produce very few berries. Some produce comparatively large berries, some comparatively small fruits, and there are always a few plants that produce berries of superior flavor.

These are not differences between one variety of strawberry and another, but differences within one given variety.

In every planting, whether commercial or home garden, we find this variation in characteristics, some desirable and some not worth perpetuating.

The commercial grower is constantly discarding the poorer plants, but the home gardener rarely notices these differences.

Careful observation will bring to light another characteristic of the strawberry.

Those plants which produce least fruit, or no fruit at all, are ones which produce most runners, and the resultant new plants will carry the poor fruiting characteristic.

From this we can see how easy it is for a home gardener to build up a stock of poor quality plants.

Conversely, it is just as easy to improve one's plantings by propagating only those plants which have the most desirable characteristics such as abundant fruiting, superior flavor, and large fruits.

To do this we start selecting our propagating stock long before runners begin to form; in fact, we start when growth begins in spring by marking the healthiest, most robust plants.

The handiest markers are small stakes painted in different colors; for instance white, red, and green. White stakes could be placed beside the best plants in spring.

At fruiting time we could place a red stake beside each plant that carries a quantity of fruit of good flavor.

We may find a white and red stake beside the same plant, but quite often we discover the most vigorous plants are not producers of the most desirable fruits.

As picking continues we shall notice a few marked plants which produce over the longer period and to these we add a green stake.

After picking has finished and runners start to grow, we look for plants that have three stakes, white, red and green, beside them. If none have three markers, we select those with red and green that indicate superiority in fruiting.

White stakes are removed from plants that did not receive stakes with the other two colors, and we can now remove all runners that form on plants without markers.

Plants with red and green markers are not going to make many runners, some may only produce a couple, others four or six.

Our best plants for propagation will be the first to form on each runner, and each parent plant should be limited to four runners.

In other words, from each parent we figure on four new plants if we can get them, and any other runners the plant produces are cut off.

It is quite a common practice to allow new plants that form on each runer to root into the soil between rows of parent plants, but home gardeners have time to get better results.

We can grow each new plant in a separate container and have some real husky stock to start a new bed in late fall or early spring.

To do this we need some soup cans with three holes punched at the base of the sides and three holes in the bottom. These holes are made with an ordinary kitchen can punch. Or we can use three-inch clay pots.

Next, we make up a soil mixture of screened compost and sand, about a three to one ratio. After putting some broken pot in the bottom of the containers we fill them to the top with soil mixture.

As soon as we see leaves opening on the runners, a container is sunk into the soil beneath the new plantlet and the plantlet pegged into the soil mixture. Roots will soon form.

•

The runner will extend, but we cut it off just beyond the first plantlet, leaving it attached to the parent plant until around late August.

By that time we shall have sturdy plants growing in each container and we can decide whether a new bed will be planted in fall or the following spring.

Fall planting (early September) is best if the home gardener takes the trouble to see that plants are not heaved out of the soil by frost, or soil washed away from roots by heavy rains over winter.

If spring planting seems more reasonable, the cans or pots are lifted and buried to the rim in sand in a cold-frame.

We can readily see the advantages of selection over haphazard reproduction. Not only is it an interesting and enlightening practice, it is plain common sense to grow plants in the home garden that will give large returns from a small space.

WEEK'S WORK

After this week, do not give fertilizers to any tree or shrub which is expected to go through winter outdoors. Growths made during this season must have chance to harden before frosts.

Regardless of showers during week, plants near walls and under eaves will need extra watering.

If vacation coming up, soak garden well, then mulch with compost material around vegetables, and dampen peatmoss or seaforest mulch around shrubs and other plants needing acid or near neutral soils.

Herbs whose leaves are to be dried should be cut only when thoroughly dry or they may rot. Flavor is at peak just before flowering and when cut on a sunny day. Dry in small business hung in warm airy place.

Weddings

Pengelly — Weatherdon

Reverend Dr. Lewis W. McLean officiated at the double ring ceremony Saturday evening at 7:30 p.m., June 15th, uniting in marriage Beth Elaine Weatherdon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Weatherdon, 2170 Sandowne Road, to Mr. Thomas G. Pengelly, son of Captain and Mrs. G. Pengelly, 2206 Woodhouse Road. Baskets of pink gladioli with white stock and pink carnations decorated St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

Miss Norma Elwell of the Royal Jubilee Hospital Graduating Class of January, 1969, sang "I'll Walk Beside You" and "Oh Perfect Love" accompanied on the organ by Mr. C. C. Warren. The radiant bride who was given in marriage by her father chose a Peau D' Elegance gown styled on Empire lines with lace jacket and train. A four-tiered veil of nylon net with scalloped edge was held in place by a headpiece of nylon net petals tipped with seed pearls. Beth carried a cascade bouquet of pink roses, white carnations and stephanotis with mauve orchid in the centre. The tiny pearl earrings was her gift from the groom.

Mrs. Sheila Bowware, matron of honor, Mrs. Elaine Weatherdon, Port Alberni, bridesmatron, Miss Jose de Bourcier, bridesmaid, were all in deep pink Peau D' Elegance floor-length gowns with empire lines, and headpieces of nylon net held in place with dainty rosebuds and petals to match the dresses, and tipped with seed pearls, one strand of pearls and errings, a gift from the bride was worn by the three attendants. They carried nosegays of white carnations with pink roses, Miss Lisa McCulloch, flowergirl, looked lovely in a pink floor-length gown topped with white overskirt and headpiece to match, trimmed with seed pearls. Lisa carried a tiny basket of flowers. She wore a single drop pearl pendant, a gift from the bride. Mr. Donald Gardner was best man; Mr. Keith Weatherdon, Port Alberni; Mr. Gordon Pengelly, and Mr. Thomas Bowware were ushers. Master Craig McCulloch was ring bearer. Mr. Brian Weatherdon was in charge of having the Guest Book signed.

The reception was held at the Union Centre, 2750 Quadra Street, following the wedding. A four-tiered wedding cake made by the bride's mother was topped with a bride and groom. It centred the head table. Mr. C. Nicholls from Waterloo, Ontario, proposed the toast to the bride's happiness.

Out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. James Demers, grandparents of the bride, Ottawa, Ontario; Mr. and Mrs. C. Nicholls, Waterloo, Ontario; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Inglis. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cull and Norine, Calgary, Alberta; Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Relf and Dennis, Saskatoon, Sask.; Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Lindsay, Mrs. Gene Heron, Captain and Mrs. E. Lillie, Vancouver, B.C.; Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Brigden, Chemainus, B.C.

Bright — Wilson

Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Wilson, 1811 Ruby Road, are happy to announce the marriage of their eldest daughter Heather Ann to Mr. Clive E. Bright, B.A.I., Dublin, Ireland. The wedding took place on June 15 in London, England.

The new Mrs. Bright will be returning to Victoria in July after 2½ years absence, where she has been working in London and travelling in Europe. She will be visiting her family for a month prior to rejoining her husband, who will be coming to Canada in August. They will be residing in Eastern Canada.

Bynum — Boychuk

The chapel of First United Church was the scene of a double-ring ceremony at 11:00 a.m. on Saturday, June 22, 1968, when Evelyn Joyce, the youngest daugher of Mr. and Mrs. John G. Boychuk of Victoria, became the bride of Robert David, now of San Francisco, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert N. Bynum of Tulsa, Oklahoma. Reverend Robert J. D. Morris officiated at the exchange of vows while Mrs. D. Bunt accompanied at the organ. Given in marriage her father, the bride wore a short off-white organdy gown which fell in large box pleats. The dress was trimmed in wide crotcheted lace across the yoke, encircling the skirt and the cuffs of the wide gathered wrist-length sleeves. A shoulder-length silk illusion veil was caught up by a headpiece of pink roses and stephanotis. Her bouquet was of matching flowers.

The bride's attendant, Mrs. Norene Silbey of Los Angeles (formerly Miss Bradshaw of Victoria) wore a pink crepe sleeveless dress with ruffle edged V-neck which ended in a bow at the gathered waist. Her headpiece and bouquet were of pink roses and white carnation ruffles. Mr. Carter Benson of San Francisco was best man. Mr. James Brezden cousin of the bride, and Urbain Patrick ushered the guests.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Oak Bay Beach Hotel where a Canadian and American flag honored the guests of both countries. Mr. Pierre Nobert, brother-in-law of the bride, proposed the toast, and Miss Patricia Puhach played the piano.

The newlyweds will make their home in San Francisco, California, after honeymooning at Carmel-by-the-Sea, California. Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Bynum, Tulsa, Oklahoma, parents of the groom, Mr. Steve Bodnariuk, Willingdon, Alberta; Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Nobert, Montreal; Mr. and Mrs. J. Brezden and daughter Darlene, Langley, B.C., Mr. and Mrs. James Brezden, Langley, B.C., Mrs. Gladys Ellis, Los Angeles, Calif., Mr. and Mrs. Carter Benson, San Francisco, Calif., Mr. and Mrs. P. Slova, Port Alberni, B.C., and daughter Leslie.

Thomson — Houston

A double-ring ceremony, conducted by Reverend W. Hill took place on May 25th, 1968, in St. Patrick's Church, Oak Bay, when Jean Marie, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Houston, Kathleen Street, exchanged vows with Edward Patrick Thomson, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Thomson, Musgrave Street.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride looked radiant in a floor-length gown of white satin with Chantilly lace overlay. The sleeves were close fitting lily-point style and attached at the shoulders was a sweeping cathedral train of the same lace. Her four-tiered chapel veil of silk illusion net misted from a floral headpiece. Her cascade bouquet consisted of white stephanotis and pink roses.

The maid of honor Miss Beverley Busch and bridesmatrons Mrs. Louise Hurst and Mrs. Susan Houston wore gowns of Nile green embossed brocade. They wore pink daisies in their hair and carried bouquets of the same. Flower girl, Lisa Houston, wore a pink and white eyelet ankle-length dress and also carried pink daisies. Best man was Mr. Raymond Stacey, and ushers were Messrs. Ken Houston and Bill Thomson.

Richens — Ridley

A pretty wedding took place Saturday, June 1st, 1968, at 7 p.m. in St. John's Church, Colwood, when Reverend P. Isles, assisted by Reverend D. Hatfield, united in marriage Colleen Marjory Sylvia, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Ridley, 3148 Metchosin Road, to Larry Lewis Richens, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Richens, 760 Latoria Road, in a double-ring ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, looked charming in her beautiful floor-length gown of Chantilly lace with portrait neckline and three-quarter-length sleeves accented with a tiny bridal bow at the fitted waist. A panel of silk organza fell the length of the front of the slim skirt. An orchid held a tiered veil of silk illusion. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses with stephanotis and ivy.

Elaine Dickson, maid of honor, twin sisters of the bride, Carol and Mary Ridley, were bridesmaids; Sharon Ridley, niece of the bride, was flower girl. Attendants wore floor-length gowns of pastel yellow silk chiffon over taffeta, with floral headpieces entone, they carried bouquets of yellow roses with white carnations, Sharon carried a basket of Shasta daisies and yellow rosebuds.

Best man was Mark Robinson and ushers were George Richens, brother of the groom, and Mervyn Knight.

The wedding reception was held at the Buffalo Hall on Goldstream Avenue for 150 guests. Leaving on their honeymoon the new Mrs. Richens wore a Swiss wool dress suit in maize complemented with white accessories. Her corsage was a mauve orchid. Mr. and Mrs. Larry Richens now reside at 3374 Anchorage Avenue.

5 DEATHS AND FUNERALS

MARCHAM—In Victoria on June 28, 1968, Mrs. Margaret Marcham, aged 85 years; born in Balmoral, Man., and a resident of this city for the past 18 years. She is survived by two sons, Leonard Mountford of Summerland, B.C., and Gordon Mountford of Prince Rupert; one daughter, Mrs. Emily Poulsom of Edmonton; five grandchildren, four great-grandchildren; one brother, William McQuarrie of Balmoral, Man. She was a member of St. Aidan's United Church. Funeral services will be held in McCall's Bros. FLORAL CHAPEL, Johnson and Vancouver Streets, on Tuesday, July 2, at 10:00 a.m., Rev. A. G. MacLeod officiating. Accompanied to Summerland, B.C., for interment at the Peach Orchard Cemetery.

PAIGE — In White Rock, B.C., on Thursday, June 27, 1968, Mr. William Melvin Paige of 15383 Russell Avenue, White Rock. Mr. Paige is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Eleanor Slater of Victoria; one step-daughter, Mrs. Lois Klaassen of Victoria; two granddaughters, Mrs. Shirley Boothroyd and Cynthia Slater of Victoria, and two great-grandsons; four sisters, Mrs. Olive Carter and Mrs. Violet Verrall of Toronto, Mrs. Leola Sherman of Montreal and Mrs. Queenie McGee of North Hatley, Que.

Canon Rev. R. E. H. Howell will conduct the funeral service on Tuesday, July 2, 1968, at 1:30 p.m., from Chaplin's Funeral Chapel. Interment in Royal Oak Burial Park. Flowers gratefully declined.

RIGBY—At the Veterans' Hospital on June 28, 1968, Neil Rigby of Parksville, B.C., in his 65th year. Survived by his loving wife, Nora, at home; two step-sons, Ronald Salmon, Kamloops, and Edwin Salmon, Port Alberni; seven grandchildren; his step-mother, Mrs. E. Bigby, Kamloops; two brothers, Thomas, Vancouver, and Joe in California; three sisters, Mrs. Betty Wolfe and Mrs. Nella Alexander, Kamloops, and Mrs. Sally Graham, Vancouver. He was a member of Mt. Arrowsmith Branch, Royal Canadian Legion, and served in the Merchant Navy and Royal Army Medical Corps, Second World War. Cremation. A memorial service will be held in Parksville at a later date. HAYWARD'S CHAPEL in charge of arrangements.

WATTERS — In Creston, B.C., on Thursday, June 27, 1968, Mrs. Cecelia Evelyn (Eva) Watters of 855 Cook Street. She was born in Pleasant Harbour, N.S., and lived in Calgary before coming to Victoria. She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. J. (Helen) Carmichael of Creston, B.C., and two sons, Fred Watters of Victoria and Robert Watters of Prince Rupert, and 14 grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held on Saturday, June 29, in Creston. Interment will be in the Union Cemetery, Calgary.

9 IN MEMORIAM

POLSON — In loving memory of Anne Barron Polson, born Fort Augustus, Scotland, 1888, died Victoria, B.C. 1958.

Time, they said, will heal all sorrows.
People soon forget.
If this be true, how can it be
I mourn you even yet?
—Ever remembered by her daughter, Winifred.

MEEDS—In memory of Harvey J., who passed away June 29, 1964.

We often sit and think of him
when we are all alone,
For memory is the only friend,
that grief can call its own.
Like ivy on the withered oak,
when all other things decay,
Our love for him will still keep green and never fade away.

WILKINS — In loving memory of Lynn who passed away June 30, 1964.

God knew all about it, how noble,
How gentle he was, and how brave,
How bright his possible future,
Yet put him to sleep in his grave.
God knew all about those who love Him,
How bitter the trial must be;
And right through it all God is loving
And knows so much better than we.
—Lovingly remembered by his Mother, Irene.

YATES — In loving memory of our dear Mother, Mrs. Jane Yates, who passed away, June 30, 1960.

We will always remember the way you looked
The way you used to smile.
The little things you did and said
Are with us all the while.
You gave us years of happiness
Then came sorrow and tears.
But you left us beautiful memories
To treasure through the years.
—Ever remembered and sadly missed by Lilian, Edith and grandson Ray.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

The suite-preference signal is one of the most abused, misunderstood and generally kicked around plays in bridge. Basically when you want your partner to lead a high-ranking suit, you play a high card, while a low-card play asks for the lead of a low-ranking suit.

Since from time immemorial you also play a high card to show strength in a suit and ask for a lead of it, and a low card to show weakness and ask for the lead of some other suit, there is plenty of opportunity for confusion.

South won the opening lead with dummy's ace of diamonds. He could have made 11 tricks at this point by ruffing a second diamond, leading a trump to dummy's 10, cashing the trump ace, returning to his own hand with the king of clubs, cashing his king of trumps and running dummy's clubs. West would ruff the fifth club but South would have had time to get rid of three of his four hearts.

South didn't come up with this play but he managed to make six when the defence fell apart.

South simply played ace and 10 of spades and covered with his jack. West took his queen and had to decide what to lead. East had played the nine of diamonds at trick one and proceeded to discard the jack of diamonds on that second spade.

West decided he was asking for a second diamond and obliged whereupon South ruffed, drew trumps and made the rest of the tricks.

East wanted to know if West couldn't recognize a suit preference signal West wanted to know why East could not have spared the nine of hearts. East pointed out that the nine of hearts discard would have only set South one trick. With all hearts saved West could have led his ace of hearts and eventually used a small trump to ruff the fourth heart lead.

We are going to let them fight it out.

1968 DATSUN SEDAN

The "more-for-your-money car." If somebody ever tells you he drives an economy import with 96 h.p. engine that goes 100 m.p.h., has a safer, impact absorbing body, the safest suspension money can buy, a wrap-around air-flow system that keeps windows clear, that it looks great, handles like a dream and that he bought it from us for only $2,025, believe him. WANT A SLOUGH AND A HORRIBLE 4-BEDROOM HOME 4.14 ACRES

You won't like this at all. On top of this home which needs about $4,000 spent on it (probably more) You have to put up with a real eyesore — 4,000 sq. ft. of greenhouse that could possibly rent for $50 per month. They tell me a lot might be subdived from the property (doubtful) and that it could bring $6,500-$7,000. (Definitely too much for a piece of raw wilderness even though it's on city water). Then the slough. Sort of picturesque, with the stagnant waters reflecting tall pines and firs all the way (5 feet)to its peat bogged bottom.

$21,000 Cash ($9,000) to Mortgage.

Auto Firms to Drop Five-Year Warranty

TORONTO (CP) — Buyers of 1969 model cars from the big four North American makes this fall may find the Five-Fifty power train warranty no longer part of the deal.

The manufacturers—American Motors (Canada) Ltd., Chrysler of Canada, Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd. and General Motors of Canada—are cagey on the subject. In fact they are scarcely saying a word.

But rumor in the industry is that confusion in present warranty servicing, plus higher-than-expected repair costs under warranty may push manufacturers out of long-term, high-mileage warranties altogether.

Already the Five-Fifty—so called because it guarantees free repairs on key car components for five years or 50,000 miles since Chrysler introduced it five years ago—has been curtailed.

Starting with 1968 models it applies automatically only to the first owner. A second or subsequent owner must pay $25 to take over the warranty. In most cases he also must pay the first $25 of any repair bill.

The 24-month-24,000-mile warranty may be the only one provided on new car models.

OPTIONS GOING

Another report is that many pieces of equipment, once optional but now standard, such as bucket seats and centre consoles, may become optional again.

Manufacturers are said to believe this a good way to keep new car prices steady.

Any announcement on warranties will be made on an industry-wide basis when the 1969 models are announced at the end of August, spokesmen say.

For the car-owner a cutback in warranties means he pays his own repair costs once his speedometer has clocked off 24,000 miles. But he will also be less confused about what his warranty covers—a prime cause of administrative warranty headaches for dealers and manufacturers. turers.

One automotive executive says that cars should cost customers less in the long run without the long-term warranty.

"The problem of handling warranties, in relation to what the customer was getting out of it, is one reason for a possible cutback," the executive sai.d "The customer has been paying more for his car than he would have otherwise."

Leniency Plea Gets Two Years

A 22-year-old man, Leo Pauluk, was sentenced in Victoria county court Friday to two years imprisonment less a day on charges of breaking and entering and being in possession of housebreaking implements.

Judge Montague Drake said he was satisfied Pauluk would learn a useful trade in Oakalla prison.

He had pleaded guilty to breaking and entering Page the Cleaner, 2919 Douglas Street, on March 16 last and to being in possession of two pry bars, a machine-hammer and three screwdrivers.

His defence counsel, Dermod Owen-Flood pleaded for leniency because the accused had changed his way of life since meeting a girl who is now his common law wife.

Mr. Owen-Flood called Mrs. Pauluk — an attractive dark-haired girl — to the witness stand and asked her:

"Do you love this man?"

"Yes, I do," she replied.

"If he is sentenced will you wait for him?"

"Yes."

The girl said she was experienced as an accountant and would do all she could to help him.

"He just wasn't trained for anything," she declared, "and he was out of work when he committed the offence."

On the witness stand, Pauluk said he came out to the coast from Toronto to "start a new life." He said he owed about $3,000 in debts incurred by his first wife.

"When you have paid your debt to society have you any prospects of a job?" asked Mr. Owen-Flood.

"Yes," Pauluk replied. "I have found out what life is all about and I shall go straight."

Judge Drake said Pauluk had "a rather dismal record," but they were mostly nuisance offences.

J. W. Anderson appeared for the Crown.

Clam Danger Area Defined

The federal department of fisheries has issued a routine warning of toxic clams in the Ruxton Pass and Falls Narrows areas south of Gabriola Island near Nanaimo.

A spokesman for the department in Vancouver said Friday clams in the area have a "slight poison content" at the moment.

Routine samplings, normally taken about once every two weeks, have been increased in the affected zones.

Though danger from the clams is low at present, the department of public health has joined the fisheries department in warning against taking clams from affected waters.

75th Anniversary

The Chinese Presbyterian Church at 816 North Park Street will celebrate its 75th anniversary Sunday at 2:30 p.m. Members and friends will honor the memory of Rev. Ng Mon Hing who preached here and in Vancouver in the 1890s, Rev. M. F. Leung, who served the church for 46 years; and Rev. A. B. Winchester, the missionary who established the church in 1893. The present church was built in 1922 and dedicated on May 28 of that year. It was completely renovated last year as part of a centennial project under the leadership of Rev. Edward Ling.

Obedience Course To Be Taken By Junior SPCA

Trainers will be Hunter Smith of Mill Bay and Mrs. Tom Prangley and Mrs. Betty McKinnon, Duncan.

This is just part of the junior SPCA program.

The Cowichan branch has grown in its 18 months' existence to a membership of 45 boys and girls with Mrs. Alex Reid and Mrs. William Rambold as the senior leaders.

Although the group has no other income than its membership dues it has already purchased American Humane Society kits into 50 local elementary classrooms.

The group has also provided drinking dishes for the dogs at the Duncan SPCA shelter, and made a donation to the Island View Wildlife research centre at Saanichton.

Mary Speller Given Major School Honor

Grade 10 graduate Mary Speller was presented with the major trophy in Awards Day ceremonies Thursday at S. J. Willis junior secondary school.

Junior Forest Wardens Camp Established

Canadian junior forest warden training camps will start July 3.

The programs at Evans Lake training centre, a few miles north of Squamish, have been designed to combine healthful recreation with nature appreciation and a grounding in outdoor skills says W. F. Myring, secretary-manager of the Canadian Forestry Association of B.C.

Three eight-day camps will be held under adult supervision for boys between the ages of 10 and 16. Camp dates are July 3-10, July 13-20 and July 23-30.

Those interested are asked to write the forestry association for application forms.

Students Honored At Gordon Head

Bruce Fougner and Barbara McMaster won citizenship awards, and Louise Page received the French Government book prize.

Those who made the Honor Roll were Carol Wrenshall, Patricia Bastone, Beverley Mitchell, Sharon Harter, Linda Henderson and Ian Reid.

Impaired Driving Brings Jail Term

Court was told Gustav Mueller, 3319 Painter, was observed driving in an erratic manner May 26 on highway 1A. He gave a breathalyzer reading of .24.

His previous convictions were in 1958, '59 and '62.

B.C. Woman Dies From Stabbing

HONG KONG (AP) — A 78-year-old Vancouver woman was stabbed to death by two burglars in her apartment here Friday night.

She was identified as Alice Meredith Hughes.

Police said Mrs. Hughes was in her apartment with a servant when the burglars entered. The servant told police the burglars stabbed Mrs. Hughes several times when she put up a fight to stop them from tying her up and gagging her. The servant also was gagged and bound. The servant rushed to the police when she managed to free herself of the ropes that were tied around her.

Authorities said Mrs. Hughes had been in Hong Kong for six weeks, having come here from Canada to visit her 40-year-old son, Rodney, who is the local marketing manager for an insurance company. Her son was in the hospital at the time of the murder.

Mrs. Hughes was the second European woman murdered here in recent years. The last was Florence Ryder, a 34-year-old Australian secretary found stabbed to death in her apartment in the colony's exclusive Victoria Peak area Dec. 2, 1966.

Inspector Acquitted Of Classroom Upset

DUNCAN — Former Cowichan schools superintendent Arthur Jones was acquitted Friday of a charge of unlawfully disturbing a classroom.

And Magistrate Eric Winch said the action of informant Kenneth Hasanen "almost deliberately provoked" the situation which arose in a Cowichan senior secondary school classroom Oct. 16, 1967.

An unemployed teacher, Mr. Hasanen laid the charge under the Public Schools Act. Mr. Jones has since retired.

In testifying Friday, Mr. Hasanen said: "Mr. Jones entered my classroom without knocking, glanced in my direction and walked to the back of the room.

"He bumped into a stand of maps and into a student and then sat on a piano stool.

"I was surprised and not happy to see him as I felt it was going to interfere a great deal with the work I was doing with my students."

Mr. Hasanen said he stated to Mr. Jones that he was unused to unannounced visitors and would he please have the courtesy of making an appointment.

Mr. Jones simply asked him his name and told him to "carry on."

Mr. Hasanen said he felt himself in "a bit of a spot" and decided not to continue the class but again asked Mr. Jones to make an appointment.

He said Mr. Jones then enumerated his rights under school law to be present.

TONE GREW LOUD

Mr. Hasanen said: "I thought he was angry and there to take punitive action and his tone grew louder as the conversation proceeded."

He said he told Mr. Jones he was aware of his authority, but refused his order to go with him to his office immediately.

Mr. Hasanen said: "At one point he ordered me to leave the room and I suggested he was getting a little excited and should hold off. He left and came back later."

He said he was not teaching his Grade 10 slow learners the lesson plan science but trying to diagnose their learning difficulties.

He said: "I regard my communication with students to be privileged."

In cross-examination he said he did not do Mr. Jones the courtesy of rising and introducing him to the class because "he just headed straight toward the back of the class."

Mr. Hasanen denied defence counsel David Wright's suggestion that it was ridiculous for him to say Mr. Jones required to make an appointment.

Mr. Wright in his summation said the class disturbance was brought about by Mr. Hasanen's rude and discourteous behaviour in reaction to an authorised visit to his classroom.

Prosecutor Thomas Lines said all but one of the testifying students said the class was disturbed but instead of withdrawing immediately Mr. Jones got himself into a shouting argument.

Magistrate Winch said: "I'm most concerned that Mr. Hasanen in his evidence placed himself in the position of feeling he had a duty to disobey Mr. Jones as he had a higher duty to himself."

He said: "I'm satisfied that this amounted almost to a premeditated act of disobedience."

He said Mr. Hasanen's facetious remark about a "new student" in reference to Mr. Jones set the tone for the subsequent events in the classroom.

Magistrate Winch said: "Hasanen set himself against the establishment. I cannot accept the standards which he wishes to lay down.

"Mr. Jones was exercising his right to go into the classroom and the fact there was no prior notice does not make it rude behaviour."

School Annex Construction Starts Soon

The contract for the addition comes just 10 months after the school was opened. The new facilties will include 10 classrooms, laboratories, workshops and a library expansion.

"We haven't found the magic formula for school construction. You couldn't build a new school for this amount."

The school cost about $918,000 and opened last September. It was designed to handle an early addition.

Mr. Bunn said it will take some enrolment pressure off Mount Douglas high school which now has four portable classrooms.

BRASS BAND AND CHOIR of Glad Tidings Tabernacle will lead the singing at open-air service in Beacon Hill Park Sunday at 7 p.m.

Tabernacle to Open Beacon Hill Services

It is the first of a series to be held in the park every Sunday through July and August.

The first will be conducted by Rev. Roy Upton of Glad Tidings Tabernacle, supported by a band and choir. Rev. Paul Cantelon of Bellingham, Wash., will give the gospel message.

Successive services will be conducted by the Salvation Army, Central Baptist Church, Victoria Brethren Assemblies, Church of the Nazarene, the Gideons, the Alliance Church, Free Methodists and the Shantymen's Christian Association.

All are sponsored by the Victoria committee, Christian Businessmen's International.

"They are designed for those who like to worship in the open air during the warm summer evenings," says Dan C. Webster, chairman of the Victoria committee.

Bible School

Sunday services at Central Baptist Church will begin at 9:45 a.m. with an all-age Bible School to be continued throughout the summer.

At 11 a.m. Pastor John M. Moore from Glasgow will preach on The Divine Inspiration of the Scriptures. At 7 p.m. his subject is The Bible in Miniature.

This Little Christian Unites Faiths

Karalyn Dianne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hubbard, 4992 Lochside, was baptized jointly by Rev. Leslie Wallwork, minister of Cordova Bay-Gordon Head United Church, and Rev. H. Gordon Walker, vicar of St. David-by-the-Sea Anglican Church.

The baby's father, Jack Hubbard, is a member of the Anglican Church; her mother, Jean, belongs to the United Church of Canada.

"Corporate baptism of this kind may unite many parents divided by church denomination," Mr. Walker said, "and so help the cause of union between the United and Anglican churches.

●

"A combined new church may well come into being through common baptism, common confirmation and the development of a common ministry."

The unique baptism took place at George Pringle United Church camp, where the congregations of St. David and Cordova Bay United held a joint picnic and open-air service.

"The two churches have worked together for the past two years," Mr. Walker said, "and it is a most friendly association."

Mr. Hubbard said he suggested the joint baptism on learning that the two churches would share their annual picnic.

"It was a very happy occasion and I believe it was a step in the right direction."

Film, Display To Emphasize Work in Brazil

By DON DINGWALL

DUNCAN — On Sunday, the Sunday school department of Trinity Lutheran Church, Duncan, under the direction of Mrs. Cecil Peet and Mr. George Bechtel will present a special mission emphasis on Brazil.

A film will point the need for mission work in the large cities of Brazil, and show some of the work being done in that country by the Lutheran church.

The offering will be sent to the Rev. Walter Hoerlle who is currently working in Goiana, Brazil.

Linda Neubauer and Laurie Peet will read special lessons in the opening service for Sunday school on this day.

DAILY SESSIONS

Children from age 4 to 14 may be enrolled at any time during the Trinity Lutheran church vacation bible school which starts Tuesday, July 2.

There will be daily sessions 9 to 11:45 a.m.

Mrs. Ian Brown, Mrs. Al Posehn, Mrs. Sam Koffski and Mrs. Baldwin Camin (wife of the pastor) are some of the members of the teaching staff. Mrs. George Bechtel will be in charge of the singing and teaching of new songs which are part of the overall program.

The vacancy at St. John's Anglican Church, Cobble Hill, has been filled.

New rector is the Rev. Cecil Day. The bachelor priest comes to the island from Merritt where he served for three years.

SPECIAL PROJECT

Prior to that, Mr. Day was on loan for a year to the diocese of Antigua in the West Indies to direct a special building project.

He succeeds the late Rev. Peter Harris at Cobble Hill.

Sands Exclusive service for those who travel . . .

A collect call to Sands, at a time of emergency, brings one of our service vehicles (or charter aircraft) out to you anywhere in the Pacific Northwest.

You are spared the distress of having an unfamiliar funeral director in another city arrange for removal to Victoria, and at a cost which far exceeds our special service. Sands relieve you of all anxiety at a time when it is comforting to have friends attending to your needs rather than strangers.

A service of dignity and beauty can be arranged regardless of financial circumstances. The selection of casket to suit every financial need is made possible through Sands' economical practice of car-load purchasing . . . savings which are served with those we serve.

Dark Rooms Dangerous When Spirits at Work

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

A stranger called in at Victoria Open Door Spiritualist Church Sunday and the clairvoyant, Rev. Elsie Tingley, singled him out for a message.

"You sing, don't you?" she said.

"I try to," the man replied.

"Well, the spirit friend with you tells me you're straining your voice on high notes. She was a tall, dark woman and she had a beautiful voice. I get a slight French accent. Do you recall her?"

"Well," said Mrs. Tingley, "I'm getting a very musical vibration and this lady is trying to help you. You may know that the people in spirit are always trying to help those on earth, and in the best way they know how."

The man said he couldn't think of anyone who answered Mrs. Tingley's description — until the following morning.

"When I woke soon after 6 a.m., I suddenly remembered a tall, dark French-Canadian girl I had known in London, England. She had a superb voice and she sang in recital and on the BBC.

NINE YEARS

"But I've never heard that she died. When I last listened to her, she was singing over the CBC from Montreal. That was eight or nine years ago."

The man said he would write to the CBC and inquire.

Such messages are fairly commonplace in the white-walled spiritualist church conducted by Mrs. Tingley at 1600 Cook Street. She holds her service Sunday evening and plays the organ in a United Church Sunday morning.

An attractive, grey-haired woman, she wears a white surplice over her dress and conducts a simple service, with hymns and prayers, similar to those in many gospel churches.

"We don't go in for darkened rooms or seances," Mrs. Tingley said, "but we do lower the lights a little at our Wednesday evening healing circles.

"We heal by the laying on of hands, as was done in Christ's time and is now done in many Anglican churches."

Mrs. Tingley's clairvoyant messages are usually recognized.

"You have a pain here," she said to an elderly lady, pressing her hands to her body. "The spirit friends are trying to cure it — let us pray that God will help them."

With eyes tightly closed, Mrs. Tingley prayed. Next morning the lady told her the pain had "almost gone."

"We don't see spirits with our mortal eyes," Mrs. Tingley said. "it's a kind of inner vision — of the kind you sometimes get when you're falling off to sleep.

"Sometimes I see two spirit forms at once, and then it becomes confusing. Spirits who have been out of the body a very long time are often faint in outline.

"There are bad spirits as well as good spirits," she said. "The Bible tells us to test the spirits, to be sure they are of God.

"Seances in darkened rooms can be dangerous."

Church, Quamichan, is the annual barbecue at the home and grounds of congregation members Mr. and Mrs. Paul Stone, Gibbins Road.

This year's event is scheduled for Thursday, July 4, starting at 5 p.m.

Joint conveners are Stan Mouncey and Don Pite. Beside the barbecued supper there will be games and rides for the adults and children.

St. Peter's rector, Rev. Neil Robinson, announced this week that Mr. Mouncey will be leaving the district in September.

ELEPHANT GIRL Miss Luciana will perform in the Carson and Barnes circus which will be held at 2:30 p.m. and 8 p.m. Monday and Tuesday at Esquimalt Sports Arena, sponsored by Esquimalt Lions.

THE ONE AND ONLY. GENUINE ORIGINAL FAMILY BAND
Capitol Theatre

When I was in Hollywood last February, they were putting the final touches to this latest in the long line of family films inspired by the late Walt Disney.

Virtue is its own reward and right usually triumphs over might in time for us to take the youngsters home to tea.

But, mind you, the going is tough at times and it looks as if the boys and girls are on a pretty sticky wicket.

We're back home in Nebraska in 1888 and it's election year. Grandpa (Walter Brennan) has composed a campaign song for the Democrat party and, would you believe it? every darn one of his family accompanies him on a different instrument.

* * *

Soon everyone is embroiled in the great presidential election between Grover Cleveland (Democrat) and Benjamin Harrison (Republican), and they go around drippin' g's like Old Vic.

Thar's lots of jolly songs — 'bout yew, 'bout me, 'bout us, 'bout we and thar's no knowin' when this lil ol' territory will be one of th' great Yew-nited States.

Then thar's John Davidson. He's a singin' publisher and he takes a mighty shine to black-eyed Lesley Ann Warren, eldest daughter of the Brennan family.

Only trouble is the publisher's a dyed-in-the-wool Republican and Democrat Grandpa doesn't like him one bit. Soon thar's feudin' and fightin' and the young lovers agree to disagree.

The whole thing boils up into a riotous brew of intrigue and misunderstanding and it goes on right up to election night, with lots of singin' and dancin' along the way.

Government Promises Steadily Mounting

By JIM HUME

If somebody can find a way to delay the three provincial byelections scheduled for July 15 there might be a chance of winkling a new Pat Bay Highway out of the provincial government.

At least the record of the past two weeks would indicate that the chances of a solid promise would be excellent if the vote count could be stalled to, say, the end of the month.

Hume

First came Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell distributing sweetness and light with the announcement that his department was actually talking to municipalities on cost-sharing and other financial problems.

Then came the premier reaching into the grab-bag to give his blessings to the Wharf Street urban renewal program.

He was followed by a message from the department of municipal affairs to the city saying storm ahead with your housing plans for Rose-Blanshard, we have great faith in you.

From Mr. Chant, neatly nipping in ahead of Education Minister Donald Brothers, came the promise of a start on the long-promised vocational school.

From Mr. Loffmark came an airy wave of approval for hospital proposals amounting to millions of dollars. And, said a startled Mayor Hugh Curtis, "a gracious reception to our ideas such as I have never seen before from a minister of the Crown."

Only a miserable cynic would suggest that the politically astute Premier Bennett, sensitive to the winds of change, had passed the word down the line: "Be nice to the people. We have byelections coming up and we have already lost one too many."

Election promises? Now, now, let us not think such naughty thoughts.

But just think what we could get if they set those byelection dates back two or three weeks.

After months of cogitation he plucked up courage, marched into a haberdashery and selected for himself three or four Irish linen ties running around $5 each.

The same day, wishing to appear his well-dressed best before addressing the national convention of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, he nipped home for a shave, shower and change of shirt. And of course to don one of those smart new Irish linen ties.

After this week's calm-before-the-storm meeting of the Regional Hospital District we are left wondering when all the cards relating to acute care hospital sites will be laid on the table.

To date we have heard Dr. Harvey Agnew's recommendation that the new hospital be built in the general area of Elk Lake, a recommendation backed by the priorities and advisory committees of the board.

We have heard North Saanich and Sidney plead for a replacement for Rest Haven on the north end of Saanich Peninsula. We have heard Mayor Gordon Lee suggest Saanichton as the site, a suggestion backed by MLA John Tisdalle.

And we have heard Mayor Hugh Stephen say, in support of another Agnew recommendation, that an acute care centre should remain near St. Joseph's.

But we are still waiting for Mayor Hugh Curtis, who doubles as chairman of the regional district, to trot out in public the reports prepared by the Capital Region Planning Board and the Saanich planning department recommending the junction of Douglas and McKenzie as the site.

Could it be that he is hoping for a site tug-of-war after which he will suggest the Douglas-McKenzie site as a nice compromise?

Or could it be that he doesn't want embarrassing questions asked by directors who surely have the right to know that the Capital Region Planning Board survey was conducted at the request of executive secretary Bill Long?

The sad part about the whole thing is that the regional district was making such fantastic strides until the deal went under the table.

Now, whether Mayor Curtis recognizes the fact or not, there are grave cracks in the structure and more than two or three disenchanted board members.

FIRECRACKER, orange, egg and a few anti-royalist banners greeted Prince Charles, 1[illegible] year-old heir to the title of Prince of Wales. The welcome generally was warm with a few nationalist dissidents sprinkled in the crowds. Here the prince looks at a banner held by a Welsh nationalist.

Prince Braves Rebuffs

CARDIFF (AP) — Nationalist placards and the tossing of certain missiles—a firecracker, an orange and an egg—showed Prince Charles on Friday that not all Welshmen are happy he is to become the Prince of Wales.

Heavily guarded, the 19-year-old heir to the British throne paid his first mapor visit to Wales. He toured four cities as part of a summer program to learn the workings of British government offices. Accompanied by his father, Prince Philip, he got a mixed reception.

The firecracker, thrown by a girl, exploded several yards from the prince. The orange, tossed by a boy, burst on a police car. The egg missed. The throwers were arrested.

A similar theme was followed in an orderly demonstration by a half-dozen youths at the Llanelli town hall. They displayed placards including the declaration: "revolution yes, prince no."

Charles is due to be invested as Prince of Wales in July, 1969. Dissidents consider he is being used to keep Wales tied to the central government in London.

TEA TALKS MAY END U.K. STRIKE

LONDON (Reuters) — Nine ladies had tea together Friday and the result was an agreement by strike leaders to work for an end to one of the walkouts disrupting British industry.

The three-week strike by 187 women operators forced the Ford Motor Co. to lay off 9,000 men and has cost £8,000,000 (about $20,800,000).

The strike leaders are to ask the other women Sunday for agreement to call off the strike.

The women make car seat covers.

GIRL, 8, WINS $130,000

Times News Services

An eight-year-old Ontario girl was one of four Canadians to win $130,000 today with an Irish Sweepstake ticket on Ribero, winner of the derby run at the Curragh track near Dublin.

Her mother didn't know she had it.

Mrs. K. M. Wakefield told a reporter her daughter was "jumping" up and down she's so excited."

Disposition of the $130,000 would involve a family council, "but we will probably invest it for her . . . and then we have to decide what shall be done for the relative who bought it for her."

The relative was not identified.

THREE IN QUEBEC

Three other Canadians to win $130,000 are Roland Lefebvre of Pointe Gatineau, Quebec, Jean Racicot of Gatineau, Quebec and William Coleman, a 77-year-old retired Montreal man.

Mr. Coleman is in hospital.

His daughter Eleanor, 41, said she is "stunned" by the win and she immediately went up to the hospital to see her father.

Six Canadians who won prizes of $52,000 each with tickets on Sir Ivor, the pre-race favorite who finished second, were identified as S. Chrabasz of Saskatoon; Mrs. Jennie Wolowich of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Don Lirondelle of Edmonton, Vern Schrank of Maidstone, Sask., Jack Whiting of Port Coquitlam, B.C., and R. L. Clarkson of Fort St. John, B.C.

SEVEN WON $26,000

Seven Canadians who won $26,000 each with tickets on third-placed Val d'Aoste were identified as Yvon VanAl, Rosemount, Que.; Elsie Cruickshanks, Collingwood, Ont.; J. Cunningham, Scarborough, Ont.; John Namara, Hamilton; Denyse Brisebois, LaSalle, Que., and Art Coghlan, Ottawa.

Mr. Coghlan's ticket previously had been listed as from Oshawa, Ont.

On B.C. winner, Mr. Clarkson of Fort St. John, likely hasn't yet heard he is $52,000 richer.

When he learned he had drawn a ticket on the Irish Sweepstake earlier this week, he announced he did not intend to change his plans for a

Riding Switches To Grits

OTTAWA (CP)—The Liberals increased their Commons strength by one seat today to 154 on the basis of returns from the armed forces vote.

The first check of service vote figures indicated they took Comox-Alberni from the NDP but this proved erroneous and that party's strength remains at 23 seats.

In Sherbrooke, Liberal Paul Gervais got 169 service votes to boost his total to 15,301. Creditiste Adelard Larose got only nine service votes to make his civilian-service total 15,173.

Mr. Larose had led by 32 votes on the strength of Tuesday's civilian returns.

The Creditistes have requested a recount.

NDP Leader Douglas was not helped by the service vote. A loser by 93 civilian votes in Burnaby-Seymour Tuesday, Mr. Douglas got 48 service votes to 110 for Liberal winner Ray Perrault. Mr. Douglas now trails by 155 votes.

	1968	1965	1963	1962	1958
Lib	154	129	100	100	49
PC	72	97	95	116	208
NDP	23	21	17	19	8
Cred	14	9	—	—	—
SC	0	24	30	0	—
Total	264	265	265	265	265

In 1965, the Liberals raised their Commons total by two seats on the strength of the service vote.

FAVOR LIBERALS

As usual, the service vote was heavily pro-Liberal, though not to the same extent as in former years.

The Liberals got 59.4 per cent of the armed forces vote, compared with 63.3 per cent in 1965, and 70.5 per cent in 1963.

Armed forces unification has been put into effect since the 1965 vote.

A total of 63,401 cast ballots in the armed forces vote, or 53.5 per cent of the 118,384 who were eligible. The turnout was 64.5 per cent in 1965. This year's service turnout compares with a civilian percentage of about 75.

The Conservatives won 30.6 per cent of the service vote, compared with 23.5 in 1965. The NDP got 7.7 per cent, against 8.8 last time. There were five votes for the Communist party this year.

In recent years, only the Liberal Richard Durante, who lost the Comox-Alberni federal seat to New Democrat Tom Barnett by 42 votes, is expected to ask for a recount.

The Barnett margin was reduced by the result of the service vote announced today.

Mr. Durante's campaign manager Ronald Hess said if the margin of victory remains the same, the Liberals will definitely ask for a recount.

Nicholson Moving Into Mansion Tuesday

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

British Columbia's new lieutenant-governor — Hon. John Robert Nicholson, OBE, QC, LL.B. — said today he is eagerly looking forward to living in Victoria.

The 66-year-old minister will be sworn in as B.C.'s 21st lieutenant-governor by Chief Justice J. O. Wilson at Government House Tuesday at 11 a.m.

"Mrs. Nicholson and I have always liked Victoria," he told The Times from his temporary residence in Vancouver, "and we have some very good friends there.

"We are certainly looking forward to our residence at Government House, with its splendid view of the Strait."

Mr. Nicholson said he is going into the new job with "a completely open mind" and has no plans as yet.

"I shall discuss various matters with Mr. Pearkes and try to learn something from his very broad and valuable experience.

"We shall do our best to follow the example of our distinguished predecessors, particularly Mr. and Mrs. Pearkes.

"I'm very happy to be back in British Columbia and I think this will be a post which my wife and I will find very interesting."

Mr. Nicholson's appointment was announced in Ottawa Friday night by Prime Minister Trudeau following the first cabinet meeting since Tuesday's federal election.

Mr. Nicholson said he is glad to be out of active politics, although he enjoyed the experience.

"I found it challenging and stimulating; sometimes frustrating and sometimes wholly rewarding — But the time comes when a man who has had a busy life looks forward to getting out of the political field.

"It puts a great strain on his energies."

A silver-haired six-footer, Mr. Nicholson is embarking on his sixth major career. He has been lawyer, business-

VANCOUVER SUPPLY PICKED UP

Poisonous Salts Recalled by Firm

MONTREAL (CP)—A Montreal patent drug company said today it has found from a check of invoices that distribution of bottles of health salts in which a poisonous substance had been mixed was more widespread than at first believed.

James McCoubrey, vice-president and general manager of the Dr. A. W. Chase Co. Ltd. of Montreal, said it was only found after a full check of the records that the salts had been widely distributed in Ontario communities southwest of Toronto.

It was not immediately known how much of the preparation had been distributed in the Ontario communities.

Mr. McCoubrey said those responsible for the mistake in preparation of the salts had been "relieved of their responsibilities" and the procedure which had caused the mixture "has been isolated. It was an abrogation of plant rules."

More than 2,870 bottles of the 16-ounce size "Improved English Style Effervescent Salt" have been recalled after the fedral food and drug directorate issued the order Friday.

The directorate said that tarter emetic was included in batches of the product made in May and June. The salts are designed to relieve upset stomach conditions but the additive can cause servere vomiting and death.

Previously, a company spokesman had said only 123 bottles remain unaccounted for. One hundred bottles were in the Toronto-Ottawa area, 14 in the Maritimes and nine in Vancouver.

Mr. McCoubrey said he understood the Vancouver bottles were "being picked up today."

At least 12 persons have been stricken in Toronto with severe cramp pains after taking the salts, two Metropolitan Toronto hospitals reported Friday.

"If swallowed, severe vomiting may occur and the compound could cause death," the directorate said in a special public bulletin.

"All dealers and stores are warned to stop sales of this product immediately," the bulletin said. The salts are sold in drug, grocery and other stores.

One drug wholesale company in Victoria had not heard of the product and doubted anyone here would be carrying it.

"I don't think there is any likelihood of any in Victoria," he said.

Four large drug stores contacted by The Times said they have not carried the health salts.

The storm that doused your lights a few minutes past noon on murky Friday knocked ours out as well. One moment, reporters racing deadline were bringing their typewriter tattoo toward a climax. The next, this newsroom was plunged into a unique state of utter silence.

The keys stopped clicking. The teletypes that chatter so busily to themselves were hushed.

The real drama was in the composing room, where the rows of linotypes had also been stilled by the meterological flareup. Each lino is fed from a pot of melted type-metal, an alloy that can turn solid in not much more than 20 minutes if the electric heat is shut off.

Let the pot and the type-metal in the lino's arteries harden and the machine can be restored to use only by a long, laborious freeing process.

Our electric clocks were out, but by wristwatch count, the power came on just a trifle over 5 minutes ahead of a freezeup that could have meant a very late Times on your doorstep.

As matters turned out, the printers managed to make up those lost minutes and meet their deadline.

Victoria Community Arts Council has developed an idea that strikes me as a winner. This is to set up an intermediate art workshop in the old Dowell Cartage building on Wharf Street at Bastion Square.

The plan has a pleasant Renaissance flavor. Young beginning artists and craftsmen would work with their knowledgeable seniors as apprentices, trading service for expert instruction.

The list of arts and skills which the workshop would encourage is lengthy and diversified. It includes painting, sculpture, ceramics, movie-making, experimental sound, set design, and experimental and children's theatre. Others could be added according to demand.

A brief on the proposal has been drawn up, and Ald. Clyde Savage, Community Arts Council president, will seek City Hall approval for it.

The arts council has been cherishing this notion of a Bastion Square centre for many months, and I'm glad to learn that it has now been put in concrete form. The project would be a boon to teen-agers with a long summer before them.

It might also inject a touch more liveliness into a good little square that has never quite caught on as it should.

Anyone interested is invited to a meeting at 8 p.m. Monday, July 8, at 1960 Lansdowne, under Community Arts Council auspices.

★

If fewer American tourist-fishermen invade our coast waters this year, the fact may be laid to a fish-story that's not only true, but one of the most thrilling (to anglers at least) on record.

Fishwise, the Great Lakes have been steadily declining — but one of them, Lake Michigan, has been given a near-miraculous reprieve.

Into it, about four years ago, Michigan fish and wildlife service introduced Pacific coho salmon, which are now multiplying and extending their territory at an amazing rate. Twenty-pounders are being caught, and Michigan is advertising this new attraction like crazy.

'Be ironic, won't it, if once coho-rich British Columbians must some day head east to catch this liveliest of our salmon species.

And, believe me, it could happen here. I give our coho runs about 20 years at the outside. By then, unless this province and the federal authority take thought for a priceless — and diminishing — asset, the coho will be gone.

That's it, except to pass on a suggestion from a brisk young voter who feels each ballot should carry a tag-line labelled 'Undecided.' If the Undecides won the count, we'd toss out all candidates and try again with a fresh batch!

Harsh Future For Splinters Says Bennett

By BRUCE YEMEN

Premier Bennett gave oblique approval Friday to the Greater Victoria Conservative Association executive's endorsement of Oak Bay Socred candidate Peter Pollen.

But he was careful not of refer directly to the Social Conservative philosophy of Alberta Premier Ernest Manning which the Conservative directors also generally endorsed as individuals.

Mr. Bennett said in an interview the federal election showed clearly the public desire for majority government.

He predicted that Liberals and Conservatives would dominate federal politics for "a number of years" and perhaps longer.

"The minority parties will come back if the Liberals and Tories don't do a good job," he said.

Perrault Recognized Trend

The same would be true on the provincial scene—the "free enterprise" Social Credit party and the "socialist" NDP would dominate politics, he said.

Provincial Liberal Leader Ray Perrault recognized the trend and went into federal politics, said the premier.

He said the voters were "pretty harsh" when they dealt with federal "splinter parties" and added:

"I suggest they will deal pretty harshly with splinter parties provincially."

He said the Victoria Conservative directors had obviously realized this and acted accordingly.

The premier used the word "realignment" only in the sense that voters would tend to support parties capable of providing majority government.

Liberal supporters in the three ridings facing July 15 provincial byelections should sense the necessary realignment, he said, describing the provincial Liberal party as a "small splinter group if ever there was one."

The Liberals held six out of 55 seats in the last legislature.

'Minorities Thing of Past'

"The voters have spoken loud and clear on that," he said.

Mr. Bennett was notably silent last year when Premier Manning called for realignment of conservative forces in Canadian society to form a united national party of the right wing.

The endorsement by the Greater Victoria Conservative Association was not only for Mr. Pollen's candidacy in the July 15 byelection but also for his views on political realignment..

Mr. Pollen said that Premier Manning's book, "Political Realignment: A Challenge to Thoughtful Canadians," was the basis for his philosophy.

Eric Makovski, president of the Greater Victoria Conservative Association, said the Social Credit and Conservative parties "are just wasting time and money fighting each other."

A lack of vitality in the Conservative Party could be traced to a lack of "basic philosophy," he said.

All but one of the directors of the association backed the new attitude, he said, declining to name the dissenter.

JAYCEE RESOLUTION

'First Aid or Abandon' Faltering CYC Venture

"The Company of Young Canadians should be disbanded unless the government takes quick firm action towards strengthening the staggering organization, says a Canada Jaycees convention resolution.

The resolution says the new government must take a new approach toward the company to correct that taken by the last government which was "prejudicial to the company."

Prepared by the Jaycee national executive, the proposed resolution was to be presented today to the convention's general assembly at the Empress Hotel for discussion, possible revision and a likely motion calling for representation to the government.

The result of a year-long national study, the resolution says the CYC concept is "a bold experiment into social change," and worthy of national support.

". . . the projects undertaken by the CYC are related to real social problems and have and are producing positive results for the benefit of all Canadians."

The CYC was established in July 1966 by the Pearson government as agency for recruiting volunteers to help underdeveloped areas of Canada improve their economic and social standards.

Under two executive directors, the company was criticized because of the "hippie image" which many people felt was portrayed by the volunteers.

The Jaycee resolution calls for provision of strong leadership within the organization and proper "structuring" of the company to increase its effectiveness.

The company's two executive directors, William McWhinney and Alan Clarke, have both resigned in dispute and the company's Quebec branch has been agitating for a separate provincial organization to be called the "Company of Young Quebecers."

There have been numerous charges that the organization was infiltrated by Communists and was being taken over by young radicals.

BUDGET SLASHED

Late last year the federal government announced it was slashing the company's budget to $1,900,000 from $2,400,000 the previous year.

The decrease, together with internal staff conflicts, forced the scrapping last month of two large Toronto projects and one in Winnipeg. Also abandoned was a plan set for this fall, for a small expansion into underdeveloped countries overseas.

Poor publicity has created public misunderstanding of the objectives of the company, the Jaycee resolution says.

It asks that every effort be made to educate and inform the country of the CYC's role and accomplishments.

OVER 6,000 PLEDGES

Sidney Walkathon Holiday Feature

A nine-mile Sidney walkathon is expected to attract more than 1,000 people on Dominion Day.

Peter Russell, president of the Sidney Lions Club, sponsors of the event, said over 6,000 pledges have been made for varying amounts of money for the walkathon.

"It promises to be an outstanding success," he said. "The entire community appears to be behind the project."

NOON START

Proceeds from the event will go towards Lions' youth programs, such as high school scholarships and playground equipment.

Participants in the walk who are among the first to cross the finishing line at Sidney will receive prizes.

There will also be special prizes for young people of various age groups.

The club will also provide refreshments to walkers along the rout, plus medical assistance.

The route starts from Sanscha Hall and winds through Sidney, Rest Haven Road to Mills Roads, West Saanich Road and Wains Road and back to the hall.

Premier's Pressure Said Heavy-Handed

'Troops and Money' Says Grit Candidate

By JOHN SLINGER

Oak Bay Liberal candidate Allan Cox said today Premier Bennett is sending "troops and money" into the riding in an effort to wrench the former Liberal seat into the Social Credit camp.

Mr. Cox charged that the premier was resorting to "heavy-handed power politics" in his support of Social Credit candidate Peter Pollen in the July 15 byelection.

Entry of Mr. Bennett into the campaign "makes it clear that this is not a fight between Pollen and myself. . . . It is a fight between the premier and myself."

The Liberal said Oak Bay "traditionally has not reacted well" to such politics.

The charge was levelled after invitations from Mr. Bennett were sent to Oak Bay voters asking them to attend a Thursday meeting for Mr. Pollen.

The invitations, postmarked Vancouver, reportedly say "the Hon. W. A. C. Bennett, premier of the province of British Columbia, has the honor to invite you and your friends to attend a public meeting in support of your most capable candidate Peter Pollen . . ."

Mr. Cox said he believes the invitations went to most voters.

He said he doubted the Conservative support mounted behind Mr. Pollen represented a philosophical swing toward Alberta Premier Manning's Social Conservatism.

The Liberal said Oak Bay traditionally voted for a candidate rather than a party, "so I don't think there is even a possibility of a philosophical alignment."

"Certainly in our party, the executives wouldn't have any authority to commit the party to a political alignment."

He expressed surprise at the announcement by five Oak Bay New Democratic Party members that they would give tacit support to Mr. Cox by not fielding a candidate.

He dismissed suggestions that the endorsement indicated an NDP-Liberal alignment as "ridiculous."

"The Liberals and the NDP are philosophical enemies," he said, adding that the Liberals would welcome any NDP votes that come their way.

Peter Bunn, spokesman for the NDP five, said his party took only 972 votes in the last election, but these votes could mean the difference between a Social Credit or a Liberal victory.

Mr. Cox said he expected the premier would try to use the NDP statement to prove his charge of an NDP-Liberal conspiracy against the Social Credit government in the legislature.

"It is a convenient conspiracy to suggest, since both parties are in opposition to him," the Liberal said.

The Social Credit-Conservative mating was not repressentative of a strong Oak Bay Social Credit movement.

NO OAK BAY CANDIDATE

NDP Counters Conservatives

By ERIC MAURICE

The move follows the Conservative Party's decision not to field a candidate in Oak Bay and leaves only Liberal Allan Cox and Socred Peter Pollen in the race. Nominations close July 5.

The NDP move is intended to offset the Conservative endorsation of Mr. Pollen.

Greater Victoria Conservative Association directors said earlier they "enthusiastically support" Mr. Pollen's candidacy.

While the Victoria-Oak Bay NDP association declined to support Mr. Cox openly, it is clear the battle lines have been drawn and that their opposition to the Socreds is intended to carry NDP support into the Liberal camp.

"LOVE TO HAVE"

Executive member Peter Bunn told the NDP meeting Oak Bay "is a seat the premier would dearly love to have" and one which couldn't be won when Social Credit was in its heyday.

"A Social Credit victory in Oak Bay would be out of all proportion to its value, but the Psychological impact would be very great," said Mr. Bunn, who also is chairman of Greater Victoria School Board.

Mr. Bunn proposed a motion not to nominate an NDP candidate and to support the Liberal candidate, but the second part of his motion was rejected by the membership.

The constituency association also moved to "strongly" recommend to the NDP provincial office not to nominate an Oak Bay candidate in this election.

Association president Phil Fawcett told the meeting provincial NDP leader Robert Strachan and the provincial caucus and table officers all favored running a candidate in Oak Bay and were prepared to nominate one if the constituency association failed to do so.

Ask The Times

Q. Is there any person or agency whose business it is to find placement for manuscripts?

A. Literary agents place manuscripts. Standard U.S.A. practice is 10 per cent commission on home sales and up to 20 per cent on foreign sales. In the case of unsolicited manuscript certain firms charge a reading fee which is refunded if the material is accepted. In all cases writers are advised to send a preliminary letter and to ascertain terms before submitting. A recommended agency is the Scott Meredith Literary Agency Inc., 580 Fifth Avenue, New York 36, New York.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

PETER POLLEN

Oak Bay At Bay Over Vote Signs

Election signs erected by Oak Bay Social Credit candidate Peter Pollen are too big for municipal bylaws.

And no one has bothered to get a municipal permit to erect the signs on private property as required by bylaw.

Oak Bay mayor Fred Hawes said today it is illegal to erect signs on municipal property such as boulevards and roadways, and signs on private property are restricted in size to two and a quarter square feet.

There is "no question" about the fact the signs are contravening municipal regulations concerning size, but the bylaw was designed to apply to commercial signs.

The position on political signs is unclear, the mayor said. "This problem hasn't arisen before."

Mr. Hawes said the erection of signs on private property requires a municipal permit, and since no one sought permits for the several hundred Pollen signs, the municipality has no record of who put them up.

Many complaints have been received from residents who don't like having campaign signs in their neighbor's yards, the mayor said, but no one has tried to press charges.

The municipality informed Socred campaign workers the signs would have to be removed from municipal property and this has been done, says Mr. Pollen.

Mr. Pollen said he didn't think the municipal bylaw applies to federal and provincial electioneering, and that if Oak Bay wants to press charges over the signs on private property, he will fight the case.

They didn't take any action during the federal campaign, he said.

FLARE DROP LACKING

Fisherman Knocks Rescue Efforts

A Victoria fisherman charged today more could have been done to rescue two fishermen whose boat sank off Estevan Point Thursday night.

Neils Kriberg, 755 Cook, said he was in the area Thursday night in his fishing boat Whiff and heard the distress call about 5 p.m.

"The call was relayed through Tofino and there were about four boats close to the stricken vessel," he said.

"I was just a little too far away to help, but the nearer boats could have if they knew what was going on."

Mr. Kriberg said fishermen often turn their radios off and don't hear distress calls.

He claimed a plane could have been sent from Tofino to drop a flare over the sea, thus indicating the mishap.

As it was, Bruce Petrie, 2950 Leigh Road, and Lloyd Crowther, 1090 Goldstream, clung to an overturned dinghy and kicked themselves to shore on Bartlett Island.

They were rescued about 7 the next morning by a Coast Guard helicopter.
